

1854---City Document---No. 1.

A D D R E S S

OF THE

HON. RODNEY FRENCH,

M A Y O R.

Delivered before the City Council, April 4th, 1854.

GENTLEMEN OF THE CITY COUNCIL:

We are convened here to-day in conformity with the provisions of our City Charter, and in obedience to the wishes of the people, made known to us through the proper authorities, to organize the Government of the City for the ensuing political year.

We have invoked the favor, guidance and protection of the Supreme Ruler of the Universe, at its commencement; let us so conduct its affairs as to receive His benediction at its close. Most of you, gentlemen, have been returned not for the first time to the Councils of the City. All of us have taken the oaths of office, and by our presence here signify to our constituents that we have not only accepted the trusts thus committed to our hands, but that we are ready to go forward in the faithful discharge of every duty therewith connected. To those who are here as City Officers for the first time, as well as to all of us, I trust that this ceremony will be far, very far, from a trivial procedure, or a meaningless or unimportant occasion. There are duties devolving upon the Mayor, upon the Aldermen, and upon the Common Council, which are distinct and separate. Then again, gentlemen, there are duties and obligations devolving upon us as a City Council, which, whether separate or collective, are well defined and described in the City Charter and Ordinances, all of which we have solemnly sworn to discharge.

In the further organization of this Government, some of its officers are to be chosen by joint action of both branches in convention, and some are to be appointed by nominations by the Mayor, to be confirmed by the board of Aldermen; some by the action of the Common Council alone, and others by nominations from the Mayor, to be confirmed by the City Council, or in other words by both branches in convention. It is the duty of the Mayor in all cases where it is his privilege, to nominate good and suitable men, and it is the duty of the Aldermen and Councillors to confirm those nominations, unless for good and sufficient causes clearly stated and set forth, such as want of good character or qualifications for such stations, &c.

As I understand this, gentlemen, it is the duty as well as the privilege of the Mayor to nominate so as to give him his choice in quite a number of officers who are to assist him, and for whose conduct he is in a great measure responsible in successfully administering the government, and the imperative duty of the City Council to confirm those nominations, provided the persons nominated are qualified in the general acceptance of that term, to fill such honorable and responsible stations. If then the Mayor neglects or refuses to nominate such men for offices, which the City Council cannot elect unless so nominated, does he not clearly violate his oath of office? On the other hand, if the Aldermen and Councillors refuse to confirm such nominations, I most respectfully submit whether they do not violate their solemn oaths of office, and set at defiance the charter and ordinances of the city, as well as the constitution and laws of this Commonwealth.

The city has been deprived of a number of important officers during the past year, owing to circumstances which I need not narrate on this occasion, as they have become a part of our history and cannot be easily erased from the record. We have had no City Marshal and but one Assistant Marshal, (which was the result of an accident,) out of six required by the express terms of our ordinances, which must, to say the least, have caused some annoyance, as there were provisions of our charter and a number of our ordinances, as well as several of the laws of the Commonwealth, which the Executive was unable to comply with, enforce or cause to be observed, in consequence of not having the proper officers described in those enactments, to assist him in so doing. I trust that no member of the present City Council will be willing to see that experiment repeated, or upon whose conscience his oath of office will rest so lightly as to allow him to so far forget his obligations to his constituents, as to cause the otherwise fair fame of our city again to be compromised by such an unprecedented collision and want of harmony between co-ordinate branches of her government.

FINANCES.

The whole amount of disbursements the past year, for which the Mayor has drawn his warrant upon the Treasury is $258,123 14
From which deduct the credits to the departments, as follows:

Support of Public Schools,	$890 44
Alms House Establishment,	3,779 25
Incidental Expense Account,	5,458 73
Fire Department,	117 50
Highways,	442 29
Lighting Streets,	13 25
City Watch,	3 00
Sales of Lots in Cemeteries,	567 00
City Liquor Store,	9,682 00
Main Drains and Common Sewers,	10,792 26
		$31,745 72
Which leaves the amount of		$226 377 42
From which deduct the following extraordinary outlays, viz:
State Tax,	6,945 00
County Tax,	11,070 43
Paid for Land to Enlarge City Lot,	19,129 66
Building Point Road,	44,297 44
Paid last year's Temporary Loan,	2,542 50
		$84,005 03
Making actual expenditures for ordinary purposes,		$142,372 39
Deduct from this the amount expended by the Govern- ment of 1852-3, from March 1st to April 4th,		6,000 00
And you have as the legitimate ordinary expendi- tures of the Government the past year, which are rightfully chargeable to that Government, the sum of		136,372 39

Being some fourteen thousand dollars less than the charges upon the Treasury for similar purposes the previous financial year, which, by reference to the city documents of 1853, will be found to be about one hundred and fifty-one thousand dollars.

For particulars and details as to the expenditures of the various departments, also of the city debt and city property, I must refer you to the Finance Report and Schedule of the Public Property herewith annexed.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Our Public Schools are all in their usual flourishing and promising condition. We have already established and are maintaining thirty-four in number, in which nine gentlemen and sixty-eight ladies are employed as teachers. The whole amount drawn from the Treasury the past year for educational purposes, was forty thousand three hundred forty-seven dollars and twenty-nine cents; of which there was paid for salaries of teachers alone, the sum of twenty-two thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars.

By the census taken in 1853, there were within the limits of the city three thousand four hundred and twenty-three children, between the ages of five and fifteen years; three thousand three hundred and ninety-one of whom were admitted and instructed in the various elements of education, furnished by this munificent appropriation and expenditure. A number of these Schools are crowded beyond the capacity of the buildings now occupied for those purposes, to accommodate in a comfortable or even tolerable manner. It is thought that one or more new houses will be immediately required to furnish the necessary accommodations for the rapidly increasing numbers consequent upon the prosperity and steady growth of our city in population, enterprize and industry, who are constantly knocking at the doors of our school rooms for admission, and which it is the fixed and unalterable policy of our city, not to turn away; but to receive, care for, discipline and educate in a manner becoming the enlightened public sentiment of the nineteenth century.

For full particulars of the details of the department, permit me to refer you and ask your attention to the able and elaborate Report of the School Committee.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Our Free Public Library, which has been thrown open to the citizens for a little more than a year, meets with great favor among all classes of our community. It has far exceeded in its apparent necessity and usefulness, the most sanguine expectations of its most ardent and enthusiastic projectors.

It embraced at its commencement about six thousand volumes; it contains now about seven thousand volumes.

There have been taken from the Library the past year twenty-two thousand six hundred and seven volumes, by two thousand three hundred and seventy-three persons.

The charge upon the Treasury for this establishment, the past season, has been three thousand three hundred and ninety-two dollars and forty-two cents.

It is now one of the permanent institutions of the city, and as such, will be entitled to, and I am quite confident will receive the earnest solicitude and fostering care of the Government. For further particulars as to its condition, usefulness and claims, I refer you to the report of its Trustees herewith annexed.

POINT ROAD.

On the 23d of May last past, a petition signed by some twelve hundred of our citizens, was presented to the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, asking that a Road commencing at the Orphans' Home, on South Water street, be laid out and graded eighty feet in width, southerly round Clark's Point, by the shore, and thence northerly to intersect Cove street, a distance of between four and five miles.

It was immediately acted upon. The way was laid out by Calvin Staples, Superintendent of Streets, and promptly accepted and ordered to be built, by both branches of the Government. The land was given the entire route, except in a very few instances, against which damages the city was fully indemnified by competent bonds, duly executed by Edward W. Howland and Joseph Ricketson, 2d, Esqrs., and on the 21st day of June following, ground was broken by a company of men under the superintendence of Barjona D. Tripp, on the Cove side, near where the road commences. Other companies from time to time were organized and commenced operations on its line under the superintendence of Frederick A. Tripp, Pardon Potter, Benjamin King, Benjamin F. Terry, Simeon Hawes, Rhodolphus Ashley, James Duffy, and Isaac Barnes, with the view of pushing forward the work to its completion before Winter should set in. The excavation and grading were prosecuted with constant effort, vigor and determination—each gang vyeing with each other, and heartily and most efficiently co-operating with me in exertions and skill to bring the enterprize to a successful termination, within the time fixed upon, and allow the citizens to drive over the entire work upon a good track, before the rigor of winter should compel a suspension of operations.

It gives me pleasure to bear testimony to the zeal and fidelity which seemed to animate superintendents and men along the entire line of this road from its commencement to its close, and to the cheerfulness with which they all came to my aid, so that neither in point of time, expense or finish, should the just expectations of the citizens fail to be realized or even postponed. The Road was brought to grade its entire length, excepting a few rods on the hill near the south west part of it, (on the farm of Edward W. Howland,) and a deep cut on the east side of the Point, just north of Butler's Ledge, neither of which however formed any impediment to the enjoyment of those who desired to avail themselves of its privileges, by driving over its entire length.

Having accomplished thus much, and seeing that all its appointments could not well be completed until another season—such as sea-wall, side-walk, and the top coat of gravel on a section on the eastern part, between the City Alms House and Butler's Ledge, it was deemed advisable to suspend operations until another year, and accordingly on the 30th day of November last, the work was suspended.

The charge upon the Treasury thus far, for this undertaking, is about forty-four thousand dollars. Forty-five thousand dollars have been raised on permanent loan for that purpose; and in case five thousand dollars more should be raised in the same way, (making in all for its construction just fifty-thousand dollars,) in my judgment it will be ample to complete the work, so far as finishing the grade, sea-wall and side-walks are concerned, as at present designed. It will not be actually completed perhaps, to the satisfaction of the citizens, or to the credit of the city, until the side-walk shall be curbed and flagged its entire length. But that will probably be a gradual work of time, year by year, and can come into the general appropriation for repairs of streets and highways, as the nature of the case and the reasonable wishes of the citizens may seem from time to time to require.

It has cost already more than at first was estimated by the Superintendent of Streets, or even was anticipated by its original projectors and numerous petitioners. But, gentlemen, such is the prevailing sentiment of the citizens generally as to its desirableness and utility, that I feel the utmost confidence in saying that no considerable portion of them would have it as when we commenced operations upon it in June last, and be debarred from ever securing it in future, for twice or even thrice the outlay already made or required for its final completion.

Permit me to add, that I have caused sign-boards to be erected at several points upon its line, requesting all persons driving upon it to avoid making ruts—the importance of which must be eminently apparent to all who frequently pass over its track; and I most respectfully and earnestly desire that all good citizens will take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.

CITY LOT.

The City Lot, lying between Purchase and County, and Pope and Pearl streets, was somewhat improved during the past year, by the expenditure of about one thousand dollars, near its eastern limits. It was enlarged by the purchase of about four hundred and eighty rods of land, at a cost of nineteen thousand one hundred twenty-nine dollars sixty-six cents. It now extends from Purchase to County street, except a couple of lots containing about seventy-five rods, on which are two dwelling houses on its north west corner—the owners of which it is believed will part with them to the city for a fair compensation, and thus remove the only obstacle to a convenient, beautiful and symmetrical Public Square.

PUBLIC CEMETERIES.

We have belonging to the city, three Public Cemeteries, viz: Oak Grove, Rural, and Pine Grove, so called. One situated in the northerly, one in the southerly, and one in the westerly portion of our city. They were purchased in 1842, 1849, 1852 and 1853, at a cost in the aggregate of some ten thousand dollars. They are substantially fenced, beautifully laid out, and quite extensively ornamented. Citizens who have desired it, have secured to themselves the right of occupancy of convenient lots in them; and they are open to all for a trifling sum, who are desirous of availing themselves of those privileges.

COMMON SEWERS.

Three Sewers were built during the last season, on School, Spring and Kempton streets, at a cost of about sixteen thousand dollars, one half of which was assessed on the abutters, agreeably to the laws of the Commonwealth. Petitions for others were received and laid over to this Council, which, permit me, gentlemen, to recommend to your favorable consideration. These works thus far have proved highly satisfactory in their usefulness, and are sought for with earnestness by our citizens upon the lines of our east and west streets, where the inclination of them render such improvements desirable as well as practicable.

ALMS HOUSE.

Our Alms House establishment is unsurpassed in arrangement and convenience, a model of neatness, and a pattern of discipline, which are conclusive evidence of the excellent judgment, constant assiduity and perseverance, superior skill and industry, of its indefatigable and gentlemanly Superintendent, Mr. Briggs. It has been the resting place as well as the permanent abode of comfort, christian instruction and consolation to four hundred and forty-six inmates during the past year. A larger number by one hundred and twenty-four, than it has sheltered and fed in any same number of months heretofore.

Number of inmates in the Alms House on the 1st day of March, 1852,	107
Number of inmates admitted during the year ending March 1st, 1853,	215
Whole number of inmates for the year,	322
Number of weeks they remained in Alms House,	5,260
Number of inmates in the Alms House on the 1st day of March, 1853,	96
Number of inmates admitted during the year ending March 1st, 1854,	350
Whole number of inmates during the year,	446
Number of weeks all inmates were in Alms House,	5,705
Number of inmates remaining in Alms House March 1st, 1854,	145
Of these would be liable to be removed to State Alms House,	105

Which if removed would leave only forty as legitimately belonging to the city to support.

The amount drawn from the Treasury for this establishment the past year has been larger by some five thousand dollars than was required the year ending March 1st, 1853. The net amount over its receipts is fourteen thousand four hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty-seven cents.

This has been caused mainly, by an increased number of inmates, the high prices of provisions, the enlarging of some of the buildings, as well as some additional outlays made necessary to accommodate, discipline and educate truant children, sentenced there under a late law of this Commonwealth; and the increased amount for outside relief, owing to the difficulty of quite a portion of our population being able to make the same amount of earnings, procure the same amount of subsistence, for the same number of months during the inclement season, as in years past. These are causes which will forcibly suggest themselves to all those who have by experience been made acquainted during the past year with procuring the comforts, or even necessities of life, for themselves or families. The expenses of this establishment will, probably, be somewhat diminished the ensuing year, by the absence of all State Paupers, who are to be provided for in institutions erected by the State, and now about to be made available for this purpose. The amount received from the State for their support, falls far short of the actual cost to the city. The average amount paid by the State per week for each inmate, is only forty-nine cents; whilst in many instances it has cost three or four times that sum, and in all cases more than double the amount received from the State.

The establishment now is crowded to overflowing; but when the State takes from us the one hundred or more inmates, liable to be removed to her Alms Houses now about in readiness, we shall have ample scope and verge for our own beneficiaries, for many years to come. For further particulars in reference to this whole matter, allow me to refer you to the Report of the Overseers of the Poor.

The subject of a Farm School for truant boys, instead of sending them to the Alms House, for confinement and discipline, which, in the judgment of the Overseers of that establishment, is a most manifestly unsuitable place for them, was referred to a committee, received considerable attention, and was finally referred to this Council.

Of its desirableness and propriety the committee were fully persuaded, and it recommended the whole subject with the information it collected, with reference to its consummation, to the early attention of the incoming Government.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Our Fire Department has been re-organized under the new Ordinance. Its Engines, that could be relied upon, have been thoroughly overhauled and repaired.

The engine Houses, a number of which were in a dilapidated condition, have been put in good order. One new Reservoir has been constructed at the corner of South Second and Walnut streets, of large dimensions, two more made available, and most of the others repaired, that required it. Additions have been made to the Hose, quite a quantity of which was getting badly worn; and one new Engine has been ordered, (which is now in a state of forwardness,) for Company No. Six, which will be ready for use some time in the month of June next. All of which has been admirably done under the direction and supervision of our Chief Engineer and his Assistants.

The several Companies are generally well filled, and competently officered. They have contended manfully with the element they have been organized to control—successfully so far as human effort and skill could avail. It is with pride as well as pleasure that I add, that so far as my knowledge extends, the utmost harmony and good feeling prevail throughout the Department. May it never be otherwise. We have had eighteen fires the past year, two of which only were supposed to have been the work of incendiaries. The amount of property destroyed was only about sixteen thousand five hundred dollars; eight thousand seven hundred dollars of which was covered by insurance. For further particulars relative to the affairs of this department, its necessities, condition and claims, I refer you to the Report of the Board of Engineers, to which I most respectfully ask your early attention.

ROADS AND STREETS.

The action of the winter upon our Roads, Avenues and Streets, has left them in very bad condition. It will require a much larger outlay than was expended upon them the past season, to put them in good order and keep them so through the year. There are some Streets which have been some time since accepted, which will have to be graded, and a larger amount of curbing and flagging than usual will be required to meet the necessary demands upon this department. The amount of expenditures for these purposes, the past year, was about twenty-six thousand dollars. It will require some thirty-thousand dollars to meet its present exigences and keep pace with the growth and expansion of our city, and the necessities of all sections for reasonable and equitable accommodations in these regards.

Gentlemen, I have only been able, in this brief address, to glance simply at some of the most important matters which will claim your attention as public servants, who should always be ready to give an account of their stewardship. While we shall be held to strict accountability by those who have placed us in these high stations of honor and trust, it will be incumbent on us to practice rigid economy in the appropriations and disbursements for all the departments of the Government; and also to be vigilant and untiring in ascertaining the real wants, necessities and conveniences demanded of us, for all sections of the city, and all classes of our citizens.

In entering upon these important duties, which we have undertaken to perform, let us go forward with a fixed and steady purpose, seeking wisdom and guidance from the fountain of all good, to do our whole duty with alacrity and fidelity; and also with an unwavering determination, that whatever may be wanting on our part in ability, experience, or sound judgment, shall be compensated for in some measure by zeal, industry and perseverance, that the interests of the citizens, the peace, dignity, welfare, honor, and fair fame of our city, shall neither receive injury nor be compromised during the brief period they have in these regards been intrusted to our keeping.

R E P O R T

OF THE

COMMITTEE ON FINANCE.

Chapter 24th of the Revised Ordinances makes it the duty of the Committee on Finance, in the month of March, annually, to prepare and lay before the City Council a statement of all the receipts and expenditures of the preceding financial year.

In compliance therewith, the Committee on Finance present to the City Council the accompanying statement of Receipts and Expenditures for the Financial year ending on the first day of March, 1854.

The whole amount of receipts into the Treasury from all sources is two hundred fifty-eight thousand one hundred twenty-three dollars and fourteen cents, and the expenditures are two hundred fifty-seven thousand one hundred and three dollars and six cents, leaving a balance in the Treasury of one thousand and twenty dollars and eight cents.

Permanent loans have been created the past year, for the following purposes, viz:—For building the Point Road, forty-five thousand dollars; for Common Sewers, seven thousand dollars; for extending the City Lot, twenty thousand dollars; making the whole amount of permanent loans ninety-nine thousand six hundred twenty six dollars and ninety-eight cents.

One temporary loan of last year of twenty-five hundred dollars has been paid, and one of ten thousand dollars negotiated to supply the Treasury in anticipation of the receipts of the taxes from abutters on the Sewers, &c. The balance of which, added to the permanent loan, makes the debt of the City one hundred fourteen thousand one hundred twenty six dollars and ninety-eight cents.

Annexed you will find the Report of the Sub-Committee appointed to examine the accounts of the Treasurer, as well as the Report of the Sub-Committee to prepare a "Schedule of the Property, real and personal, belonging to the City, and the value thereof."

The increased balance of uncollected Taxes for the year 1853 over the last year, is owing to a larger amount at sea and in California—and an assessment of Taxes of Feb'y 27, 1854—mostly unpaid at the present time.

I am respectfully yours,

FREDERICK BRYANT, Treasurer and Collector.

of the Country School Committee, but which following the arrangement of last year's Report, may be as well referred in this connection—The schools at Clark's Point and at the Alms House.

The Clark's Point School at one time during the year had dwindled so that the abandonment of it was held under consideration, but it has now risen very considerably in number, and during the past term has had the attendance of about twenty. The order and discipline of the school are good, and the improvement of the pupils has been considerable.

The Alms House School at the date of the last Annual Report had just gone into operation, and the opinion was then expressed, that under its competent teacher it would "present a favorable report of itself in reasonable time." This expectation has been fulfilled, and the Committee are pleased with the general appearance of the school and the progress of the children in their studies. The number in attendance has been about twenty-six, and the attendance uniform and constant. The establishment of the Institution for State Paupers will, it is anticipated, reduce the number of pupils during the coming year, but when the importance of this school as a part of the system of measures for the repression of Truancy is considered, there can be no question of the duty of our successors to sustain and foster this Institution.

In this connection we would again bear testimony to the beneficial working of the Truant Ordinance, and have to acknowledge the readiness with which the City Government have co-operated with us, by the appointment of a suitable person to attend to this subject. The supervision of this very important matter has been in faithful hands during the past year, and every case has received, it is believed, that careful consideration which its nature demanded. Very much will still continue to depend, as heretofore, upon the judicious enforcement of this Ordinance.

HIGH SCHOOL.

During the past year several changes have occurred among the teachers of this school.

At the end of the summer term, Miss Anna Webb resigned her situation as an Assistant, and her place was temporarily filled by Mrs. Woodward, who was succeeded by Miss Hannah A. Bryant.

At the close of the term ending in December, Mr. Onslow Hemmenway likewise resigned his situation as Assistant in the Male department, for the purpose of assuming the charge of a High School in another part of the State. The Committee after diligent inquiry and search, selected from a large number of applicants, Mr. Guilford S. Newcomb, who entered upon the discharge of his duties early in the succeeding term, and has as yet entirely fulfilled the expectations of the Committee, and vindicated their judgment in the selection.

Miss Anne Mitchell, the Female Principal, who had filled that station since its establishment, between two and three years ago, tendered her resignation during the Fall, to take effect at the end of the term in December. The necessity of rest was assigned as the reason of her withdrawal. The Committee desire to bear testimony to her faithfulness and efficiency as a teacher, and regret that her physical strength was insufficient to enable her to continue to discharge her arduous labors in a manner satisfactory to her conscientious sense of duty. As the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Miss Mitchell was regarded by the Committee as one of very great importance, a hasty appointment was deprecated. After an extended inquiry the Committee determined to seek the services of Miss Emma M. Converse, then Female Principal of the High School of Providence, and recommended to the Committee by competent authority, as in all respects a most desirable acquisition. After some negotiation Miss Converse accepted the proffered situation, and entered upon its duties at the beginning of the Winter term, and continues them with all the interest and zeal, of which her reputation gave assurance.

The school was thoroughly examined in its various departments in May and December. The results of these examinations were satisfactory in most of the branches pursued, especially in the higher branches. The classes in Geometry and Algebra were reported very favorably, while the class in Arithmetic, consisting of the first and second classes, which had been for some months reviewing the study, were not so flatteringly noticed. In the studies which belong peculiarly to a High School, the reports of the sub-committee are generally satisfactory, although not uniformly so. The Committee, in the the last Annual Report, had occasion to note a deficiency in this school, which is still observable. It was then remarked, that, as a general rule, in the lower branches of school education, those branches in which every successful applicant for admission to the High School, should be thoroughly drilled, the pupils of this school are sadly deficient. It is apparent that under the present course of study prescribed for the High School, the teachers cannot be held to much responsibility on this account. It appears that they generally teach well the branches peculiar to such a grade of school ; and the difficulty is, that the course of advanced studies is so large and various, that little time can be appropriated for the remedying of defects in rudimental branches. In the present condition of the school the Committee earnestly recommend some change in the course of studies prescribed. The policy of the Board for some years past has been decidedly to elevate the standard of the school by increasing the qualifications necessary for admission. They have hoped to be able to continue the present advanced course of study without change, by bringing up the Grammar schools to the desired condition; but they are now satisfied, that, for a time at least, it is best to work at both ends; at the same time to raise the Grammar schools and simplify the studies of the High School, and thus establish a proper relative position between the two. When this is accomplished, continued exertions devoted to the Grammar schools will be rewarded with further progress, and in the same degree the studies of the High School may be advanced, until both grades of schools attain a position, which the Committee can contemplate and exhibit with decided satisfaction. The present condition of things is unsound. A superficial knowledge of Latin, Greek, Geometry, Algebra and the Natural Sciences is utterly valueless, unless accompanied by a thorough understanding of, and proficiency in, the elementary branches of education. The Committee desire that the High School may be able to exhibit without any exceptions, good readers, accurate spellers, and proficient in Arithmetic, Grammar and Geography, whether the knowledge is acquired before or after entrance into this school; of course they would very much prefer that it should be acquired in a lower grade of school.

To illustrate their meaning more fully, the Committee would refer to the result of the examination in spelling in December. Twenty-five words were propounded by the Committee in a distinct and audible manner, and the pupils wrote them upon slips of paper provided. The words were of ordinary occurrence and suitable to the occasion.

The following is the list offered.

|             |               |              |
|-------------|---------------|--------------|
| Serrate.    | Kaleidoscope. | Turpitude.   |
| Atrocities. | Irascible.    | Ephemeral.   |
| Etiquette.  | Duteous.      | Carniverous. |
| Paralysis.  | Valleys.      | Suavity.     |
| Tyrannize.  | Compliance.   | Vaccination. |
| Colonnade.  | Concede.      | Frenzy.      |
| Diphthong.  | Sluice.       | Surge.       |
|             |               | Gauging.     |

It appears by the Report of the examining Committee that in the first class, numbering ten, the greatest number of errors of any individual was thirteen, and the least number seven. In the lowest class, numbering twenty-five, the greatest number of errors was twenty-two, and the least number four. The average per centage of correct answers in the school was as follows, viz:—

|               |     |                |     |
|---------------|-----|----------------|-----|
| First Class,  | .67 | Fifth Class,   | .60 |
| Second Class, | .70 | Sixth Class,   | .60 |
| Third Class,  | .61 | Seventh Class, | .53 |
| Fourth Class, | .55 |                |     |

The result is really surprising. The exercise is particularly noticed for the reason, that the report of the sub-committee on this branch was very full and detailed, and in a transferable form.

There seems to be no reason at present, at least, why instruction in this school should not be as thorough as can be desired. The number of teachers remains unchanged, while the number of pupils has been very greatly reduced. Two years since the average attendance was reported to be one hundred and eighty ; by the returns published in this report, it appears to have been during the year one hundred and eleven. Should the school in consequence of the policy of the Board, remain in its present reduced size, it is thought that the services of the fifth teacher may be dispensed with. Four teachers ought to be ample force for the proper management and conduct of the school in its present size.

The time for the examination of applicants for admission has been, as heretofore, in June and December. At the former examination the number of applicants was forty-four, and the number admitted was thirty-four, three of whom were not recommended by the High school Committee, but admitted by a vote of the Board upon other suggestion. At the December examination the number of applicants was thirty-eight, of whom only three were admitted. The fact of the admission of so very small a proportion of applicants at this time, of itself, requires some explanation ; but further, in consideration of the severe comments and strictures upon the conduct of the Committee, which have been publicly uttered and industriously circulated, the Committee deem it but an act of justice to themselves to set the matter forth in its true colors.

The examination was conducted by printed questions precisely as heretofore, during three years past at least, with no additions of subjects to be examined upon. The questions in the various branches were prepared by the members of the sub-committee on the High School, and at a meeting of this sub-committee were examined and amended, until it was agreed that they were in all respects proper in character. The questions do not differ materially from those proposed at the examination in June. In accordance with the desire of the Committee to elevate the standard of qualification for admission, it was intended before the examinations to submit questions in character about the same as in June, but to require a greater per centage of correct answers. Upon examination of the work of applicants an astonishing result was presented. In order to admit a single applicant the Committee found that instead of increasing the per centage of correct answers required, they must reduce it. In June, sixty-seven per cent, of correct answers were required; in December, sixty per cent. only were required, and even upon this reduced standard, only three fulfilled the requirement. The sub-committee on this school therefore recommended the admission of these three applicants only. The reduction of the number generally presented by the sub-committee was so startling, that in the Board great hesitation was manifested about confirming the action of the sub-committee, and the result of the discussion was the appointment of a special Committee, composed of no part of the members of the High School Committee, with instructions to examine the questions propounded to the applicants, and their answers thereto, and report whether or not it was expedient to make any additions to the list recommended by the High School Committee, and this sub-committee reported that they saw no reason to question the propriety or expediency of the action of the High School Committee, and recommended no amendment.

Upon the rendition of this report, the Board accepted the original report, and admitted three only of the thirty-eight applicants. Fortunately for the justification of the Committee against the censures of interested parties, the whole work of this examination, as of others previously, is in writing and carefully preserved. If any of the parents or friends of the rejected applicants felt aggrieved by the action of the Committee, the most prudent course for themselves, as well as just to the Committee, would have been to have inquired with a little more care into the merits of each case, before they stigmatized the conduct of the Board and the character of its members with such unmerited reproach. It is believed that if those interested and feeling themselves aggrieved, will take the trouble to examine the papers on file, few will be found disposed, after such examination, to take issue with the Committee upon the propriety of their action. The Committee, far from deprecating, invite investigation of this matter.

It is currently and flippantly said in public, "fill up the High School; make it as good as you can, but fill the seats at any rate; let the teachers be employed, since they are paid." The Committee do not subscribe to any such doctrine, and will not lend themselves to the execution of a policy which seems to them so pernicious and ruinous to the best interests of education. If we are to have a High School in name, let it be so in fact; and if the present corps of teachers is disproportionate to the number of scholars, let their number be reduced, and a portion of them, if necessary, transferred to a schools of a lower grade.

It will be seen that the amount of expense for repairs of Engine Houses, and purchase of leading hose, has exceeded the estimate of our predecessors, which outlay was rendered necessary for the proper renovation and repairs of the several Engines, and we are happy to say that they are now in a healthy and well regulated condition.

The amount expended for the construction of Reservoirs, is less than was recommended. Three Reservoirs have been added the past year, one on the West side of County, between William and Elm streets; one on Middle, West of Purchase street, and one on the North-West Corner of Walnut and South Second streets. Several others have been cleaned out and put in good condition—making thirty-eight Reservoirs.

On thorough examination Mechanic Engine, No. 6, was found to be very much out of order, and for many reasons no longer reliable as a suction Engine; and that it was not practicable to retain it longer in the service as such. It was so reported to the proper authorities, and under their instructions a contract has been made for the purchase of a new Engine to supply its place.

With the year just passed, commenced the operation of the new Ordinance of the City for the government of the Fire Department. As a whole, we think the Ordinance answers very well the purpose for which it was intended—although some of the provisions are very objectionable. The twentieth section does not seem to meet the views of the Firemen—is expensive to the city—causes much unnecessary trouble to the officers of this Board, and is of no practicable advantage. Its repeal is therefore recommended. The appointing power, we think, should be delegated to the Chief, or Board of Engineers, as its present slow process is detrimental to the Department, and is attended with much unnecessary form.

The Department has been called out twenty-nine times, eleven of which were false alarms. The amount of property destroyed by fire as near as can be ascertained, is $16,500. Insurance on ditto, $8,700. Five houses, five barns, shops &c., have been destroyed, two of which are supposed to have been purposely fired. We are happy to report that no person has sustained any serious bodily injury in discharge of his duty.

The department is not entirely full, nor has it been at any time during the year; and it is a cause of very serious regret that our citizens are so unwilling to be enrolled in the Department. It consisted of three hundred and seventy-four men, March 1, 1854. Had the several companies been full, it would have numbered four hundred and twenty men, belonging to eight Engines. In 1847, it numbered eleven Engines, and five hundred and thirty-five men. It will be observed that while the limits of our City are fast extending, and the danger of fires increasing in a still greater ratio, the Department has been very materially reduced; say three engines and one hundred and fifteen men. This decrease of the Department we consider a matter of great importance, and as such we recommend it to your early investigation.

The estimates of the expense of the Department for the ensuing year, are

|----------------------------------------|-------------|
| For pay of Firemen to 5th mo. 1, 1854, | $6,000 00  |
| For new engine now contracted for,     | 2,000 00    |
| For construction of Reservoirs,        | 2,000 00    |
| For incidentals,                       | 1,500 00    |
|                                        | <hr/>       |
|                                        | $11,500 00 |

Should the foregoing meet the approbation of the City Council, there will be required for the Department an appropriation of ten thousand one hundred thirty-four dollars and forty-three cents, exclusive of the balance on hand.

In conclusion, we are desirous of expressing our thanks to the entire department for its very prompt and efficient co-operation, and our gratitude for the good order and harmony that have happily prevailed.

Per order of the Board,

GEORGE WILSON,
Chief Engineer.

This number exceeds by more than one third that of the previous year. They remained in the Alms House 5705 weeks. Of the admissions, eighteen were of boys sentenced to the work house for truancy from school; seventeen were of men under sentence for intemperance. The number at present in the Alms House is 145; of these one hundred and five have no settlement in the Commonwealth, and may be removed to the State Alms House when it is completed. Of the truant boys three remain. The average number of inmates per month is 107 1-2, six more than during the previous year. The value of supplies for the family, exclusive of fuel, is $5,078.94. This being divided by 5,705, the number of weeks spent in the house by the inmates, gives 89 cents as the additional weekly cash expense of supporting every new inmate. Deducting from $11,940.87 the amount received for sales, and the cost of improvements, viz: $3,029.96, there remain $8,910.91, which being divided by 5705 gives $1.56 as the cash expense of weekly support of each inmate.

The Farm, which consists of about 45 acres of tillage and 30 acres of pasturage land, is increasing in productiveness. Its chief products during the year have been as follows:

|           |              |         |                |
|-----------|--------------|---------|----------------|
| Corn,     | 515 bushels. | Onions, | 42 bushels.    |
| Oats,     | 387 "        | Milk,   | 14,223 quarts. |
| Beans,    | 6½ "         | Beef,   | 5,564 lbs.     |
| Potatoes, | 275 "        | Pork,   | 4,251 "        |
| Turnips,  | 148 "        | Veal,   | 682 "          |
| Beets,    | 130 "        |         |                |

The value of produce consumed by the family and sold is $2,448.69.

Of oakum 3005 lbs. have been sold. Twenty-two hundred and ninety-eight pounds have been made. There remain on hand 393 lbs. oakum. Stock on hand 434 lbs.

Of salt sold during the year 609 bushels. The salt-works had become much out of repair, and as the new road around the Point made it necessary that an important part should be removed, it was judged best to remove them altogether. This has been done, and the lumber sold.

Out of the Alms House, aid has been given to two hundred and eighty families, containing in the aggregate 1,098 persons.

In the report of last year, the Overseers of the Poor recommended as a matter of much importance, the establishment of a Farm and Manual Labor School for boys. The opinions there expressed have been strengthened by the experience of another year. The project received the emphatic approval of the Mayor, and was favorably reported upon by a committee of the City Council. We suppose it will therefore be considered to claim the early attention of the present Council, and be immediately established. So that henceforth this city may do its duty of giving those boys whose guardianship is providentially transferred to it, suitable care and education.

The State is about to open certain Alms Houses for the reception of those persons needing support, who have no legal settlement in this Commonwealth. The Alms House for this section is located in Middleborough, and it will be the duty of the Overseers of the Poor to have all persons needing aid and not belonging here, transported there, or to assume for the City the entire burden of their support. One class of these persons—the sick—have hitherto been provided with complete hospital accommodations, at the Alms House, and it may be deemed proper that a portion of that class, the seamen, should continue to receive such relief there. It may be considered to be a duty of New Bedford to provide for them within her own limits and from her own resources. The expense of such relief during the past year has been $1.00 per week for each person. Of this amount, 49 cents will be received from the State, this year, but not again, as no allowance or provision will hereafter be made by the State out of its own Alms Houses. This amount then is the additional expense which the City will incur by assuming the entire support of the sick seamen; an aggregate probably of $1,000. Should it appear expedient that this should be done, it will be necessary that the City Council authorize the Overseers of the Poor so to do, by vote.

The grounds in front of the Alms House remain nearly in their natural state. It would be a great improvement and ornament the establishment much to have them leveled and properly laid out. To perform the work it is thought best by this Board to hire laborers, as the inmates of the Alms House are mostly unfit for labor, and what labor they may perform is needed upon the farm.

For the above purpose they recommend an appropriation of $1,000, and for the ordinary expenditure of the coming year $11,000.

Respectfully submitted,

In behalf of the Overseers of the Poor,

WM. A. GORDON, Sec'y of the Board.

FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

To the Mayor and Aldermen, and the Common Council of the City of New Bedford:

GENTLEMEN:

IN the Fifth Section of the Ordinance for the establishment and government of the Free Public Library, it is provided, that the Trustees shall annually, in the month of March, lay before the City Council a detailed Report of their doings and of the condition of the Library.

In accordance with this regulation, the Trustees of the New Bedford Free Public Library now present to the constituted authorities of the city their Second Annual Report.

When the First Report of the board was laid before the City Council, the Library had been but three weeks in operation. But in that brief period, most encouraging evidence had been given that the institution promised to be useful and popular. In that Report the Trustees say, "the evidence that the institution has met a great public want, and that its establishment is in a high degree satisfactory to the people, is ample and gratifying."

“ The Library has been opened to the public twenty-one days. During that short period, one thousand five hundred and ninety-one books have been taken from the Library, by seven hundred and eighty-nine individuals. At all hours of the day, and especially in the evening, our tables are surrounded by quiet and interested readers. A striking and delightful feature of our operations, is the large number of females who visit the rooms both as takers of our books and readers of our periodicals. Nearly one-half of the names upon our books are those of females. The convenient location of the Library, the liberality of its arrangements, and the quiet and decorum which pervade the place, have attracted thither that class of the population which has hitherto seldom been found visiting our public libraries.”

It gives the present managers of the Library much pleasure to be able to state, that the hopes and expectations set forth in the foregoing extract from the Report of their predecessors have been fully realized. The promises excited by the three weeks experience which they communicated, have been fully realized by the results of the twelve months operations which we now lay before you.

During the year, ending March 3d, there have been taken from the Library twenty-two thousand six hundred and seven volumes, by twenty-three hundred and seventy-three different takers.

The other encouraging and interesting facts and features which the brief experience of the former board allowed them to communicate, our more extended and enlarged proceedings permit us to re-affirm with confidence and satisfaction.

Our rooms continue to be the resort, not only of the “takers,” but also of the readers of our books ; and the choice periodicals which are found upon our tables are attracting thither a large number of our population, particularly the young.

The proportion of females who avail themselves of this new and most welcome source of rational recreation, and of mental and moral improvement, continues to be large.

It is a most gratifying fact, and one that is highly creditable to the inhabitants of our city, that during the year, no indecorum, no breach of the rules for maintaining order, quiet, and neatness in the rooms, have interfered with their pleasant and profitable use by any portion of our people.

With much anxiety, with some distrust, and with a deep sense of the great importance belonging to the subject, our predecessors in office directed your attention, and the attention of the public to the fact, that an institution, founded and managed upon a principle so comprehensive and liberal as this, could have no useful or protracted existence unless sustained, not only by the liberality of the city, but also by the interested and constant efforts of all participators in its privileges, in giving efficacy to its regulations. In their report, they thus forcibly present the considerations which demand of the public this constant and careful regard for those rules upon the observance of which the very existence of the Library depends.

“With a plan of delivery and use thus free and comprehensive, it must be obvious to all, that the operations of the Library can only be sustained by a most rigid observance of the rules which have been made for its government. The rules must be observed, or disorder, decay and dissolution will soon attend upon this enlightened and praiseworthy effort to open to the people the avenues to a more extensive and genial culture. The property belongs to the city; it must be cared for and preserved—in its use all have equal rights, which will be infringed upon if any fail promptly to return within the specified time, the books they may have taken. Thus it will be seen, that there is a double responsibility resting upon all who visit the rooms of the City Library and become takers of its books. The Trustees would earnestly and confidently express the hope, that this responsibility will be deeply felt, and that every one will bear in mind, that the institution cannot be sustained, unless there shall be found a hearty co-operation on the part of the inhabitants, in the enforcement of the regulations which have been instituted for its safe and profitable management.”

These earnest and needful cautions and exhortations are not now revived and repeated, because they have been unheeded by those who have visited our rooms and taken away our books.

On the contrary, to an extent beyond the highest expectations of those who instituted these regulations, and who based the operations of the library upon the most comprehensive plan, the rules for the prompt return of the books and for their careful use have been cheerfully acquiesced in, and observed.

The great and leading feature in the conception and management of the Library, has been, by the experience of the year which has passed since its opening, fully established.

The records of our Librarian sustain in the fullest manner the truth of the idea upon which the action of the legislature and of the city was founded—that a Library could be so managed, as to admit all the people to a participation in its benefits. So few in number are the books missing from our shelves, and so carefully, in general, have they been used while in the hands of the takers, that it is not deemed necessary, in this report, to give in detail, the very few instances in which the regulations of the Library have been violated. The Trustees would again express the great satisfaction with which they lay these statements before the City Council. The people have demonstrated, not only by the great extent to which the books have been used, but also by their heedfulness in the use and punctual return of the volumes taken, that they can be reliably entrusted with the care of the property which the enlightened liberality of the public has set apart for their recreation and improvement.

Still a renewal of the statements and cautions of the former board upon this important point may not be uncalled for. The declaration that "the rules must be observed, or disorder, decay and dissolution will soon attend upon this enlightened and praiseworthy effort to open to the people the avenues to a more extensive and genial culture," cannot be too often or too forcibly impressed upon the minds of the people. USE CAREFULLY, RETURN PROMPTLY—these are the two fundamental rules upon which the prosperity of the Library must rest. When these rules shall be disregarded, the Library must cease to exist.

No change has been made in the rules and regulations established by the former board for the government of the Library. These have been laid before you, and printed by your order. They are contained in the appendix to the first report of the Trustees, and to that report the members of the Council who may desire to become acquainted with their details or more familiar with the history of the Library are respectfully referred.

Thus have we, by the experience of a period long enough to confirm every anticipation and dispel every doubt, demonstrated the practicability and the utility of a Free Public Library.

To repeat the words of the former board—"Our Library has become one of the institutions of the city."

It has become a valuable, and will soon be generally considered as an indispensable auxiliary in the great work of popular education.

It has become incorporated, both in idea and in fact, into the catalogue of subjects demanding the fostering care and annual support of the municipal government.

Its claim for such attention and support, are founded upon principles which lie at the foundation of our republican institutions.

To train and enlighten the public mind is a work to which a liberal portion of the public wealth must be devoted; and as being in harmony with this idea, and as the cap-stone of our beautiful system of public education, the Public Library has claims upon all whose aim is the promotion of the general welfare.

Such was the theory when the work was begun by the State and completed by the City—such is now the fact, demonstrated by our experience, and placed beyond the reach of doubt or cavil.

Upon the minds of the Trustees, the result to which we have arrived, after the operations of the year, have produced the most undoubting conviction that the Free Public Library is an instrumentality from which our community are deriving great and enduring advantages.

We would give our most unqualified sanction to the principle upon which it is established and sustained.

We hereby bear testimony to the practicability of the plan of its operation.

We would with the earnestness of a strong desire and a most thorough conviction, lay before you the claims of the institution to your continued attention and liberal support.

Its reputable and profitable support, demands but a small pecuniary outlay; and it is confidently believed that from no portion of our annual appropriations of an equal amount will the people derive more satisfactory and enduring advantages.

The establishment of a Free Public Library, by the municipal authorities of New Bedford—the pioneer undertaking of the Commonwealth—has conferred an honorable distinction upon our beloved city, a distinction which it is hoped and believed we shall continue to deserve, by giving it an enlightened and liberal support.

It now devolves upon the Trustees to present to your notice and consideration, the pecuniary affairs of the institution.

Annexed to this report you will find an abstract of the expenditures of the Library for the past year.

It is believed that the outlay of the board has been governed by the strictest economy, and by a constant recognition, on the part of the Trustees, of the true principles which should guide in the administration of the affairs of a Public Library.

The Trustees would, in the discharge of what they believe to be their duty, distinctly present to your consideration the fact, that the Library cannot be supported in a manner creditable to the city and profitable to the people, without a larger appropriation than was made for its support the past year.

We assume that the arrangements made by the Trustees and sanctioned by the City Council, are such as are best calculated for carrying into effect the object had in view by the State and City authorities in giving the sanction of law to the establishment of Libraries for the people.

The Library must be opened every day and evening, (Sundays, of course, excepted.)

It must be so situated as to be of convenient access.

It must be placed in rooms large enough for its convenient arrangement, and that “readers” as well as “takers” may be accommodated, and those rooms must be well warmed and lighted.

The Librarian must always be in attendance to select and register the books and take care of the property.

These are the principal sources of expenditure, independent of what strictly belongs to the “maintenance” and “increase” of the Library.

They cannot be dispensed with if we would render the Library valuable to the inhabitants.

Allow us to present them in detail, that you may see how necessary it is that a larger appropriation should be allowed.

We give the actual expenditure per annum of the Library, as shown by the records.

|                                             |       |
|---------------------------------------------|-------|
| Librarian,                                  | $400 |
| Rent,                                       | 240   |
| Gas,                                        | 100   |
| Fuel,                                       | 50    |
| Stationery, including paper to cover books, | 25    |
| Insurance, 3 per cent. on $4000,           | 120   |
| Sundry contingent expenses,                 | 15    |
|                                             | <hr/> |
|                                             | $950 |

We may be allowed to suggest, that to this sum

there should be added one hundred dollars for the purpose of increasing the Librarian's salary that amount.

The salary heretofore allowed that officer is an inadequate compensation for the time he is required to devote to the Library, and the many duties he is called upon to perform.

In this estimate the "maintenance and increase" of the Library are wholly unprovided for. And yet there is not a dollar of that outlay that can be dispensed with. If we find a suitable building for the Library, the expense of insurance could be saved, but situated as it is, in a dangerous because convenient location, it must be insured, and the premium is high.

It will then most clearly be seen, that to "maintain" the Library a larger amount is called for, to say nothing of its "increase."

If we restrict the word "maintain" as used in the law of the State, so that it shall only embrace the idea of keeping the Library up, so that its value shall not be reduced, quite a large annual outlay would be demanded for that purpose alone.

Assuming the Library at this time to have a certain value, to "maintain" it is to keep it at the same value.

The books are continually wearing out, and the value thus destroyed must be restored by repairs and purchase.

The re-binding of books is a source of constant and large outlay. Many of the books, because of constant use, soon become too much worn for renovation, and their places must be supplied.

Notwithstanding the greatest care, some books are lost.

Upon the whole Library the work of deterioration is going on in many forms, and in a Library like ours that work must be rapid.

Our Library is open and free to our whole population.

The number of takers and books taken during the year has been already stated.

It is plain to be seen that by such an active use of a Library, the wear and tear of the books must be great.

The periodicals, to be preserved must be bound, and many volumes must be bound every year.

It is evident, therefore, that to “maintain” the Library, that is, to keep it from deterioration, will require the outlay of quite a large sum. What that amount should be cannot be accurately determined.

The Library is estimated to be worth between five and six thousand dollars.

In our opinion it will take a sum equal to five per cent. upon its value to maintain it in its present condition.

Taking then the lowest estimate of value, it will require two hundred and fifty dollars to keep it from decay.

We want, therefore, the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars to “maintain” the Library, independent of the outlay of keeping it open for the use of the inhabitants.

But we must not only “maintain,” we must “increase.” The law of the Commonwealth contemplates that both shall be done; and by providing for an “increase” recognizes a principle which lies at the foundation of a popular Library.

The law of increase, which should determine the accessions to a Library established and maintained by the authorities of a large city, under the sanction of a statute of the Commonwealth, it would be difficult perhaps to define.

The subject is too broad and comprehensive to admit of a proper discussion here; and such discussion is not now called for.

It would take many years, with annual appropriations as liberal as the Legislature could be induced to allow, or the city government to make, to bring up the Free Public Library of New Bedford even to the lowest standard that might be established for an institution for such a noble purpose.

There are thousands of volumes of most valuable books, without which any Library must be incomplete, which must be, we fear, for many years strangers to our shelves.

With any appropriation to which we may reasonably expect the municipal sanction, we can add to our Library but a small portion of the books of a high and valuable character which are annually published.

Without therefore paying any further regard to the general principle, we would come at once to the practical question.

What sum is it expedient for the city of New Bedford to appropriate annually, for the "increase" of the Free Public Library?

The practical working of this public institution, the offspring of the united action of legislative and municipal wisdom, has given it a position in the public estimation, that will secure the sanction of the people to a liberal appropriation for keeping, maintaining and increasing it.

What sum then would it be wise for you to raise for the "increase" of your Library?

|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------|
| We have seen that it cannot be kept open so as to accommodate the public for a sum less than | $1,050 |
| That to "maintain" its value will require                                                    |         |
| the further sum of                                                                           | 250     |

|---------------------------------|----------------|
| Which two items make the sum of | $1,300 |
|---------------------------------|----------------|

Should the sum of two thousand dollars be appropriated for the purpose, it would admit of an expenditure of seven hundred dollars for the increase of the Library.

This cannot be pronounced a large item, when we consider the object to which it is to be devoted, and would form but an inconsiderable addition to the appropriations of a city whose annual expenditures exceed one hundred thousand dollars.

If the principles and statements of this report are true, and may be looked upon as reliable data by which a judgment may be formed as to the importance of a public Library, the appropriation of the sum of two thousand dollars for its management, maintenance and increase, cannot be considered as unreasonable or improper. Let it occupy its true place in the minds of the gentlemen who compose the city government, and be allowed a proper degree of their attention, and no one will be disposed to devote to its support a sum less than we have named.

Surely it will not be asserted that the celebration of our Nation's Birth Day is of greater importance than the support of a Library, free to all the people every day in the year. An appropriation, equal to what has been for many years annually devoted to the former object, would, it is believed, give to the Library, nearly, if not quite, the sum we have thought demanded for its support.

It has been supposed by some that by the provisions of the statute, no sum exceeding twenty-five cents on each ratable poll can be raised by the city for the purposes of a Public Library. But it is believed that this is not the true construction of the statute.

Legal advice, as authoritative as any afforded by the city, was taken by the former Board upon this point, and the opinion was given which has since that time governed the city in its action with regard to the Library, that the restricted action provided for in the second section of the statute, has reference only to the "maintenance and increase" of the Library itself.

Such a construction of the law allows of an appropriation for all required expenditures, excepting the renewal of the books and the increase of the Library, in addition to the amount provided for in the second section of the statute.

The several items of expenditure we have given, to wit: Librarian, rent, &c., amounting to the sum of ten hundred and fifty dollars, may all be provided for, it is believed, under the authority given in the first section, in which towns and cities are empowered to "establish and maintain" a Public Library, AND to "provide suitable rooms therefor."

This is, we are confident, the true construction of the statute. The amount of the appropriation for books—that is, the establishment, maintenance and increase of the Library, is fixed at a ratio, that shall not be exceeded; but the preservation and custody and all expenditures for the convenient use of the books by the inhabitants, and their delivery and exchange, are to be provided for in such manner as the municipal authorities may determine.

Under this reasonable construction of the statute, a thousand dollars can be raised to make good the wear and tear of the books and purchase new ones, and in addition thereto, a sum sufficient to cover the expenses of management.

It is a pleasant part of our duty to inform you that several hundred volumes of books have been added to the Library through the enlightened liberality of our citizens and other "friends of knowledge, morality and religion."

Our regulations require that "a record shall be kept of all donations to the Library, and in the annual report honorable mention shall be made of all who have in any way contributed to its means."

To our fellow citizens whose official positions have given them access to public documents and works published by public authority, we are indebted for many valuable publications of this character. We have placed much reliance upon this source of profitable increase, and the attention hitherto bestowed upon us by those of our citizens who have been honored by the gift of office, permits us to hope that we shall continue to receive from gentlemen thus distinguished many and valuable contributions.

We have received from the Smithsonian Institute its valuable and splendid publications.

Catalogues have been received from nearly all the principal Libraries in the country.

The following is a list of the individuals and associations whose contributions have been received by the Trustees :

SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE of the City of New Bedford, for the closing municipal year, in compliance with established usage, respectfully render the subjoined Report of the condition of their department of the public service.

The Committee claim to be fully conscious of the grave responsibility which ought and does attach to every member of its Board in view of the important interest intrusted to their sole care and management, but at the same time are compelled to admit that, as a natural and necessary result of the present condition of the Board, so much time and attention has not been devoted to school interests as their relative and intrinsic consequence seem to entitle them. When it is considered, regarding the matter in a strictly pecuniary view, that the school establishment involves an expenditure of about forty thousand dollars per annum, it becomes at once apparent that it is an interest worthy of much of the public care and regard; and that conviction is vastly strengthened when the nature and character of the object is regarded, to which this great expenditure is directed. It is obvious therefore that the care and management of their interests should be confided to such as may be enabled, from the nature and circumstances of their mode of life and occupation, to devote a considerable portion of their best thought and labor to the advancement of school education among us.

With this belief weighing upon them, many members of the Board have long been of the opinion that the public interests in this behalf would be promoted by a reconstruction and reorganization of the Committee. No formal discussion of this matter has ever been held by the Board, nor does it seem necessary in order to render a suggestion of this kind proper. It is but a suggestion presented to the public mind, and especially addressed to the incoming Board as one of sufficient importance to arrest attention, and challenge careful examination. In the minds of many of the Committee the time has come, when the magnitude and increasing extent of the school interest, together with the constant advance of the public mind in educational matters, absolutely require, in order to obtain results in the system creditable to the city and worthy of the great expenditure, that a new officer be attached to this department of the public service, who shall be styled "Superintendent of Public Schools," and whose duty shall consist in devoting his whole time, talents and accomplishments to the general supervision of the public schools, and the improvement of their condition. The experiment has been tried elsewhere with eminent success, and it is for this community upon intelligent reflection to pronounce whether or not it is expedient for us to seek the same advantages, which have elsewhere followed the establishment of the office.

The organization of the Board remains the same as during years past. Sub-committees have been assigned to the various grades of schools, who, together with the Chairman of the Board, have had the principal superintendence and control of their respective schools. Much time has been devoted at intervals during the year to visiting the schools. The examinations have been thorough, and the Committee feel they can form a tolerably correct opinion of the actual and relative condition of the different schools in the various grades. The general condition of the schools is commendable. The advancement or deterioration of a school system is not, in its nature, apparent to casual or occasional observers, if reviewed only at short intervals, and therefore from year to year the community must rely upon the report of those to whom from their connection with the system their real condition is necessarily revealed. The committee find pleasure in reporting decided improvements in many respects, though the general actual standard yet falls far below the ideal standard which the Committee have held before their minds. Almost uniformly teachers have received the suggestions of the Committee in matters of discipline and teaching in the spirit in which they were offered, and followed them closely and cheerfully.

In the pages next following are enumerated all the public schools in the city, together with the names of the present teachers, and the average and per centage of attendance in the respective schools during the past year.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

These schools receive children between the ages of four and seven years. The Superintendent of schools in the city of Boston, in a late report, says unhesitatingly, that in general children of this age "cannot study much in the ordinary meaning of the word study." The Physiologist would show us that they ought not to. But yet this period of life is not by any means to be wasted, so far as it is spent in the school room. Nature dictates the true method and order of instruction. The perceptive faculties are alive and on the alert, while the reflective are dormant; and the memory is impressible and retentive long before the reason is ready for vigorous work. While much of the time should be devoted to acquiring a knowledge of things and the ingenuity of the teacher should be taxed to impart this pleasantly and often recreatively, the progress of the child in what is called studies should be considered satisfactory if his main acquirements on leaving the Primary School are a clear enunciation, a correct and easy style of reading, and an accurate spelling of the more ordinary words. At any rate whatever else is sought, these acquirements are to be deemed the only essentials. And the teacher ought never to forget that in this grade of schools, at least, it is far more important how their pupils are taught, than how much they are taught.

There are now seven schools of this grade in our city. The report of the sub-committee speaks of their condition as follows:—

Maxfeld Street sustains its good character and is conducted in a manner entirely satisfactory.

Charles Street is the largest of the grade in the city and has suffered during a portion of the year from the absence through sickness of its Principal, but there are indications of future improvement.

William Street has been steadily improving for the last few years; its teachers are industrious and have wrought out what they deserve—an excellent school.

Bush Street continues to maintain a position entirely satisfactory.

Sixth Street has very much improved during the past year and it is now in a satisfactory condition.

Griffin Street is a pleasant school to visit, and its exercises are second to no other school of the grade.

Parker Street. This is a new school, and being crowded and without a class room has been in a somewhat confused state since its establishment. It has a faithful teacher and though its present rank is not high, it is confidently hoped that under more favoring circumstances it will rank with the other schools of this class.

In concluding their report the Primary Committee say that they do not remember a time when there has been better cause to be satisfied with all the teachers and with the condition of these schools.

INTERMEDIAL SCHOOLS.

The Committee are glad to find evidence of improved condition in most, if not in quite all of the schools. The past year has brought about many changes in the composition and arrangement of these schools, which must be taken into account in estimating their progress.

The Hill Primary and Intermedial did not in all respects quite meet the wishes of the Committee in the intermedial department. The exercises in Arithmetic did not evidence quite as much promptness and general intelligence on the part of the pupils as could be desired. The reading was not quite equal to last years performance. In Geography the school stands number seven on the list. Much allowance must however be made for the fact that the school has been drained of its best scholars to supply the Hill and Parker street Grammar Schools.

The Grove Primary and Intermedial the Committee are glad to report in an improved condition. In Arithmetic the exercises were good. In reading quite satisfactory. In Geography the school stands ninth and lowest in the list. The order of the school is remarkably good and this school is now second to none in the city in this respect.

The Maxfeld Street Intermedial has suffered by a large draft of its best scholars into the Parker Street school. The efficiency of the teachers is strikingly manifest in the manner with which this school has regained its lost ground. In Arithmetic it did well. In Geography it stands third, and its order and discipline is very commendable.

The Kempton Street Intermedial is reported in very good condition. In Geography it stands first, and in Arithmetic the examination was satisfactory. Last year some complaint was made of the reading—an objection which the Committee are happy to state, is now entirely removed.

The Charles Street Intermedial appears to have fallen off a little in the department of reading. In Arithmetic and Geography (in the latter study this school stands fourth) its position is creditable.

The William Street Intermedial is in the same satisfactory condition as last year.

The Bush Street Intermedial is in very excellent order. In Arithmetic particularly, the classes were much in advance of some of the other schools, and exhibited a promptness and intelligence highly creditable to the teachers.

The Sixth Street Intermedial school is reported very satisfactory. In Geography it is one of the highest on the list. In Reading it is spoken of as improving, and generally as to its order and discipline it is such as the Committee desire.

The new Parker Street Intermedial cannot be compared with any past standard, but from the reports of the various sub-committees, the Committee are led to indulge the hope that it will take the highest rank among the Intermedial Schools.

MIXED SCHOOL.

This school, as our regulations provide, is for "pupils of any age whose continuance in any Primary, Intermedial or Grammar school, shall by reason of dullness, disobedience, insubordination, or from any other cause, be deemed prejudicial to the same school." It was commenced as a school for both sexes, but the number of girls attending being very inconsiderable, the committee deemed it expedient under the circumstances, to change it to a boys school only. The project of a separate school for girls has however been deemed worthy of consideration by those most acquainted with the demand made for some relief of other grades of schools.

The Mixed school has, as the Committee believe, been productive of beneficial results, both to the other schools and to those who have been its pupils. Gratifying instances, not a few, of changed manners, and sudden mental quickening, have been brought to the attention of those more particularly acquainted with its history. The school is reported at the last examination as appearing well and exhibiting marks of continued advancement.

The high appreciation which past Committees and the present Board have had of the labors of the Principal, is most significantly shown by the successive additions to his salary, which is now established at the sum paid our Grammar masters, after the same length of session. The Committee on this school, in their Report, press upon the attention of the Board the necessity of better accommodations for this school, in reference to which we shall speak in another connection.

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

It is very gratifying to the Committee to be able this year to present a more detailed and thorough account of these important schools than has heretofore been done.

It is evident that upon these schools rests the main edifice of our Common School system, and that no care and expense upon the High School can compensate the lack of thorough training here. The early age at which a large proportion of the scholars are taken from the Primary and Intermedial schools, necessarily leaves the work of Education very incomplete. It is to the Grammar schools that the public very properly look for the correction and supply of the errors and deficiencies inseparable from schools of lower grades, and it is not too much to say that if the Grammar schools are once established upon the footing they ought to occupy, it would follow as a matter of course, that the preparatory schools would be compelled to come up to the standard thus established, and the High School would be free to crown the work with the success the Committee so earnestly desire.

The result of the several examinations in the various branches of study taught in the Grammar schools, is given in the report of the several sub-committees detailed upon this duty. In some branches it was possible to obtain a tabular view of the relative standing of each school computed from the per centage of correct answers to the same series of questions put to each school. When this was impracticable from the nature of the study, or from any other cause, the general impression of the examiner has been more or less minutely stated. It is from these reports that the Committee have made up their general estimate.

ARITHMETIC.

The three upper classes in each school were examined by means of printed questions for the solution of which one hour and a half was allowed to each class. These questions were fewer in number, and susceptible of solution with fewer figures, than those heretofore given, and were intended rather to test the reasoning powers of the pupils than their readiness in calculation. The remaining classes were examined orally.

The following table exhibits the result in the different schools. Four in the examiner's scale indicate a satisfactory result, and was, with the exception of a few cases, of entire correctness in the written exercises, and of unusual excellence in the oral examination, the highest number used.

The average in each is obtained by dividing the aggregate credits of the whole school by the number examined.

|                                |      |       |
|--------------------------------|------|-------|
| Bush Street, girls,            | 3.2  | No. 1 |
| Grove, boys and girls,         | 3.1  | " 2   |
| Bush Street, boys,             | 3.   | " 3   |
| Parker Street, boys and girls, | 2.56 | " 4   |
| Middle Street, boys,           | 2.53 | " 5   |
| Hill, boys and girls,          | 2.4  | " 6   |
| Charles Street, girls,         | 2.2  | " 7   |

In view, however, of the necessary differences in the oral examinations of the lower classes, and also from the consideration that the teachers should hardly be held equally responsible for the new material thrown into their schools, the sub-committee have doubted whether on the whole, a just estimate of the condition of the schools might not be gained by a comparison of the three upper classes who were examined as above stated. By this standard the schools would rank as follows:—

|--------------------------------|------|-------|
| Grove, boys and girls,         | 4.1  | No. 1 |
| Bush Street, girls,            | 3.7  | “ 2   |
| Bush Street, boys,             | 2.86 | “ 3   |
| Parker Street, boys and girls, | 2.86 | “ 4   |
| Middle Street, boys,           | 2.3  | “ 5   |
| Hill, boys and girls,          | 2.1  | “ 6   |
| Charles Street, girls,         | 2.   | “ 7   |

The Committee are glad to state that there has been a perceptible improvement in the absolute condition of the schools in this department. Especially is this manifest in the thoroughness with which the lower classes have been taught. The sixth class in the Bush Street boy's school, taught by the second Assistant, deserves honorable mention as a model class of this grade.

SPELLING.

The examination in this study was also conducted in writing, and the exercises were confined to the four highest classes of each school. Four lists of twelve words each were given, one to each class.

The Committee are considerably disappointed at the result of the examination, as it was known that in some, at least, if not in all of the Grammar schools, the study of Orthography had been pursued with increased interest during the past year.

The following table gives the per centage of correct answers to each school and the grade of the schools:

|                                |        |         |
|--------------------------------|--------|---------|
| Bush Street, girls,            | 43 1-2 | No. 1   |
| Parker Street, boys and girls, | 41     | " 2     |
| Charles Street, girls,         | 39 1-2 | " 3     |
| Hill, boys and girls,          | 36     | " 4     |
| Grove, boys and girls,         | 30     | " 5     |
| Bush Street, boys, {           | 27 1-2 | " 6 & 7 |
| Middle Street, }               |        |         |

The following were the list of words selected :

It will be observed that many of the above words are of difficult orthography, and the exercises was, as it was intended to be, a severe test of the pupil's proficiency. No words, however, were used but such as were to be found in the spelling and reading books in use.

While the Committee believe that this most important study is by no means overlooked in the Grammar schools, they feel obliged to declare that more time and greater effort is still needed for the attainment of a competent and satisfactory knowledge of Orthography.

GEOGRAPHY.

The examination in Geography was generally satisfactory. The per centage of correct answers was large in all the schools, and the difference in their standing (with one exception) trifling. That exception, the Grove school, has suffered a change of Principal during the past year, and deserves that allowance should be made.

The table of results is as follows:

|                                |      |       |
|--------------------------------|------|-------|
| Bush Street, boys,             | .908 | No. 1 |
| Charles Street, girls,         | .907 | " 2   |
| Middle Street, boys,           | .900 | " 3   |
| Hill, boys and girls,          | .882 | " 4   |
| Bush Street, girls,            | .879 | " 5   |
| Parker Street, boys and girls, | .874 | " 6   |

WRITING.

The attainment of the schools is very satisfactory. The Bush Street boys school maintains itself at the head of the list. The writing at this school is highly creditable to the teacher. The Grove school holds the next place, and after that, four other schools, viz: the Bush Street girls, Charles Street, Hill and Parker Street, present a nearly equal proficiency. The Middle Street school was not examined. In the Bush Street girls school, which stood lowest last year, the Committee with pleasure report a marked improvement.

GRAMMAR.

In Grammar no tabular comparison of the schools has been made by the sub-committee, but the classes were very thoroughly examined, and a detailed account of the condition of each class in every school furnished.

From this it appears that the two highest classes in the Bush Street girls school, passed the most satisfactory examination of any, and that the teachers of these two classes are deserving of honorable mention. The Charles Street school passed a creditable examination in all its classes. The Grove school maintained an average rank of proficiency which deserves commendation. In the Middle Street, Parker Street, Hill and Bush Street boys schools there was considerable inequality in the recitations of the classes, some of the pupils appearing to be good grammarians, while others were very deficient, and though the exceptional classes and pupils deserve great credit, the general standing of these schools in Grammar, is not what the Committee desire, or are altogether content with.

READING.

In this no tabular view is given. The principal faults observed were an unpleasant formality and stiffness of manner, and a deficiency in the knowledge of the use and properties of marks, stops, capitals, &c. The reading was in general satisfactory. But the Committee would take this opportunity while giving credit for past progress, to remind the teachers of the several schools, that in this department perfection lies afar off, and that no pains bestowed upon it can possibly be superfluous.

HISTORY.

All the schools were examined in this branch, and the general result was quite satisfactory. The inequalities which became manifest in the course of the examination—some classes of the same grade having completed the study of the text-book in use, while others had only advanced three or four sections — prevented to the Committee the use of any one set of questions, consequently no tabular view of comparative standing was possible. The method of instruction is very different in different schools, and between teachers in the same school. Some classes have apparently been trained to commit to memory large portions of the text, others to store up a mass of isolated facts. In none of the classes was there manifest that practical habit of study which classifies events and draws from historical narration a selected and consistent sequence. The recitations were too entirely an exercise of memory, and not of reasoning. This is undoubtedly owing to the imperfection of the text-book employed.

It is therefore the more desirable that the teachers should earnestly labor to supply the deficiency, and should accustom their pupils to correct for themselves the various incidents of the discovery and progress of this country, in such manner that they shall carry from the school room, not a mere mass of detail, but a clear and concise general view of the History they study. It is earnestly advised that the lessons should be learned and recited with as little dependence as possible upon the artificial aids of memory. The scholars should be encouraged to the freest use of their own language in preference to that of the book, and the teacher should avoid as much as possible any system of questioning by which the memory may triumph at the expense of the understanding. It is History as facts, and not as the contents of a school book, that the Committee wish to see taught.

While the Committee are desirous to express themselves decidedly as to the method of instruction, they wish also to bear testimony to the faithfulness and assiduity of the teachers. There is no one study so difficult to teach effectively, and none where the results of faithful labor may so easily be overlooked upon the examination. It is therefore with great hesitation that the Committee have ventured to pronounce upon particular schools and classes.

The Charles Street school passed a very creditable examination, and so far as the examiner was able to judge, had been instructed in a manner more in accordance with the previous suggestions than any other. The Bush Street girls school did well, especially the first classes. The first class in the Bush Street boys school, was very large and the recitations unequal, but upon the Constitution of the United States, they did great credit to their teaching. The Grove and Middle Street schools passed a fair examination. To the Parker Street and Hill schools, it is impossible to award praise upon the examinations, while the doubt the Committee feel as to the mode of questioning, whether it was under the circumstances a fair test, equally forbids any expression of censure.

PHYSIOLOGY.

The report of the sub-committee on this branch is brief. It is only studied in four of the schools, and by comparatively few of the scholars. The examination however was gratifying, and the Committee earnestly recommend the diligent encouragement of a study so important, and with which the pupils' acquaintance will, in most cases, be limited by the term of their continuance in the Grammar Schools.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE SCHOOLS

GROVE SCHOOL.

Grammar.—Average degree of proficiency. The classes good in “Analysis,” but a more thorough acquaintance with the text desirable.

Arithmetic.—By the general examination, No. 2. Examination on written questions, of three upper classes, No. 1.

Reading.—A few readers in this school excelled; the general performance good.

Spelling.—No. 5.

Writing.—Holds second rank.

History.—Passed a fair examination.

BUSH STREET, GIRLS.

Grammar.—Two higher classes deserving of honorable mention.

Arithmetic.—By general examination, No. 1. Written questions, No. 2.

Geography.—No. 5.

Spelling.—No. 1.

History.—Rather above the average examination, creditable.

Writing.—One of the four schools reported equal, improved since last year.

Reading.—Good.

BUSH STREET, BOYS.

Grammar.—Not satisfactory.

Arithmetic.—No. 3.

Geography.—No. 1.

Spelling.—No. 6.

Reading.—Very good.

Writing.—In writing this is a model school.

History.—Examination creditable, especially on Constitution of the United States.

Physiology.—Not studied.

The sixth class in Arithmetic taught by the second Assistant, deserves honorable mention as a model class.

MIDDLE STREET.

The Middle Street school has been during the past year under the charge of Mr. Benjamin Evans, who did not withdraw till the close of the last school term embraced by this report.

It is but simple justice to Mr. Evans to say that he has been one of our most efficient and faithful teachers, and the loss of his services, is a source of regret to the Committee.

The Middle Street school is now under the charge of Mr. James S. Barrell.

Grammar.—No examination.

Arithmetic.—No. 5.

Geography.—No. 4.

Spelling.—No. 7.

Writing.—No examination.

History.—Not quite equal to the Grove school.

Physiology.—Passed a good examination.

CHARLES STREET.

Arithmetic.—No. 7.

Reading.—Some deficiency in the use and properties of capitals, stops, &c.

Geography.—No. 2.

Spelling.—No 3.

History.—Exceedingly satisfactory, especially the first class taught by the Principal, which deserves honorable mention.

Physiology.—Not studied.

NOTE.—Arithmetic. It is proper to state that it would be unjust to attach responsibility to the teachers for the low rank of this school in the above study. The school has had four different Principals in the past year, beside other changes. And the favorable report made of it in other branches is an earnest, that it is on the high road to regain the honorable position it has held in times past.

PARKER STREET.

Grammar.—Not satisfactory; the first and third classes good.

Arithmetic.—No. 4.

Reading.—All that could reasonably be desired.

Geography.—No. 6.

Spelling.—No. 2.

History.—Impossible to assign any rank.

Physiology.—Passed a good examination.

Writing.—One of the four reported equal.

HILL SCHOOL.

Grammar.—Not completely satisfactory.

Arithmetic.—No. 6.

Reading.—Generally good.

Geography.—No. 4.

Spelling.—No. 4.

History.—Not satisfactory.

COUNTRY SCHOOLS.

North School.—At the close of the Summer term, Miss E. T. King resigned the charge of this school. Miss Lucy T. Clark was appointed to fill the vacancy. The number of scholars has somewhat increased—the average attendance has improved, and the examinations have generally been satisfactory. The school has an orderly and quiet appearance—is making fair progress, and may be considered as in all respects in good condition.

The present teacher has established a Sabbath School for the benefit of the children in that remote section of the city, which is sustained with a good degree of interest.

The Perry's Neck School has also experienced a change of teachers. At the beginning of the school year, Miss Dorothy P. King was transferred to the Cannonville School to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Miss Margaret P. White. Miss B. Snow was then appointed teacher, and remained until the close of the Fall term, when she tendered her resignation. Miss Judith S. Macomber then received an appointment, and under her charge the school is in an improving condition. The discipline is restored, the instruction is careful and thorough. At the school examinations the scholars acquitted themselves fairly. The average attendance is not so good as would be desirable. If the parents would give a little attention to this matter, an important benefit would be rendered to the school.

Haskins' Corner School is filling up its numbers again. The present teacher, Miss Phebe P. Cathell, was appointed at the opening of the school year, and has discharged her duties, it is believed, with faithfulness and success. The examinations at the close of the several terms, in all the branches of study, have been well sustained and the school appears to be in excellent condition.

The Cannonville School has become the largest of the country schools. Soon after the commencement of the Winter term, it was found to be necessary to appoint an assistant teacher. Miss Laura T. Bryant received the appointment. This school is generally improving, and the Committee cherish the hope that it will ere long assume an elevated position among the the schools of its class.

The Acushnet Primary and Intermedial School has suffered essentially from the frequent change in its teachers. During the year it has had four different ones. With such, constant changes in the method of government and instruction, it could not be expected to make much progress, and in fact, it has not. It must be reported in a rather low condition.

The Acushnet Grammar school is the only one of the country schools which has undergone no change of teacher since the issuing of the last Annual Report. It sustains its former character as a good school. Advanced classes are found here, and the examinations through the year have been satisfactory. The discipline and general appearance of the school is praiseworthy; and the harmonious relations existing between the teacher and the people of the District are gratifying.

There are two other schools not under the charge of the Country School Committee, but which following the arrangement of last year's Report, may be as well referred in this connection—The schools at Clark's Point and at the Alms House.

The Clark's Point School at one time during the year had dwindled so that the abandonment of it was held under consideration, but it has now risen very considerably in number, and during the past term has had the attendance of about twenty. The order and discipline of the school are good, and the improvement of the pupils has been considerable.

The Alms House School at the date of the last Annual Report had just gone into operation, and the opinion was then expressed, that under its competent teacher it would “present a favorable report of itself in reasonable time.” This expectation has been fulfilled, and the Committee are pleased with the general appearance of the school and the progress of the children in their studies. The number in attendance has been about twenty-six, and the attendance uniform and constant. The establishment of the Institution for State Paupers will, it is anticipated, reduce the number of pupils during the coming year, but when the importance of this school as a part of the system of measures for the repression of Truancy is considered, there can be no question of the duty of our successors to sustain and foster this Institution.

In this connection we would again bear testimony to the beneficial working of the Truant Ordinance, and have to acknowledge the readiness with which the City Government have co-operated with us, by the appointment of a suitable person to attend to this subject. The supervision of this very important matter has been in faithful hands during the past year, and every case has received, it is believed, that careful consideration which its nature demanded. Very much will still continue to depend, as heretofore, upon the judicious enforcement of this Ordinance.

HIGH SCHOOL.

During the past year several changes have occurred among the teachers of this school.

At the end of the summer term, Miss Anna Webb resigned her situation as an Assistant, and her place was temporarily filled by Mrs. Woodward, who was succeeded by Miss Hannah A. Bryant.

At the close of the term ending in December, Mr. Onslow Hemmenway likewise resigned his situation as Assistant in the Male department, for the purpose of assuming the charge of a High School in another part of the State. The Committee after diligent inquiry and search, selected from a large number of applicants, Mr. Guilford S. Newcomb, who entered upon the discharge of his duties early in the succeeding term, and has as yet entirely fulfilled the expectations of the Committee, and vindicated their judgment in the selection.

Miss Anne Mitchell, the Female Principal, who had filled that station since its establishment, between two and three years ago, tendered her resignation during the Fall, to take effect at the end of the term in December. The necessity of rest was assigned as the reason of her withdrawal. The Committee desire to bear testimony to her faithfulness and efficiency as a teacher, and regret that her physical strength was insufficient to enable her to continue to discharge her arduous labors in a manner satisfactory to her conscientious sense of duty. As the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Miss Mitchell was regarded by the Committee as one of very great importance, a hasty appointment was deprecated. After an extended inquiry the Committee determined to seek the services of Miss Emma M. Converse, then Female Principal of the High School of Providence, and recommended to the Committee by competent authority, as in all respects a most desirable acquisition. After some negotiation Miss Converse accepted the proffered situation, and entered upon its duties at the beginning of the Winter term, and continues them with all the interest and zeal, of which her reputation gave assurance.

The school was thoroughly examined in its various departments in May and December. The results of these examinations were satisfactory in most of the branches pursued, especially in the higher branches. The classes in Geometry and Algebra were reported very favorably, while the class in Arithmetic, consisting of the first and second classes, which had been for some months reviewing the study, were not so flatteringly noticed. In the studies which belong peculiarly to a High School, the reports of the sub-committee are generally satisfactory, although not uniformly so. The Committee, in the the last Annual Report, had occasion to note a deficiency in this school, which is still observable. It was then remarked, that, as a general rule, in the lower branches of school education, those branches in which every successful applicant for admission to the High School, should be thoroughly drilled, the pupils of this school are sadly deficient. It is apparent that under the present course of study prescribed for the High School, the teachers cannot be held to much responsibility on this account. It appears that they generally teach well the branches peculiar to such a grade of school; and the difficulty is, that the course of advanced studies is so large and various, that little time can be appropriated for the remedying of defects in rudimental branches. In the present condition of the school the Committee earnestly recommend some change in the course of studies prescribed. The policy of the Board for some years past has been decidedly to elevate the standard of the school by increasing the qualifications necessary for admission. They have hoped to be able to continue the present advanced course of study without change, by bringing up the Grammar schools to the desired condition; but they are now satisfied, that, for a time at least, it is best to work at both ends; at the same time to raise the Grammar schools and simplify the studies of the High School, and thus establish a proper relative position between the two. When this is accomplished, continued exertions devoted to the Grammar schools will be rewarded with further progress, and in the same degree the studies of the High School may be advanced, until both grades of schools attain a position, which the Committee can contemplate and exhibit with decided satisfaction. The present condition of things is unsound. A superficial knowledge of Latin, Greek, Geometry, Algebra and the Natural Sciences is utterly valueless, unless accompanied by a thorough understanding of, and proficiency in, the elementary branches of education. The Committee desire that the High School may be able to exhibit without any exceptions, good readers, accurate spellers, and proficient in Arithmetic, Grammar and Geography, whether the knowledge is acquired before or after entrance into this school; of course they would very much prefer that it should be acquired in a lower grade of school.

To illustrate their meaning more fully, the Committee would refer to the result of the examination in spelling in December. Twenty-five words were propounded by the Committee in a distinct and audible manner, and the pupils wrote them upon slips of paper provided. The words were of ordinary occurrence and suitable to the occasion.

The following is the list offered.

|             |               |              |
|-------------|---------------|--------------|
| Atrocities. | Irascible.    | Ephemeral.   |
| Etiquette.  | Duteous.      | Carniverous. |
| Paralysis.  | Valleys.      | Suavity.     |
| Tyrannize.  | Compliance.   | Vaccination. |
| Colonnade.  | Concede.      | Frenzy.      |
| Diphthong.  | Sluice.       | Surge.       |
|             |               | Gauging.     |

It appears by the Report of the examining Committee that in the first class, numbering ten, the greatest number of errors of any individual was thirteen, and the least number seven. In the lowest class, numbering twenty-five, the greatest number of errors was twenty-two, and the least number four. The average per centage of correct answers in the school was as follows, viz:—

|               |     |                |     |
|---------------|-----|----------------|-----|
| First Class,  | .67 | Fifth Class,   | .60 |
| Second Class, | .70 | Sixth Class,   | .60 |
| Third Class,  | .61 | Seventh Class, | .53 |
| Fourth Class, | .55 |                |     |

The result is really surprising. The exercise is particularly noticed for the reason, that the report of the sub-committee on this branch was very full and detailed, and in a transferable form.

There seems to be no reason at present, at least, why instruction in this school should not be as thorough as can be desired. The number of teachers remains unchanged, while the number of pupils has been very greatly reduced. Two years since the average attendance was reported to be one hundred and eighty; by the returns published in this report, it appears to have been during the year one hundred and eleven. Should the school in consequence of the policy of the Board, remain in its present reduced size, it is thought that the services of the fifth teacher may be dispensed with. Four teachers ought to be ample force for the proper management and conduct of the school in its present size.

The time for the examination of applicants for admission has been, as heretofore, in June and December. At the former examination the number of applicants was forty-four, and the number admitted was thirty-four, three of whom were not recommended by the High school Committee, but admitted by a vote of the Board upon other suggestion. At the December examination the number of applicants was thirty-eight, of whom only three were admitted. The fact of the admission of so very small a proportion of applicants at this time, of itself, requires some explanation; but further, in consideration of the severe comments and strictures upon the conduct of the Committee, which have been publicly uttered and industriously circulated, the Committee deem it but an act of justice to themselves to set the matter forth in its true colors.

The examination was conducted by printed questions precisely as heretofore, during three years past at least, with no additions of subjects to be examined upon. The questions in the various branches were prepared by the members of the sub-committee on the High School, and at a meeting of this sub-committee were examined and amended, until it was agreed that they were in all respects proper in character. The questions do not differ materially from those proposed at the examination in June. In accordance with the desire of the Committee to elevate the standard of qualification for admission, it was intended before the examinations to submit questions in character about the same as in June, but to require a greater per centage of correct answers. Upon examination of the work of applicants an astonishing result was presented. In order to admit a single applicant the Committee found that instead of increasing the per centage of correct answers required, they must reduce it. In June, sixty-seven per cent, of correct answers were required; in December, sixty per cent. only were required, and even upon this reduced standard, only three fulfilled the requirement. The sub-committee on this school therefore recommended the admission of these three applicants only. The reduction of the number generally presented by the sub-committee was so startling, that in the Board great hesitation was manifested about confirming the action of the sub-committee, and the result of the discussion was the appointment of a special Committee, composed of no part of the members of the High School Committee, with instructions to examine the questions propounded to the applicants, and their answers thereto, and report whether or not it was expedient to make any additions to the list recommended by the High School Committee, and this sub-committee reported that they saw no reason to question the propriety or expediency of the action of the High School Committee, and recommended no amendment.

Upon the rendition of this report, the Board accepted the original report, and admitted three only of the thirty-eight applicants. Fortunately for the justification of the Committee against the censures of interested parties, the whole work of this examination, as of others previously, is in writing and carefully preserved. If any of the parents or friends of the rejected applicants felt aggrieved by the action of the Committee, the most prudent course for themselves, as well as just to the Committee, would have been to have inquired with a little more care into the merits of each case, before they stigmatized the conduct of the Board and the character of its members with such unmerited reproach. It is believed that if those interested and feeling themselves aggrieved, will take the trouble to examine the papers on file, few will be found disposed, after such examination, to take issue with the Committee upon the propriety of their action. The Committee, far from deprecating, invite investigation of this matter.

It is currently and flippantly said in public, "fill up the High School; make it as good as you can, but fill the seats at any rate; let the teachers be employed, since they are paid." The Committee do not subscribe to any such doctrine, and will not lend themselves to the execution of a policy which seems to them so pernicious and ruinous to the best interests of education. If we are to have a High School in name, let it be so in fact; and if the present corps of teachers is disproportionate to the number of scholars, let their number be reduced, and a portion of them, if necessary, transferred to a schools of a lower grade.

EVENING SCHOOLS FOR ADULTS.

Some notice of these schools will appropriately close this review of the varied facilities our Common school system presents to all classes of our community. The main components of these schools are those who in less favored situations have been in the morning of life bent to unremitting toil and the sternest lessons of poverty alone. The City of New Bedford may well take pride in the ample provision she makes for their education in the elementary branches of knowledge. These adult schools in many places exist only as voluntary private charities, with occasional assistance from public funds, but we have placed them on the right foundation as permanent public institutions. They commenced on the first of October last, and will continue until the first of April ensuing, making a period of six months. The school for Males has been held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings of each week, and that for Females on the alternate evenings. The average attendance of the Male department this year has been forty-five,—last year it was forty-two. The average attendance of the Females, seventy-six,—the same as last year, the variation being only an inconsiderable fraction in favor of the present. The branches taught have been Reading, Spelling, Writing and Arithmetic, with some attention to Grammar. An exercise in the Male school upon the Blackboard in the construction of sentences, the use of Capitals &c., proved interesting and profitable. Both schools have been well furnished the past season with teachers, who have generally exhibited a hearty interest in their work, and as the result, gratifying and satisfactory progress has been made.

STATISTICS OF THE SCHOOLS.

PUBLIC PROPERTY.

No new School Houses have been erected during the year, but two mentioned in the last Report as in process of erection have been completed and in use the larger part of the year, viz: the Parker Street and the Cannonville.

The former was noticed at some length in the last Report as the first attempt at good taste in school architecture in our city. The present Board feel that it is a monument of progress, and trust that no other edifice of inferior materials or style will ever be erected within the limits of our city proper, for educational purposes. It was opened to the public in the month of June last, the occasion being honored by the presence of the Governor of the Commonwealth and the Mayor of the city, who, with other steadfast friends of our Public Schools, offered words of encouragement and congratulation.

The other School House at Cannonville, without the limits of the city proper, is a neat and substantial building of wood, two stories high, and adapted to the present and prospective wants of that region. The school furniture is better than that heretofore used in our country schools.

In addition to these erections, the School House at Perry's Neck has been changed in its position, enlarged and thoroughly remodelled. The school-room is now pleasant in its aspect and will accommodate forty-eight scholars.

This completes the notice of all changes and additions to the School Property within the past year.

One of the first duties of the incoming Board will be to make some adequate provision for the southwestern section of our city. There is a large and growing region there, entirely unprovided with any school within a distance which the younger class of children may reasonably be expected to attend. All the Intermedial and Primary schools existing are also in a condition too crowded for comfort or good order. The same may be said of the wants of a section of the city lying west of County street and in the vicinity of Cedar street. The Parker Street Primary school, which is the nearest, has been overflowing in numbers ever since it has been opened. But while there seems an imperative call for some further provision for the accommodation of Primary, and perhaps also of Intermedial schools, it is to be hoped that the incoming Board will not favor the dotting of our city with insignificant little structures which need to be patched up, enlarged, and multiplied in number every few years, but will act with a wise foresight of the prospective, as well as the present wants of the city, and observing the course of population, will endeavor in all their operations to favor that plan of centralization, at least as to the higher grades of schools, which for its superior efficiency and economy is winning in our larger cities, the approbation of all qualified to judge of the measure.

In this connection the present Board would most earnestly invite the attention of the proper authorities to the recommendation in the last Report, for the establishment of better provision for the Mixed School. The building in which it is now held is almost too poor for the possibility of further patching—stands on leased ground, and is not the best location for a school.

They would also renew the suggestion made last year in reference to a desired improvement in the Bush

Street school estates. There are four schools in close proximity, occupying two buildings — the buildings are old and unsightly, and with their white-washed board fence perseveringly braced up each year, are anything but an ornament to the city. From their central location and general good repute, the two Grammar schools especially, are likely to attract a large share of those from abroad, who wish to visit our schools, and the Committee think it ought to be a matter of just pride with us, to show a higher regard for our Public Schools than their outward aspect now exhibits. With all our wealth, our school houses compare most disadvantageously with those of our poorer sister cities. Our common schools are the care of the whole people, as they should be their honest pride; and we believe the citizens of New Bedford will cordially respond to the determination on the part of the proper authorities to place our school estates in a creditable condition. We would therefore renew the suggestion of last year, that as a beginning of the work of improvement, the four schools alluded to, be furnished with brick edifices of suitable architectural proportions. Probably a lot of land to the West of the present site might be advantageously exchanged for that now occupied, and a pleasanter location at the same time secured, and what is of especial importance, all interruption to the schools from the change prevented.

Should a change in the Bush Street property be delayed, the Board feel it their duty to call the attention of their successors to the class-room now used by the second Assistant in the boys' Grammar school. It is one of the smallest size, and either in summer, or in the winter, more especially the latter, with a coal stove in operation, is shamefully inadequate in the accommodations it furnishes for pure air. It is bad enough to require some twenty scholars to breathe its atmosphere for half an hour, but how much worse to compel the teacher to remain in it constantly. It is a mockery to speak of teaching Physiology in our schools while we permit such outrageous infractions of its laws. The class-room in the Mixed school is also an apparatus compelling teacher and pupil to breathe carbonic acid gas. It is believed that the time will come when an enlightened community will look back with astonishment at the long tolerance of these evils. The first step towards reform is the thorough exposure and deliberate consideration of the present arrangement of our School Houses. We have made within a few years some progress in these matters, but the rate of progress should be much accelerated in the future.

FINANCIAL.

The report of the Finance Committee of the City Council exhibits the condition of the School Funds as follows, viz:

Since the above account was closed, bills have been paid amounting to $1,167.89, which reduces the balance to $1,240.54.

In transferring into the hands of their successors these important interests, this Board beg to assure them that they will have no more interested observers of the progress and success of their labors, than they whose term of office now expires.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

New-Bedford:

E. ANTHONY, PRINTER TO THE CITY.

A D D R E S S .

GENTLEMEN OF THE CITY COUNCIL:

When, eight years ago, I took leave of municipal affairs with which I had then been several years connected, I hoped to be permitted to remain a private citizen for the residue of my life. But through the partiality of my fellow citizens, extended to me with a very great degree of unanimity, I have been again called to the field of labor; and although the duty imposed upon me is of a character somewhat different from any I have before assumed, yet I hope to be enabled so to conduct the public affairs, as at least, to receive the approval of my own conscience, looking to that, rather than to the applause of men, for my reward.

I shall not attempt to make any pledges, either to do this or to omit that, simply proposing to discharge whatever duties may devolve upon me, according to my own convictions at the time, having but one object in view, the promotion of the best interests of all classes of the community.

Convened, as we now are, in conformity with the provisions of the City Charter, for the purpose of organizing the City Government for the ensuing municipal year, and having taken upon ourselves the obligation required thereby, in accordance with that obligation let us at the outset, firmly and resolutely determine to execute the trusts confided to us by our fellow citizens, in such a manner as to meet their reasonable and just expectations, and to secure, for ourselves, upon the termination of our official labors, the consciousness that they have been directed with a single eye to the true and permanent interests of those whom we represent.

It will be my duty, as it will my pleasure, to cooperate with you in all measures calculated to promote the public good.

FINANCES.

The Treasurer's account, which has been submitted to me, exhibits the following results in respect to the receipts and expenditures of the public money during the past year.

| The amount with which the Treasurer charges himself as the receipts from all sources for the year ending 3d mo., 1st, 1855, including temporary loans, and the balance on hand 3d mo. 1st 1854, is | $328,626.06 |
| Of this sum he credits himself with the items of allowance for prompt payments of taxes, for taxes remitted, and for balance of uncollected taxes for 1854, amounting in the aggregate to          | $12,383.32  |
| With the amount of the State and County tax,                                                                                                                                                       | 19,863.50    |
| With payments on warrants drawn by the Mayor during the year, amounting to                                                                                                                         | 293,943.53   |
| And with the balance in the treasury 3d mo., 1st, 1855,                                                                                                                                            | 2,435.71     |
| Making as above,                                                                                                                                                                                   | $328,626.06 |

Of the foregoing amount of $293,943.53 paid out upon the warrants of the Mayor, the sum of $73,108.90 appropriated to the repayment of temporary loans and interest thereon, and the further sum of $38,718.00, may be regarded as extraordinary expenses; leaving the sum of $182,116.63 as the ordinary expenditure for the year.

In the address of my immediate predecessor, to the City Council the last year, he states the legitimate ordinary expenses of the Government for the previous year, rightfully chargeable to that Government, to have been the sum of $136,372.39; thus showing an increase of expenditure during the last over the previous year of $45,744.24. There has also been expended during the last month the additional sum of $11,000.

It is obvious that such a rate of increase in the public expenses cannot go on for a series of years, without exciting a feeling of just solicitude on the part of our fellow citizens; and it cannot, I think, fail to admonish us, that in the discharge of our various and responsible duties, there are none imposed upon us which call for greater vigilance or more scrupulous fidelity, than those which arise out of our guardianship of the Public Treasury.

CITY DEBT.

The total amount of the City debt, 3d mo. 1st, 1854, was $114,126.98, of which $14,500 was for temporary loans, which have been paid. There has also been paid on account of the principal $6,618.52, leaving unpaid $93,108 46.

The permanent loans made during the past year amount to $23,600, and the temporary loans prior to 3d mo. 1st, 1855, and which remain unpaid, to $19,500; another temporary loan has been contracted since 3d mo., 1st, for $7000, making the aggregate of the City debt this day $143,108.46, an increase in the last year of $29,000, and in the last two years of more than $100,000.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Our Public Schools ever have received, and I trust ever will, the fostering care of the City Government. Although the amount expended for their support, (exclusive of the cost of new school houses) $35,698.71, appears very large, yet I believe there is no tax assessed upon our citizens which meets with a more ready response than that levied for this purpose.

During the past year, one new house has been built on the corner of Cedar and Maxfield streets, and one is now in process of erection near Bellville, neither of which has been paid for; and a lot of land on the corner of Franklin and State streets, has been purchased as a site for another house.

From the report of the School Committee, which will be laid before you, I learn that the schools "as a whole have been creditably sustained," and from my own knowledge of them, I think they will compare favorably with those of any other city or town in the Commonwealth.

By this very interesting report, which I commend to your careful consideration, you will perceive that in the opinion of the Committee, in consequence of the crowded condition of the schools, and from the gradual increase of our population, some considerable addition to the school accommodations will be required this year.

They also state that they experience much inconvenience from not having a room appropriated to their exclusive use in which to meet and deposit their books and papers, which, under the present arrangement are liable to be scattered and lost.

In the report presented last year, the Committee expressed the opinion that "the time has come when the magnitude and increasing extent of the school interest requires the appointment of a new officer, who shall be styled 'Superintendent of Public Schools,' and whose duty shall consist in devoting his whole time, talents and accomplishments to the general supervision of the schools, and the improvement of their condition." In this opinion I cordially concur, and I invite to it your especial attention. Indeed, I deem it a subject of regret, that a suggestion of such vital importance to this great and growing interest should have been entirely passed over, and postponed, to the more material interests of the City, which, however worthy of the fostering care of the Government, are certainly of less consideration than the great cause of popular Education, in their permanent influence upon the present and future well being of the community.

The adoption of any measures, which you may propose for the advancement of the best interests of this branch of the public service, will be most heartily co-operated in by me.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The Public Library continues to be regarded with unabated interest, and its privileges to be availed of to a great extent by our citizens. It has afforded to a very large number, a quiet place of resort, to which they can retire for intellectual recreation and instruction. The following statistics, which have been kindly furnished me by the Trustees, strikingly exhibit the constantly increasing favor with which it is regarded.

|                                                                                                                                                    |        |
| Whole number of books taken from the Library to 3d mo., 4th, 1855,                                                                                 | 21,041 |
| Number of persons who have entered their names and received cards, entitling them to the privilege of taking books, during the past year, has been | 810    |
| Whole number of cards issued,                                                                                                                      | 3,183  |
| Number of books out at the above date,                                                                                                             | 1,100  |
| Whole number of books belonging to the Library about,                                                                                              | 8,000  |

In view of these interesting facts, it is apparent, that the entire community, who participate in its advantages, look to the City Government to provide for this valuable property, which is increasing in extent and value every year, a place of deposit which shall protect it from the perils to which it is now exposed. It has been to our citizens generally, and especially to those to whose care it is more particularly entrusted, a source of great solicitude and anxiety, that this foundation of what we hope will ultimately become one of the chief treasures of our city, may at any moment be destroyed by our neglect to protect it from the casualty of fire. I cannot doubt that an appropriation of a sufficient sum to erect a building which will be at once safe and commodious for its present necessities, and at the same time shall consult the prospective growth of the Library and be a chaste and suitable structure, worthy of the city and the object to which it is devoted, would be most cheerfully seconded and approved by the great mass of our fellow citizens. The amount expended for this account has been $1,721.13, leaving on hand a balance of $523.22 which will be absorbed by existing unliquidated demands.

For details in regard to the condition, wants and prospects of the Library, I refer you to the report of the Trustees.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

During the municipal year just closed, the services of the Fire Department were called into requisition thirty-four times; the amount of property destroyed was about $80,000, or nearly five times as much as in the previous year. The members of the Department have maintained their usual character for promptness, yet from information, and from my own observation, I am of the opinion that their efficiency has not been of that high order which it has heretofore attained. One cause of the falling off in this respect may be charged to a too great spirit of rivalry for precedence, rather than for pre-eminence in efficient usefulness. This Department has in years past been justly regarded by the citizens with much favor, and has enjoyed in a great degree their confidence and respect. But, I regret to say, that, although the Chief Engineer has done all in his power to check existing evils, I think in some portions of it, a further effort at reform is at the present time imperatively demanded.

It is with the greatest satisfaction that I bring to your notice the fact, of the organization, a few months since, of a corps of Veteran Volunteer Firemen, numbering about ninety men, composed of those who have heretofore been most efficiently connected with the Department, and who hold themselves in readiness, on the appearance of a conflagration, again to render their services, under the direction of the Engineers. I have no doubt that this organization will prove to be a most valuable auxiliary to the Department, whenever an exigency arises to call it into action.

One new first class engine has been purchased, and is now in service, making the whole number of Engines in the city, nine; and another has been contracted for, to be delivered during the coming summer. The whole number of Firemen connected with the Department at the present time is 483. One new house has been built on Purchase street, north of Maxfield, for Engine No. 3. Twenty-one hundred feet of leading and thirty feet of suction hose have been added, for the new engine, and to supply the place of such as is unfit for use.

Three new reservoirs have been constructed, and one (on Purchase, near William street) has been repaired; this last will require some further care from the proper officers.

By the report of the Engineers, which will be laid before you, you will learn that in their opinion, a still further increase of reservoirs is required.

Should you decide it to be necessary to construct any, during the ensuing year, I can but suggest the hope, that they will be entered upon sufficiently early to insure their completion before the frosts and storms of winter.

The amount expended for the purposes of this department has been very great, reaching the sum of $24,863.96, against an expenditure the year previous, of less than $10,000. From a want of detailed information, I cannot judge whether or not this great expenditure has been called for; but from the fact of the appropriation last spring having been for only $10,000, I think it may safely be set down as extraordinary.

STREETS AND HIGHWAYS.

The expenditure for our streets and highways during the past year, exclusive of the "Point road," has reached the unprecedented amount of $43,000, being 50 per cent. greater than in any previous year.

By reference to the record of past years, I find that the amount expended in 1850, was

|             | $13,275 |
| In 1851 was | 16,963   |
| In 1852 "   | 25,387   |
| In 1853 "   | 26,698   |
| In 1854 "   | 43,000   |

The only outlay in this department which may be considered as not rightly chargeable to ordinary repairs, is one of about $3,500 for a road across the "Beach," which it was found incumbent on the City to make and keep in repair, leaving $39,500 justly chargeable to repairs of highways.

You will not expect me at this time to make any specific propositions in relation to this department, as it would require detailed information in respect to its necessities which I have not yet had an opportunity to acquire. It may, therefore, properly be left for future communications. But I would most urgently recommend to this Council to see to it, that, while every thing the public convenience and comfort demand, be cheerfully and promptly done in this department, a more reasonable and economical expenditure of the public money be made for this purpose.

COMMON SEWERS.

Three Common Sewers have been constructed during the past year; one in William, one in Maxfield, and one from Hill, through Mill, Ray and North streets; and that in Union street has been extended westerly, from County to Cottage street; the amount expended for these purposes has been $20,918.22, which has been paid in part by a permanent loan of $10,000; one-half of the cost assessable on the abutters is to be returned to the Treasury.

The balance against this account on the first day of last month was $4,833.08.

POINT ROAD.

The "Clark's Point Road" than which a more beautiful drive, or more perfect road, cannot probably be found in New England, if in the United States, and which has justly become a source of pride and satisfaction to our citizens, is so far completed, that no great outlay, beyond the sum necessary to keep it in repair, will be required this year.

The cost of this road to the present time has been a little over $50,000, which has been defrayed by funds raised on a permanent loan of that sum.

ALMS HOUSE.

By the report of the Overseers of the Poor, I learn that the amount expended for the support of the Institution under their charge has been $14,863.50, of which $8,755.93 has been expended at the Alms House, and $5,575.05 for the relief of three hundred and thirty-three families, comprising twelve hundred and twenty-six persons, out of the House; six hundred and twelve of whom had no legal right to relief, being State paupers. The balance, $532.52 was for incidental expenses, including bills of scavenger carts.

Of the large amount expended out of the house, $3,000 or more than one-half was for fuel, and about $1,600 for provisions, for the more immediate and temporary relief of those who were suffering for the necessities of life, during the late inclement winter.

The whole number of persons in the Alms House
3d mo. 1st., 1854, was 145

The number admitted the past year, 194

Whole number relieved during the year 339

Who remained in the Alms House 3,799 weeks.
The number in the House 3d mo. 1st., 1855, was 77.

This great reduction of the inmates of our Alms House has been in consequence of the establishment by the State of an Alms House at Bridgewater, where all such as have been heretofore provided for as State paupers should be sent, and which will continue to relieve us from persons of this class.

To the several suggestions of the Overseers, I would respectfully call your attention, as being worthy of your careful consideration.

And now, gentlemen, under a deep feeling of the responsibilities resting upon us, let us enter upon our various duties, looking to the God and Father of us all, for ability rightly to discharge them.

R E P O R T
COMMITTEE ON FINANCE.

It is made the duty of the Committee on Finance, agreeably to the 24th chapter of the Revised Ordinances, in the month of March annually, to “prepare and lay before the City Council a statement of all the receipts and expenditures of the preceding financial year.”

The Committee on Finance, therefore, in compliance with said Ordinance, present to the City Council the following statement of receipts and expenditures for the financial year ending on the first day of March, 1855.

Whole amount of receipts into the Treasury is two hundred fifty-six thousand two hundred thirty-nine dollars and seventy-four cents. The expenditures amount to two hundred fifty-three thousand eight hundred four dollars and three cents, leaving a balance in the Treasury of two thousand four hundred thirty-five dollars and seventy-one cents.

Permanent loans have been ordered and negotiated the past year for the following purposes:—For completing French Avenue, five thousand dollars; for Main Drains and Common Sewers, twelve thousand dollars; for the purchase of lots and the erection of School Houses, nine thousand dollars, six thousand six hundred of which only have been negotiated, making whole amount of permanent loans one hundred sixteen thousand six hundred eight dollars and forty-six cents.

Temporary loans of fifteen thousand and two thousand dollars, have been made, to meet the wants of the treasury on account of the excess in the expenditures in the Fire Department, over the appropriations for new Engine House, additional Reservoirs, and other apparatus for the Department, of some thirteen thousand five hundred dollars, and building the Beach Road, so called, which cost about three thousand five hundred dollars, which, added to the permanent loans, makes the indebtedness of the City, one hundred thirty-six thousand one hundred eight dollars and forty-six cents.

Herewith you have the Report of the Sub-Committee commissioned to examine the accounts of the Treasurer, also the Report of the Sub-Committee to prepare a "schedule of the Property, real and personal, belonging to the City and the value thereof."

REPORT

OF THE

BOARD OF ENGINEERS.

To the City Council of the City of New Bedford.

The Board of Engineers in accordance with the requirements of the City Ordinances, herewith present the following Report relative to the present condition of the Fire Department, its expenditures for the past year. Also their estimate of the amount necessary to meet its present liabilities, and the probable outlay required for the ensuing year, viz :

| Transfer from incidental expense account,                                                                             | 13,500 00          |
|                                                                                                                       | $25,373 62 |

It will be seen that the expenditures have exceeded the estimate of our predecessors considerably, which additional outlay was caused by additions being made to the Department, which were considered highly necessary for the safety and welfare of the City. The amount expended for the construction and repair of Reservoirs, has greatly exceeded the estimate of the former Board, there having been three large Reservoirs added the past year; one on corner of William and Second streets, one on Pleasant near Maxfield street, and one on corner of Linden and County streets, and have had the Reservoir on Purchase Street, south of William, repaired, making forty Reservoirs throughout the City, all of which are in excellent condition.

There has been one new Engine, (which was ordered by the former Board) placed in the Department, in the house formerly occupied by No. 6, and that Engine has been repaired, and is now a reliable Engine in case of emergency. With the addition made, there are now nine good and efficient Engines.

A new Engine House has been erected on Purchase street, just north of Maxfield, for Engine No. 3, formerly located on Second street, and a large cistern constructed underneath the building capable of furnishing a good supply of water in case of fire in that locality. The several Engine Houses are in good repair, and now present a neat and cleanly appearance.

There has been twenty-one hundred feet of new leading hose, and thirty feet of suction, purchased during the year, seven hundred and fifty feet of the leading hose being for Engine No. 6, and the remainder to replace the old leading hose on the several Engines, that was considered unfit for further use.

The Hook and Ladder carriage being considered unfit for service by our predecessors, a new carriage was ordered by them, which will probably be ready for use during the month of May.

The number of Engines being very limited, considering the amount of property liable to fire, we deemed it necessary to procure another Engine, to be placed in the building now occupied by No. 5, and to have that Engine located at Jesseville; and on recommendation to the City Council, it was ordered to contract for a first class Fire Engine and Hose Reel, which order has been carried into effect.

The Department has been called out forty-five times, of which eleven have been for false alarms. The amount of property destroyed as near as can be ascertained, is $80,735. The amount of insurance on ditto, $49,300. There have been seven houses, seven shops, barns, &c., one building for public exhibitions, and one lumber yard destroyed.

The several companies have been well filled, and good order and harmony have prevailed throughout the year. The Department now consists of four hundred and eighty-three men, attached to nine Engines, and one Hook and Ladder carriage.

The estimate of the expenses of the Department for the ensuing year, are

|------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| For pay of Firemen to 5th mo. 1, 1855,                     | 6,967 00    |
| For new Engine and hose reel now contracted for,           | 2,000 00    |
| For Hook and Ladder carriage and apparatus contracted for, | 1,200 00    |
| For new Hose,                                              | 1,000 00    |
| For construction of Reservoirs,                            | 4,000 00    |
| For outstanding bills,                                     | 400 00      |
| For incidentals,                                           | 1,700 00    |
|                                                            | $17,267 00 |

Should the foregoing recommendation meet the approval of the City Council, there will be required for the service of the Department an appropriation of sixteen thousand, seven hundred and fifty-seven dollars, and thirty-four cents, exclusive of the balance on hand.

We are desirous of returning our thanks to the entire Department for their promptness on an alarm of fire, and for their gentlemanly deportment and efficient co-operation in the discharge of every duty.

Per order of the Board,

JOSHUA B. ASHLEY,

Chief Engineer.

Of those admitted, 78 were on account of sickness; 71 on account of destitution; 23 by sentence for intemperance; 22 by sentence for truancy. The inmates remained in the Alms House 3,799 weeks.

Owing to the backwardness of the season, which prevented entirely the planting of some wet land, the produce of the Farm has been somewhat less than in the previous year. But much labor has been expended in laying walls and clearing lands, and labor to the amount of four hundred dollars has been expended upon the grounds in front of the Alms House.

The following statement furnished by Mr. Briggs, the Superintendent, shows the principal products of the Farm and their value.

Of those who have been at the Workhouse under sentence for intemperance, many have performed considerable labor upon the Farm, after having recovered from the effects of dissipation, and the Board have allowed their families an equivalent for their labor. These persons have generally declared they were happier at the Workhouse, than while in the midst of temptation in town, and it is certain that the comfort of their families was quite as much promoted as their own. Would not such management of the habitually intemperate, be better than the ordinary mode of confining them for short periods in the House of Correction?

The boys who have been sentenced to the Workhouse for Truancy, have been kept steadily at school within the establishment, and have made respectable improvement, we believe, in their studies. Yet, it is evident that the Workhouse is not a suitable place for them. We hope that ere long, another institution may be provided for them, and other children dependent upon the City. As every child has a natural right to an education, it would appear to be the duty of the community to provide the means. Not only school-houses and school-books, but food, clothing and shelter, for such as require them. While at the Workhouse, these boys have been wholly supported, and in a majority of instances their support was a needed relief to their parents, many of whom, however, had no legal right of relief in this City. Of the fourteen boys now there, a large majority have no legal right of relief in this State, and only three have it in this City. Should a school, as has been contemplated, be established for them, some modification of the act in relation to the matter, would be necessary, to enable the City to obtain from the proper sources remuneration for their support.

The religious services at the Alms House, since the first quarter of the year, have been very acceptably conducted by some of the Clergymen, and by laymen of various churches, without compensation. By one of the laymen, a Sabbath School has been kept during the year. The Board consider the community under obligations to these gentlemen for their zealous performance of these services.

Out of the Alms House, three hundred and thirty families have been aided during the year. They comprised twelve hundred and seventy-six individuals. Of these, three hundred and twenty-five were legally chargeable to this City, three hundred and thirty-nine to other towns, and the remainder, six hundred and twelve, had no legal right of relief in this State. For the relief of this last class, the State have erected an Alms House at Bridgewater, and it is not imperative upon the City to do more than supply their immediate wants; sending them for future supply to the State Institution. Acting under advice, that they had hardly authority to do more than this, the Overseers of the Poor, in the beginning of the cold season, declined furnishing further aid to such as were entitled to this State relief. Some applicants availed themselves of the relief so provided, but a much larger number did not. They made their necessities known to the benevolent, who took measures for their relief.

In consequence of their efforts the City Council passed an Order, appropriating one thousand dollars for the relief of the Poor in the City, the same to be charged to the Incidental Expense account, and expended under the direction of the Overseers of the Poor. This has been done in the usual manner, by the distribution of food and fuel in the community, endeavoring to avoid that idle and dissolute class of population who float about from place to place, not where they can obtain the most work, but where they can get along with the least.

To the Mayor and Aldermen, and the Common Council of the City of New Bedford :

GENTLEMEN :

IN accordance with the Ordinance for the establishment of the Free Public Library, the Trustees of that Institution, respectfully lay before you their Third Annual Report.

To the two former Reports of the Board, the members of the City Government are respectfully referred, for such details of its history and progress as will enable them to judge of its character, and of its value and position as one of the established instrumentalities of our municipal arrangements for the promotion of the well being of the people.

The legislative and municipal action which gave a legal position to this interesting and valuable institution ; the activity and liberality which so prominently distinguished the movement by which the valuable property of the Old Social Library became the foundation of the new establishment ; the measures taken by the first Board of Trustees, to place the Library upon a broad and reliable foundation ; the rules and regulations instituted by them, and which have with the sanction of the City government, continued to guide the action of all concerned with the Library ; the encouraging circumstances of our first years' experience, and the details of our financial operations and estimates which have resulted in a generous and adequate provision for its support,—all these facts and circumstances are to be found in the previous reports, which it has been the duty and the privilege of this Board to place before the members of the City Government.

In the last Annual Report, the Trustees thus concisely and comprehensively set forth their views and opinions in relation to the Institution under their charge :

“ We have by the experience of a period long enough to confirm every anticipation and dispel every doubt, demonstrated the practicability and the utility of a Free Public Library.

“ To repeat the words of the former Board—‘ Our Library has become one of the institutions of the city.’

“ It has become a valuable, and will soon be generally considered as an indispensable auxiliary in the great work of popular education.

“ It has become incorporated, both in idea and in fact, into the catalogue of subjects demanding the fostering care and annual support of the municipal government.

“ Its claims for such attention and support, are founded upon principles which lie at the foundation of our republican institutions.

“ To train and enlighten the public mind is a work to which a liberal portion of the public wealth must be devoted; and as being in harmony with this idea, and as the cap-stone of our beautiful system of public education, the Public Library has claims upon all whose aim is the promotion of the general welfare.

“Such was the theory when the work was begun by the State and completed by the City—such is now the fact, demonstrated by our experience, and placed beyond the reach of doubt or cavil.

“Upon the minds of the Trustees, the result to which we have arrived, after the operations of the year, have produced the most undoubting conviction that the Free Public Library is an instrumentality from which our community are deriving great and enduring advantages.

“We would give our most unqualified sanction to the principle upon which it is established and sustained.

“We hereby bear testimony to the practicability of the plan of its operation.

“We would with the earnestness of a strong desire and a most thorough conviction, lay before you the claims of the institution to your continued attention and liberal support.

“Its reputable and profitable support demands but a small pecuniary outlay; and it is confidently believed that from no portion of our annual appropriations of an equal amount will the people derive more satisfactory and enduring advantages.

“The establishment of a Free Public Library, by the municipal authorities of New Bedford—the pioneer undertaking of the Commonwealth—has conferred an honorable distinction upon our beloved city; a distinction which it is hoped and believed we shall continue to deserve, by giving it an enlightened and liberal support."

After the experience of another year, the foregoing statements, which we have taken from the reports of our immediate predecessors in office, continue to be, in their fullest extent, applicable to the Free Public Library.

We have incorporated them into our report, and now respectfully present them to you, as a plain and reliable statement of facts, and as embracing the views and opinions of those who have, during the past year, been by you placed in charge of the institution.

Nothing has occurred, since this important trust has been committed to our hands, to lead us to doubt the wisdom of the principle upon which it is founded, or weaken our confidence in the practicability of the plan of its operations. Our confidence in both remains unimpaired. In its principles, it is in harmony with the great facts which lie at the foundation of the people's progress and prosperity; and the almost unlooked for, and certainly unlooked for success which has attended its operations, from the opening of its doors to the present moment, has given to the principle the support of experience, and caused it to stand firm in the position in which it has been placed by the wise liberality of the City Council.

The Library statistics fully sustain the opinions we have advanced.

Twenty-one thousand and forty-one books were taken from the Library during the year ending March 4th.

The number of new cards issued during the year is eight hundred and ten.

The whole number of cards issued, is three thousand one hundred and eighty-three.

The number of books out, eleven hundred.

A recent examination of the Library has disclosed the gratifying fact, that at the time it was made, but sixty volumes were missing of the large number which has been placed upon its shelves. This favorable result was unexpected by the Trustees. They had feared, that the constant and almost unrestricted access allowed to the books; the universality of the right of "taking" allowed by the regulations, and the large number of persons who, at certain times are found crowded into our limited apartments, waiting their turn to be served by the Librarian, would have led to a much greater loss than was shown by the examination.

Taking into view all the circumstances of the case, such a result, after more than two years' operations, must be, it is believed, looked upon by you, as it has been by us, as exhibiting an aspect of security connected with this part of the public property satisfactory to its guardians, and creditable to the people. It shows that we have not been mistaken in the belief, that they could safely be entrusted with the custody of their own property. It gives unquestionable evidence of the fact, that the two fundamental rules set forth by a former Board, as those upon which the Library could alone securely rest—USE CAREFULLY, RETURN PROMPTLY—have been heeded and observed. We would earnestly express the hope that in this respect the future may be as the past. While we are thus encouraged by the past, we cannot but feel solicitous for the future; and under the influence of this deep solicitude, we would, with a clear conviction of their vital character, renew the caution and admonitions of our predecessors. We feel it to be our duty again to impress upon the minds of all the takers of books from the Library, the important fact, that "THE RULES MUST BE OBSERVED, OR DISORDER, DECAY AND DISSOLUTION WILL SOON ATTEND UPON THIS ENLIGHTENED AND PRAISEWORTHY EFFORT TO OPEN TO THE PEOPLE THE AVENUES TO A MORE EXTENSIVE AND GENIAL CULTURE."

The past history and present position of the Library warrant the conclusion that its prosperity will continue to be an object of interest and attention to the City Government. It is therefore the duty of those who are from time to time entrusted with its management, to make such suggestions and recommendations to the authorities as may aid them in their efforts so to order their action in relation to it, that the object of its establishment may be most effectually attained.

To the argument by which the policy and legality of the appropriation last year made for its support was sustained, we have nothing to add. To our minds it is satisfactory and conclusive. That it was so viewed by the Council is evident from the fact that the appropriation recommended was cheerfully and unanimously made.

We would renew the recommendation. The sum of two thousand dollars, voted by the government and which has been expended by the Trustees, has met the demands made upon us for its security and management, and allowed a small but satisfactory outlay for its maintenance and increase. It is believed that all desirable economy has been observed by the Trustees in arranging for the necessary expenses of the Library, and that the selection of books has been governed by a single eye to the interest of those for whose benefit they have been purchased. While care has been taken that no publication injurious to the public morals should find a place upon our shelves, we have endeavored to divest ourselves, in our efforts to place before our fellow-citizens the means of "a more extensive and genial culture," of all narrow and sectarian partialities. In this respect, we are gratified to be able to state that no difference of opinion has for a single moment interrupted the harmony and unanimity of our proceedings. Every member of the Board has kept constantly in view the fact, that he had been called upon to discharge an important public duty, and that within the limits of that comprehensive circle wherein are found the wise and good of all classes, ranks, parties and sects, he was to know nothing in the performance of that duty, but the benefit and improvement of all. The publications upon our tables, as well as the books we have been enabled to place upon our shelves, will, it is believed, afford ample evidence of the controlling presence of this all important principle of action.

A large number of books purchased by the Trustees the past year, have been recent publications. So numerous has been the issue of new books, that a careful selection of such of them as seems to demand a place upon our shelves, has necessarily absorbed a large proportion of the limited amount of means at our disposal. And this must, it is supposed, continue to be the case. The public claim the right to demand of the managers of the Library access to the new publications as they issue from the press. This demand is reasonable and proper, and within reasonable limits, should be met promptly and liberally. The Trustees have, as they hope and believe, come up to the public expectation in this particular. All the new and desirable books they have not been able to obtain; but many and perhaps a majority of such as have a claim to a position in our collection have been purchased, and while this demand, made by the public and recognized by the managers, has been met to an extent which has satisfied both the public want and the judgment of the Board, a margin has been left for the addition to our limited store of those older publications which make up the true wealth of every extensive Library. Every year it is to be hoped that some progress may be made in this direction. The fact should never be lost sight of, that our collection, valuable and extensive as it is, is yet very incomplete in many of the most important departments of human learning. A small amount of the appropriation annually made for the Library, devoted to the purchase of the standard books of the language not yet upon our shelves, will gradually supply this deficiency, and thus give to our inhabitants access to the rich treasures of wisdom and knowledge which have been left to us as a legacy by the "mighty dead," while they enjoy and improve the opportunities afforded them for holding intercourse with the living mind of the world.

While the Board would express themselves satisfied with the appropriation which was last year voted to the "support, maintenance and increase" of the Public Library, and believe that the sum of two thousand dollars for the next year will be sufficient to sustain it in a creditable and useful position, they feel bound to call the attention of the City government to the fact that more extensive and securer apartments are demanded for its accommodation.

The rooms now occupied by the Library are limited and unsafe. The public need better accommodations, and the books a safer depository. Our rooms are often too crowded for safety, comfort or convenience. Our books, now a large and valuable collection, are every moment exposed to destruction. . We feel bound to state these facts without circumlocution or qualification.

The public good in its highest and most comprehensive meaning, demands, in our opinion, a depository for the Public Library, more extensive and more secure. The value of the books it contains, and the position it now occupies in the public mind, claim for it the means of a safer and more advantageous arrangement for its keeping and its use. In what way shall these objects so desirable, may we not say indispensable, be obtained? How shall this great and imminent public want be met?

Could we hope that success would attend upon our appeals, we would point to Worcester, to Boston, to Danvers, to New York, to Philadelphia, and many other places where wealth has been ennobled by a devotion of a portion of its abundance to the erection of magnificent edifices for this purpose, and call upon those who are among us, or are of us, the men and the women who have been nourished within our borders, and who have here or elsewhere been made rich by an activity and enterprise having this city for its centre, to come forward, emulative of this noble example, and give to us a building for our Library which would not suffer from a comparison with those, which, in the places we have named have been devoted, by a princely liberality, to the cause of knowledge and virtue.

And why should we doubt of success? Are we mistaken in the belief that there are men and women among us, who, with the possession of large means are also blessed with large hearts? It were a libel upon the fair fame of our city to suppose, that there is not among our people of wealth, a fair share of that public spirit and benevolent activity which have prompted to the acts which have given a proud and honored prominence to the name of Bates and Peabody, Salisbury and Astor.

It is true, that thus far in our history, there have been but few examples of the presence of that feeling which has prompted to those acts of princely liberality to which we have alluded.

As yet, but few monuments of this kind tell the story of such an enlightened devotedness to the general welfare.

Not that our citizens have been wanting when a call has been made upon them in the name of divine charity, for the relief of the destitute and neglected. The demands of benevolence have always been met, and a large and generous bounty has ever characterized the acts of our people, when a tale of suffering has reached their ears.

Princely have been our expenditures for the education of our youth, and the appropriations for this noble purpose have been as cheerfully accorded as they have been ample in amount.

The same generous and enlightened spirit, roused into activity in behalf of the institution whose interests are so intimately connected with the well-being of our people and the fair fame of our city, would, we are assured, secure for it the advantages of a safe, commodious and tasteful building.

The public spirit and well directed benevolence which shall rear a convenient and ornamental structure for our Free Public Library, will secure for the name of him who shall be the honored instrument in the accomplishment of such an undertaking, an enviable and enduring reputation.

The work belongs to one or more of the wealthy, enlightened and benevolent inhabitants of our city. Are we mistaken in supposing that there are those among us, who, desirous of devoting a portion of the wealth which Providence has bestowed upon them, to the public good, and prompted by a laudable ambition to give such a direction to their munificence as will secure to them the gratitude of their fellow-citizens and the regard of posterity, will erect a monument so noble in its purpose, so elevating in its results? No doubtful or limited benefit would attend upon the consummation of such an undertaking. Without restriction or qualification will be accorded to him the title of PUBLIC BENEFACTOR, who shall thus generously and benevolently allow his name to designate the structure which shall be reared for the purpose of our FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

But we are digressing. We have allowed the hopes and anticipations of personal feeling to lead us away from a legitimate discharge of our duty as stewards of a public trust. As Trustees of the Public Library, it is not for us, in our communications to the body from which we derive our official existence and authority, to depart from the limited range of remark and recommendation to which such a position should confine us.

Returning then to the subject of a more safe and convenient depository for our books, and to such a restricted view of it as properly belongs to the relation we bear to your body and to the public, we would earnestly press upon the consideration of the municipal government such a course in relation to it, as will secure the important objects we have named—increased accommodation and greater safety.

The Board have not been unmindful of their own duties in this respect. They have had constantly pressing upon them the inconvenience and danger of our existing arrangements. Under such circumstances they have felt bound to give attention to the subject and take such action in relation to it as their official responsibility appeared to demand.

Not regarding the erection of a new building as at present an attainable object, they have been led to the examination of the City Hall with a view to the accommodation of the Library in the lower story of that safe, central, and beautiful building.

The action taken by the Board upon the subject has already been communicated to the City Council, and is now before your body awaiting its determination.

It may not be improper, in view of the present position of the subject before the Council, and as constituting a part of the proceedings of the Board, to place before you that part of our records which embrace the report of a committee to whom it was referred.

It was in the month of June last, that a committee which had been charged with the subject made in relation to it the following report.

“The committee to whom was referred the subject of safe and more convenient rooms for the accommodation of the Free Public Library, have given some attention to the subject, and would now beg leave respectfully to report.

“It has always been supposed by the Trustees, that the room now occupied by the Library, would afford us but temporary accommodations. We have from the beginning, looked forward to the time when the City government would take measures for providing a permanent and secure place for the Library, and more convenient and accessible accommodations for the large and increasing number of citizens who visit it for books and for the purpose of study and recreation.

“The rooms now occupied by the Library were the best that could be procured at the time we commenced our operations. But there are many and very important objections to them; and the Committee are clear in the conviction that it was the duty of the Board, without further delay, to institute proceedings having in view a removal to a permanent, safe and convenient location.

1.—“The rooms are too small for the accommodation of the Library. But few more books can be conveniently arranged upon our shelves. The accommodations for those who visit the Library to read or study, are very limited. It is desirable that a Reading Room should be provided, separate from the depository for the books. At times the room is very much crowded, and much inconvenience is the result, particularly to the females.

2.—“The building is unsafe. As a proof of this, we need only to mention the fact, that the rate of insurance now paid by the City, upon the property in the Library, is three per cent. per annum, the highest rate of premium, it is believed, charged upon any kind of risk. It is getting more and more unsafe. At this time there is not, perhaps, a more exposed situation in our City. An application is now before the Mayor and Aldermen, for leave to establish and maintain a steam engine in a building in close proximity with that which contains the Library.*

“Notwithstanding our property is partially insured, the fact that our large and valuable Library is constantly liable to be destroyed by fire, is a source of deep and continued anxiety. There are many books in our collection which money cannot obtain; and the sum insured could not restore to us a Library any thing like so valuable. But a short time after we had taken possession of our rooms, the building containing them took fire, and a few moments delay in its discovery would have resulted in the entire destruction of the Library. The committee are deeply impressed with the magnitude of this danger, and they would endeavor to impress upon the minds of the Trustees the importance of taking immediate measures to relieve this valuable property from the hazard to which it is exposed.

“The committee have understood that the attention of the municipal authorities has already been directed to the subject.

“The danger to which our property is exposed, the inadequate accommodations the present rooms afford, and a conviction that an arrangement could be made by which a remedy would be provided for both these evils, and, at the same time, a saving made to the city treasury, have led to the examination of this subject on the part of the City government.

“It is believed by your committee, that all this can be done.

“It has been proposed to devote that part of the basement story of the City Hall, now used for a market, to the purpose of a Free Public Library, and the School Library.

“The rooms have been examined by the committee who unite in the opinion that they are well calculated for the purpose.

“Ample arrangements could be made, within the space occupied by the market-stalls, for the safe and convenient accommodation of the books now in the Library, and for any desirable increase for several years to come, while the visitors, either for books or for study, could be much better provided for than is at present possible.

“The committee do not feel at liberty to go beyond this simple statement. It does not belong to them to enter into an examination of that policy, which has hitherto led the municipal authorities in all our large towns and cities to provide accommodation for the venders of meats and vegetables.

“It may not, however, be improper for them to remark, that the policy is now less generally pursued than formerly, and that many of our large cities are seriously debating the question of an entire change.

“It is becoming pretty well understood that there is no imperative obligation resting upon the public authorities to provide places of business for the dealers in ‘beef and greens.’ The question is asked, ‘why not flour as well as meat—tea, coffee and sugar, as well as turnips, cabbages and spinage?’ A change in this respect is not a matter of speculation alone.

“It is rapidly taking place without the action of authority. Meat shops are multiplying in all our large cities, and within the limits of our own, there are, at this time, more than twenty stores occupied by the dealers in the articles heretofore found almost exclusively at the public market.

“Should an investigation of this subject satisfy our City government, that it is neither necessary or expedient for the public to provide places of business for one class of traders more than another, and that the traders in beef and beans, veal and vegetables, can, without inconvenience to the public, be allowed to make their own business arrangements, the spacious basement of the City Hall, now, for the most part devoted to the market could be fitted up for the purposes of the City. No better accommodations for the Library could be found or desired. It would be safe and central. The books would be secure and accessible. Economy and convenience would both be promoted by the change."

The statements and recommendations of the report are respectfully commended to your favorable notice. Should the suggestions therein contained, lead the City Council to take further action upon the subject, it will become the duty of the Board, to the extent of their ability, to aid in any effort that may be made, to bring the matter to a satisfactory conclusion.

We give, with great pleasure, the list of those friends of the Library and of Literature, who have, during the past year, been thoughtful of our claims to their attention and regard.

We have received books and other publications from the following:

Asa R. Nye, Esq., Mrs. Eliza G. Wood, Hon. J. H. W. Page, Secretary of the State of New York, Hon. Thomas D. Eliot, A. J. Phipps, Esq., Trustees of the Public Library, Boston, Mrs. H. G. O. Colby, Smithsonian Institute, Charles Mason, Esq., Charles Russell, Trustees of the Theological Seminary, Andover, D. C. Brown, Esq., Trustees of the Pennsylvania Hospital, Dr. Thomas S. Kirkbridge, George M. Bunker, Esq., William Logan Rodman, Esq.

We desire in this public manner to acknowledge the receipt from the celebrated engravers, Messrs. Topham, Carpenter, Casilear & Co., of New York, a beautiful engraving of the City Seal, and a heading for the correspondence of the Trustees. This exquisite specimen of Art, so useful and ornamental, is highly regarded by us, not only for the skill with which it is wrought, but for the liberality which bestowed it upon the Free Public Library.

The whole number of volumes now in the Library, is about eight thousand.

Of this number there have been added during the past year about one thousand.

The small balance which will appear to the credit of the Library, on the books of the City Treasurer, has been anticipated by expenditures, the bills of which have not yet been presented.

All of which is respectfully presented.

RODNEY FRENCH,

Mayor of the City, and, ex-officio,

Pres't of the Board of Trustees.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE of the City of New Bedford, for the municipal year, now drawing to a close, in compliance with statute regulation, respectfully submit their Report of the transactions of the Board, and the condition of the Department under their charge during their connection therewith.

Duly impressed with the importance and value of the interests confided to them, and solicitous that those interests should suffer no detriment at their hands, either through neglect or mistaken judgment, but that their administration might compare favorably in its fruits with any that have preceded it, the Committee entered upon the onerous duties of their trust with sincere interest, and have pursued them with constancy and patience. None can judge so well as they of the general results of their labors. They may have failed in securing many of the objects of their wishes, and it would be unreasonable to expect otherwise. They may not be able to point to any extraordinary achievement in any particular direction, upon which they would rest their claims of success; nor, indeed, would they esteem that altogether the best ambition. Their aim has been rather the infusion of increased life, energy and efficiency throughout the whole department.

They have not striven for the promotion of specialties in particular schools, or grades of schools, but have rather sought to improve and elevate the whole establishment by the exercise of beneficial influences permeating through all its ramifications. No part of the system has been cared for, consciously, at the expense of another; and it is confidently believed that the time and attention, which they have bestowed, has not been altogether misapplied and unprofitable. Many evils in different parts of the extended system have been modified, if not entirely removed; leaving only to those, who are to follow, the task of sustaining the impetus already given in the right direction.

The machinery has generally worked smoothly in its details; and in the character of the general sentiment of all connected with the promotion of this great interest—teachers as well as members of the Committee,—may be traced the working of good influences, which are none the less effective and fruitful, because unseen and silent in their operations. The relations between the Committee and teachers have been harmonious and satisfactory. Both have seemed to realize that there is nothing antagonistic in their relative position; that their object is the same, and that their labors should be in the same path. And, as the natural result of a consciousness of this unity of interest, the teachers have uniformly been pleased to receive any suggestions from the Committee, and have cheerfully complied with them.

The Committee are gratified in being able to say that the schools, as a whole, have been creditably sustained, and will compare not unfavorably with those of the same grade elsewhere. There may be cases in which, through causes beyond the control of the Committee, schools have not appeared to as good advantage as at some former period; but these instances are rare, and in most of them the deterioration does not involve the discredit of the teachers. Examinations have been made, from time to time during the year, of all the schools, varying in extent and thoroughness, but always sufficient to enable the Committee to arrive at a decided opinion in regard to the condition of the schools. It has been the almost invariable practice of this Board to conduct the examination themselves, instead of passively listening to exercises conducted by the teachers. This mode of examination certainly affords the surer test of the pupils' attainments; especially of their understanding of the principles of the branch of study, in which the examination is made.

The scale of salaries paid to teachers was moderately raised by the Committee at the beginning of the year. The whole amount paid this year in salaries exceeds that of the year previous by about 15 per cent. the difference being about $3,000.

The selection of teachers has been a subject upon which the Committee have exercised much care. This is obviously the most important duty, which they are called upon to discharge, and one to which too much attention cannot be devoted. None will deny this; and yet it is believed that very many, who admit the truth of the proposition, fail of being impressed with its full meaning; that it is to very many a mere truism, which seems hardly worth the pains of illustration. It is only when it is remembered that the teacher's duties are not confined to instruction in the text books, nor his influence limited by school hours, and to the individuals for the time under his charge; when it is considered that the school is the nursery of the State, and that the teacher acts almost directly upon the well being of general society, that the grave responsibility of his office becomes manifest.

“ Education,” said Plato, “ makes the man and the citizen, and the school either spoils or ennobles the nation.” The lapse of upwards of two thousand years has in no degree impaired the wisdom of this apothegm of the pagan philosopher. It is as true now, as when it was uttered ; and perhaps as applicable even to our common schools as to the Academy of Athens.

The labors of a teacher in every grade of school, and especially in the lower grades, are bestowed upon impressible and ductile material. His pupils are more ready to learn from observation, example and oral instruction than from their text books ; their intuitions are wonderfully quick, and their minds and hearts receive impressions without effort or consciousness, which with years are to harden into the unchangeable character of the man. If the impressions made by teaching and example in their tender years are good ; if the desires of their nature and the sentiments of their hearts are directed to what is true and elevated, so that all their impulses are generous and noble, and this spirit is fostered and confirmed during their school years, all injustice and baseness and meanness will be as foreign to their manhood, as though temptation never visited them. Intellectual capacity and literary attainments, together with power and skill in using them, are, of course, absolutely essential elements of a good teacher, and are not in the slightest degree underrated ; but, to make these qualities serviceable to society, character must underlie them. The statute of the Commonwealth requires this ; and not only the mere possession of moral attributes as inactive, slumbering principles, but that they should be an active, vivifying agency. With reference to our system of public education, there is especial propriety in this requirement. When it is remembered to how considerable a proportion of the pupils of our public schools the blessing of happy and refined home influences is denied, and to whom the training of the schools is all they can ever have; the early age at which children are sent to the public schools, and the large proportion of time each day during many years they are under the teacher's guidance, the importance of other instruction than that relating to their text books becomes obvious.

It should be the desire and object of those connected with the school department to send out into the world boys and girls, who may be not only able to pass a good examination in all the branches of a common English education, but who have become familiarized with sound and healthy views of life; who have been instructed and interested in the duties of the several relations of life, and who have been educated to know the true and right by intuition, and to choose it without effort; boys with healthy, manly souls in them, and girls, whose tastes and sentiments shall be pure and lofty and womanly. The end and aim of all education is to make men and women fit and competent to discharge the duties of a refined humanity in their various vocations in life; and this object never can be attained by simple instruction in Arithmetic and its kindred branches, however diligently they may be studied.

The Committee wish not to be misapprehended. They are not to be understood as depreciating the necessity of diligent application to intellectual study, but as insisting upon the cultivation of the moral nature, as the sole condition upon which knowledge is valuable to society, or even to its possessor. The teacher, who conceives that he is discharging the whole duty of his station in requiring perfect recitations of the appointed tasks, does little credit to his profession. Much more is necessary, than ability, and the faculty of imparting intellectual instruction. He must be circumspect in his conduct, and exceedingly careful in his conversation. He must endeavor to render himself to his pupils a model of honesty, moderation, justice and self-denial, as well as to impress them with his ability and intellectual attainments. Indeed, when viewed intelligently, there is no occupation in life, in which a well balanced character is more essential to success, than in that of teacher of youth. It is said that the profession of the teacher is emerging from its hitherto unmerited obscurity, and is rising to its proper place in public estimation; and it is a happy event in the history of society. It is indicative of the progress of liberal sentiment; for the profession of teacher, as every other, will rise or fall in respectability and dignity in precise correspondence with the popular requirement. If a community is satisfied with, and encourages quacks and pettifoggers, all men, who have a just sense of the true dignity of their professions, and will neither degrade them, nor debase themselves, must of necessity retire, or be crowded out. And this is as true of the teacher's profession as of every other.

Much inconvenience is experienced by the Committee from having no room appropriated by the City Government to their exclusive use. They occupy the Council Chamber for their meetings, when the meetings of the two bodies do not fall on the same evenings, which is very frequently the case. In that event, the School Committee are obliged either to postpone their meeting to such time as they can find the chamber vacant, or descend into contracted and uncomfortable quarters in the basement of the building. But beyond this reason, which touches only the comfort and dignity of the Board, there is another reason why the Committee should be provided with an apartment of their own. It is exceedingly important to the community, as well as to the Committee, that there should be some repository for the books and papers of the Committee, which would accumulate every year, if any place of deposit were provided, which are now scattered and lost. Much embarrassment has been felt in preparing this Report for this very reason, that the reports of sub-committees, made at various times during the year, and from which valuable matter might be extracted, are not to be found. There should be some place for the meetings of the Committee and for such deposit, to which the Board might have constant access. The School Committee is the only branch of the City Government not provided for in this respect.

In the pages next following are enumerated all the schools of the City, together with the names of the teachers, and the per centage and average of attendance. Such changes, as have been very recently made, will be noticed in what may be said hereafter upon the particular schools affected.

To these may be added the new school just established on Cedar street. It is a Primary school, and opened soon after the beginning of the present term, under the charge of Miss Dorothy P. King.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

In consequence of the want of accommodation in the Hill Primary and Intermedial school room for all who applied for admission, it was found necessary by the Committee to divide the school. During the summer the Primary school was kept in an apartment hired in the vicinity of the Hill School House, which was, however, contracted and altogether unsuited to the purpose, but the only one to be obtained. Upon the suspension of the Hill Grammar school in the fall, the Intermedial school was moved up stairs, and the Primary school took possession of the lower story of the building, and is now, of course, well accommodated.

The schools of this grade have been very much interrupted during the past year by the great prevalence of the Measles, Whooping Cough, Varioloid &c.

Some of them, for a time, have been almost broken up from this cause. Taking this fact into consideration, the attendance has been remarkably well sustained. It is believed that these schools, generally, are doing their appropriate work. Great progress in study is not to be expected. Constant drill is what is most required. Long continued application of mind ought not to be expected; nor should long confinement of body be tolerated, nor every expression of innocent joyousness, incident to early childhood, be harshly repressed. The maintenance of decent order and strict attention to the instruction of the teacher during short periods is all that can reasonably be desired. The Primary teacher requires for success peculiar qualifications. She must be fond of children, understand their nature, and be able to sympathize in their joys and troubles. Literary attainments will not compensate for the want of these qualities. It is by no means unfrequent, that a teacher of great acquirements utterly fails in a Primary school. When, therefore, one is found well qualified for a Primary teacher, it would seem best to give such a salary, as will make her satisfied with her position, and quiet all desire for what, from an increase of pay, is regarded as promotion.

The reports of the sub-committee on these schools represent their condition as follows, viz:

The Hill Primary School during the greater part of the year from the time of its separation from the Intermedial school, especially during the summer and fall, was much broken up by the prevalence of the Measles and Varioloid, and until the middle of the fall, the school was miserably provided for; though, as has been before stated, the Committee could do no better for it under the circumstances. The wants of the school required two rooms, but only one apartment could be hired in the neighborhood, and even that in an unsuitable location. Since the school has occupied its present quarters, its appearance and real condition is much improved.

The Parker Street Primary School appears well. In this school there is much need of a class room, and the subject was recently referred to a sub-committee with instructions to report the most judicious mode of accomplishing the object. Two recitations going on at the same time, in different parts of the same room is very prejudicial to the maintenance of a good school.

The Charles Street Primary School still continues to be the largest Primary school in the City. During a portion of the year four teachers were employed, though the room was designed for but two, or at most three. Miss Cranston, for some time Principal, finding the labor and fatigue attending the charge of so large a school wearing upon her health, was, at her own request, appointed an Assistant in the Charles Street Girls' Grammar school. The attendance diminishing about that time from sickness or other cause, it was thought by the Committee, that three teachers could carry on the school; and so they have continued to do to the present time with much credit. Miss Jane M. Cook was appointed Principal in the place of Miss Cranston, transferred.

The William Street Primary School is well reported. The uniformity in the exercises was worthy of favorable comment. The school is under the guidance of the same teachers as last year, and for some time previous, and exhibits the advantages of such permanency.

The Bush Street Primary School. The number attending this school had become so large, that during the summer it was thought necessary by the Committee to add another Assistant, making three in all. The appointment was conferred on Miss Mary A. Sandford. It became, unhappily, necessary, in consequence, to partition off a portion of the main room for a class room. The influence exerted in this school is believed to be good, and the exercises were very creditable.

The Sixth Street Primary School. In this school Miss Haffards was appointed to the place of second Assistant, made vacant by the transfer of Miss Bryant to the Parker Street Primary School. This school has suffered much during the year from interruptions occasioned by sickness, and is not therefore to be judged by a very severe standard.

The Griffin Street Primary School sustains its former good reputation. Good order is preserved, but at the same time there is an entire absence of that rigid restraint, which is so painful to observe in children. The exercises were very good. In the words of the last Annual Report, "it is a pleasant school to visit."

The Maxfield Street Primary School is under the same management as at the beginning of the year, and, considering the disturbance occasioned to the school during the greater part of the year by the blasting of rocks, and hammering of stone in its immediate vicinity, for a capacious public reservoir, has maintained its commendable position remarkably well.

The wants of the western section of the City required the establishment of another Primary school, and a building has just been completed by the City authorities, on the corner of Cedar and Maxfield streets, to meet that want, in which a new Primary school has been established under the charge of Miss King.

INTERMEDIAL SCHOOLS.

These schools have suffered to some extent in the same way as the Primary, in consequence of interruptions in attendance by epidemic disease. They are, as a whole, in quite as good a condition as can be expected, and in most of them much progress has been made.

In this grade of school one may reasonably expect to find more diligent application to study, more orderly demeanor, and some considerable knowledge of rudiments. It has always been observed with regret by the Committee, that pupils, encouraged by their parents, are in exceeding haste to leave these schools, and enter the Grammar schools. It is a great mistake. It is vastly better to be well prepared, than be able only just to squeeze in, and struggle along, and at the same time drag down the school below its desired standard.

The Grove Primary and Intermedial School is the only remaining instance in the City proper of the union of schools of different grades. It is much to be hoped, that an expedient way will show itself shortly, by which this school can be divided. At the beginning of the year, the Primary and Intermedial schools at the Hill were united, but favoring circumstances enabled the Committee to make a separation. A union is disadvantageous to both schools in an almost equal degree. The Grove Intermedial school is favorably reported, and within two or three years has very greatly improved. During the summer term leave of absence was granted to Miss Bonney, the Principal, in consequence of ill health, and her place was supplied by Mrs. Allen, the First Assistant, who sustained the increased burden, thus imposed upon her, very creditably.

The Sixth Street Intermedial School. At one period during the year this school was reported to the Board as not quite equal to what it had been in times past. The teachers were not exactly held responsible, but for some reason the school did not appear as well as was expected. During the latter half of the year, however, it seems to have regained its former position.

The Bush Street Intermedial School is in a good condition. The teachers have long been connected with the school, and understand their duties. An excellent influence is exerted there.

The William Street Intermedial School continues to maintain its excellence.

The Charles Street Intermedial School appears very well. It was reported last year as having fallen off in the branch of Reading. Especial attention to this defect has probably been the consequence, and the exercises in this branch are now excellent.

The Kempton Street Intermedial School, notwithstanding it is presided over by one of the most judicious and capable teachers in the service, has suffered somewhat in its general character and appearance from the evil influences of a few troublesome and turbulent children, who are sustained in their insubordination by their parents, and who ought properly to be removed to such a school as the Mixed school. It has been sometimes necessary for the teachers to call upon the Committee to quiet difficulties. In spite of this serious disadvantage the school exhibits the result of good management and teaching.

The Maxfield Street Intermedial School. In the latter part of the year Miss Smith was transferred from the Second Assistant's place in this school to the Bush Street Girls' Grammar School, and Miss Richardson was appointed to her place, but being altogether inexperienced in teaching, could not be expected at once to make good the vacancy occasioned by Miss Smith's transfer. This school, as well as the Primary school, underneath, has been much annoyed during a great part of the year by the blasting of rocks and the hammering of stone under their windows. The violent explosions, and the monotonous clicking of the stone drill naturally wrought very much on the nerves of both teachers and pupils, and much credit is really due to both, that no request was pressed to have the school temporarily suspended. It was necessary for a long time to keep the blinds closed on the Pleasant street side of the building, and the children could not safely be allowed to play out of doors. Considering these disadvantages, the school has made very commendable progress, and exhibits a remarkable degree of good order.

The Parker Street Intermedial School ranks but fairly among the schools of its grade.

The Hill Intermedial School is a very orderly, well kept school. Improvement during the past year is very perceptible.

Sufficient importance is not ordinarily attached to these schools. It is of very great consequence, that the work, appointed to them to do, should be well done. The Committee find much pleasure in the belief that some of the best teachers in the service are at the head of some of the schools of this grade.

MIXED SCHOOL.

This school continues to fulfil the expectations and hopes of the Committee. The teachers remain unchanged, and they have continued to labor with much fidelity. Considering the material of the school, they seem to have done quite as much as any other in the service. Mr. Lincoln, the Principal, has been in the school since its establishment, and thoroughly understands his task. He ranks with the best of the Grammar masters in his qualifications for teaching. There is no school in the City better governed than the Mixed school. The exercises of the pupils were very satisfactory.

A great improvement has been made in the appearance of the school room within the past few months. Despairing of securing the erection of a new building for this school during the year now closing, the Committee felt impelled by a strong sense of duty to improve in some measure the building now occupied, though fearing to do very much, lest the reply should be made in answer to a future application for a new building, that so much money had been recently expended on the old building, it was hardly worth while to abandon it before realizing some benefit of the improvement. The desks removed were old, and once discarded when they were placed in this school, and there can be no excuse for having put them there, except that the establishment of the school was regarded as an experiment, and economy was an object. The general aspect of the room corresponded with the desks, and it is a matter of surprise that good teachers could be induced to stay there, and much more so, that they have been able to keep up the attendance of the school to what it has been. The school room has been painted, and thoroughly cleaned and new floored, and has entirely lost its gloomy, repellant air. The general neatness of the room, and especially the care that has been taken by the scholars to preserve the fair appearance of the furniture, cannot be sufficiently commended. This unexpensive improvement has operated most favorably upon the school. The Committee still deem it their duty to repeat the recommendation of better provision for this school in some less public locality than "Market Square." A similar school for girls is much needed.

COUNTRY SCHOOLS.

These schools have been visited and examined from time to time during the year. At the close of the last term a minute examination was made of all of them in some branches. In the report of the sub-committee they appear as follows, viz :

The Acushnet Grammar School. During a large part of the year, the attendance has been rather small in consequence of prevailing sickness. The performances were generally creditable. The first class in Arithmetic was thought deserving of particular commendation. The exercises in Reading and Grammar were favorably noticed.

The Acushnet Primary and Intermedial School has been considerably interrupted at different times of the year, particularly the last part, from the same cause which has affected the last named school. This school has been heretofore reported as in a rather low condition. It is thought, however, that it has latterly improved. There is certainly an improvement in point of order and general appearance. When a new school is established in the neighborhood of Belville, the attendance of this school and the Grammar school will be probably so much reduced as to render it expedient to unite them.

In consequence of ill health, Miss Payson has resigned the charge of this school, and Miss Susan E. Harrington has been appointed in her place.

The North School. During the past six months this school has been under the charge of Miss Borden, but is now committed to Mrs. Jane C. Thompson, who has quite recently entered upon her duties. The result of the examination of the school has caused the Committee very much to regret that Miss Borden could not be induced to remain longer in charge. The general management of the school, and many of the exercises were excellent.

The Perry's Neck School has improved in attendance, though the number belonging to the school has somewhat diminished. The exercises of the school are reported as generally good.

The Haskin's Corner School is not reported quite as favorably as last year, though no reproof was implied. The exercises generally were reported to be fair, those in Arithmetic were reported as something below that.

The Cannonville School is not very favorably reported. Its condition is not thought to be equal to what it was a year ago. It is a large school, and for the past year, at least, has been an exceedingly hard school to govern. The health of the Principal has not been equal to the task, and, at her request, she has been transferred to the less arduous, but no less important station of Principal of the new Primary School on Cedar street. This school has suffered much for some time past from the attendance of a number of large boys, who have caused the teachers much trouble and vexation, and who should have been under the more rigid discipline of a man. This source of annoyance, however, is now removed, and it is thought, the school will revive. Miss Charlotte E. Mendall has just been appointed its Principal.

The Point School is exceedingly small. The average attendance throughout the year has been only ten ; sometimes falling below that number. It lacks life and spirit. It is well deserving the consideration of the incoming Board, whether or not it is expedient to continue the school. The expense of its maintenance is certainly disproportionate to its usefulness, as compared with all the other schools.

The Alms House School continues to be well conducted, and the visits of the Committee have satisfied them of its usefulness. During the past year nearly four-fifths of its members have been truants, sent there by order of the Police Court; and it is believed that the number might be considerably increased. The operation of the Truant Law has been salutary. Its effect upon those sent to this school has almost uniformly been reformatory. The Alms House is not exactly the place for the establishment of such a school, but it was the best arrangement that could be made for the time. It is much to be hoped that the City Government will consider favorably the propriety and expediency of establishing a Farm School within the limits of the City, where unruly children can be better cared for. It is a project, which has recommended itself to many of our intelligent citizens, and one which could be carried out at moderate cost.

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

The Committee are gratified in being able to report encouragingly concerning these schools. There is room for improvement, of course, but, taking all things into consideration, they find reasonable expectation fulfilled. Increased thoroughness in the preparatory schools will do more than anything else to advance the condition of the Grammar Schools. There should, at least, be nothing to unlearn after admission to them.

The general examination of these schools was made at the close of the winter term. In consequence of some misunderstanding among the Committee, the plan of examination adopted last year was not entirely carried out, and no tabular view of the result can be offered. But it can be considered no great loss or misfortune after all; for a report of the general condition of schools ought not to be based upon the result of any one such examination as the Committee are able to make, but upon the result of constant observation throughout the year. It is for this reason, it is considered of so much importance that the schools should be frequently visited. It is very easy to see that great injustice may be done to some schools in a report, based upon the result of a single examination.

The number of Grammar Schools has been reduced within the past year. The Hill Grammar School was indefinitely suspended at the close of the fall term. The reason, which induced this act on the part of the Committee, was the reduced attendance. It was found that by an alteration in the lines of the districts into which the City is divided, that all the scholars attending the Hill School could be accommodated elsewhere. The Middle Street and the Charles Street Grammar Schools received a portion of those, who had attended the Parker Street Grammar School, and this last named school received those who had attended the Hill. A saving of expense to the City was, of course, effected by the change, but it was not done without great opposition on the part of some of those, whose children were transferred from the Hill, on account of the greatly increased distance from their homes to school.

Mr. Cornish, the Principal of the Hill School at the time of its suspension, was transferred to the Grove Grammar School to fill the vacancy in the Principalship of that school, occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Brown. Miss Tobey was transferred to the Parker Street Grammar School, which, in consequence of the accession to its numbers, required an additional Assistant.

The Parker Street Grammar School, in order to accommodate the scholars from the Hill, was materially altered in its interior arrangement. The Committee were, moreover, exceedingly glad of an opportunity of introducing, by way of experiment at least, the arrangement lately adopted in many places where the public schools are a subject of much pride, and which is confidently recommended by those most interested in and familiar with the system of public education.

The partitions, forming the class rooms, were removed, throwing the second story of the building into one large oblong square room. This was then equally divided into four rooms by means of sliding partitions; thus giving to each teacher the charge of a distinct room, instead of giving to the Principal the charge of the whole school, excepting such parts as might happen to be in the class rooms. The partitions are so arranged, that in the morning when the school assembles, and at such other times, as it is desired, the four rooms are thrown into one, and again separated without noise or delay. This change was made in the early part of the winter, and sufficient time has not elapsed to test fully the experiment. The Committee have, however, great confidence in its success.

Notwithstanding the introduction of a large number of new scholars into this school at the beginning of the winter term, its appearance and condition is very satisfactory. The large percentage of attendance, which Mr. Hervey has always been able to secure, has been inconsiderably diminished by those scholars, who formerly attended the Hill school, and whose distance is now very great from school. A much greater falling off might reasonably have been anticipated, not only in the attendance, but in the general character of the school by the transfer of the scholars from the Hill, accustomed to a different manner of teaching and government, and not altogether satisfied, moreover, with the change, which added so considerably to their daily walk. The classes in all branches appeared well. One in Geography was thought deserving of especial comment, and one in Physiology is the best in all the Grammar schools.

The Charles Street Grammar School is under excellent management. The teachers are capable and accomplished, and the relation between the teachers and scholars is believed to be harmonious.

The Middle Street Grammar School. The Committee have reason to be satisfied with what has been done in this school during the past year. The teachers have been faithful to their trust, and the Principal, especially, has exerted himself to infuse a better spirit into the school. It has always been a very large school, composed entirely of boys, and has never enjoyed a very high reputation with the present or previous Committees. The attendance has always been irregular. Truancy and moral obtuseness, generally, have characterized the school; and, as a necessary consequence, the same progress in study has not heretofore been made as in most of the other schools. The Principal has done much to mitigate the roughness and rudeness of his pupils; enough, at least, to induce the hope that the school may, at some no very distant day, rank more than fairly. The process is necessarily a slow one, and success must be awaited patiently. The method of teaching adopted by the Principal, in some branches particularly, is much to be commended. "Multum, non multa" is his theory.

It is thought that the new arrangement, introduced into the Parker Street Grammar School, can be repeated to great advantage here. It is a sufficient task for one person to govern this large school, assembled in one room, and it is surprising that as much instruction can be imparted as results show.

The Bush Street Boys' Grammar School is well governed and well taught. The government is mild, but firm and judicious. The exercises throughout the year, whenever visited by the Committee, have been exceedingly good. This school, it is thought, exhibits the best class in Arithmetic in any of the Grammar schools.

The Bush Street Girls' Grammar School requires no extended notice. It has for many years enjoyed an enviable reputation, and never has been more deserving of it than at present.

The Grove Grammar School has labored under what is always for a time a disadvantage, a change of teacher. Mr. Cornish has been in the school but one term, and, though the school appears very fairly now, it will undoubtedly show great improvement in reasonable time. Some of the classes, especially in Geography, showed great want of thoroughness.

In closing their remarks upon these schools, the Committee desire to express their sense of the importance of devoting more time to Analysis in the teaching of Arithmetic. In those schools where this subject has received much attention, the good results were very manifest upon examination.

HIGH SCHOOL.

In consequence of the enfeebled condition of Mr. Emerson's health, the Committee, bearing in mind the long and faithful service which he had rendered to this community in the capacity of public teacher at the head of the school system, granted to him leave of absence from his station for a period of six months. During his absence Mr. Newcomb was the acting Principal of the school, and the services of Mr. William W. Warren were engaged to aid in the labor of the male department. In this latter appointment the Committee were fortunate, and the injury to the school consequent upon the absence of Mr. Emerson, was very much mitigated. Mr. Emerson returned to his duties, in improved health, at the beginning of the winter term, and it is sincerely hoped that the relaxation from care, at this time, will very much prolong his usefulness.

The school was examined quite thoroughly at the close of the fall term, and appeared very well. A considerable portion, however, of those admitted six months previously showed in the examination, that they had made too much haste in seeking admission to this school. The exercises generally were very satisfactory, and no one can question the competency of any of the teachers to impart instruction. But, notwithstanding, the school did suffer in consequence of Mr. Emerson's absence. The Committee regretted exceedingly to find that there was not that harmony and unanimity among the teachers, which is vital to the interests of a school. They do not now undertake to apportion the blame which attaches somewhere, but simply to record the fact, that they are not satisfied with the conduct of the school during the summer and fall terms. Their experience leads them to doubt very much the policy of a double headed school. It is anomalous in practice, and false in theory; and it is recommended to the incoming Board to abolish the office of female Principal in this school. The departments are too intimately connected not to be under one head. The advocates of the present arrangement pre-suppose there will always be union of sentiment and mutual co-operation, which can by no means be relied on.

The examinations for admission were, as usual, in June and December. At the former examination forty-five were examined, and all were admitted. At the latter examination fifty-four were examined, of whom thirty-five were girls, and nineteen boys, and eleven were admitted, of whom seven were girls and four were boys. The great difference in the numbers admitted shows clearly enough that a higher standard of qualification was required at the latter, than at the former examination.* It is very much to be desired, that there should not be so great fluctuation, as is indicated by these results. In December, 1853, thirty-eight applicants were examined and only three admitted; this it will be observed was followed in June by the admission of forty-five, and this again in December last by the admission of eleven out of fifty-four. The opinion still prevails, to the great damage of the interests of the High School, that the seats must be filled with something.

The exhibition at the close of the term in December was very creditable to the school. A few of the exercises were of such merit as to command the general favor of the audience, and of themselves were almost sufficient to give a marked character to the entertainment. The large school room was densely filled, indicating a degree of public interest, which was as encouraging to those connected with the school department, as it was agreeable and flattering to the pupils.

ADULT EVENING SCHOOL.

The establishment and maintenance of this school is creditable to the City, as an act of enlightened policy. In usefulness it is not surpassed by any school in the City. As heretofore, the school was opened about the first of October and will continue till the first of April, making a period of six months. The sessions of the male and female departments have been held on alternate evenings. The attendance of females has been larger than that of males. The average attendance in the male department has been in the neighborhood of forty, while that in the female department has been nearly double that number. Mr. Bryant, the Principal of the male department, resigned his situation in the latter part of February, and the school, as usual towards spring, lessening in number, it was not thought necessary to supply his place. This department is now, therefore, under the management of Mr. Haskins.

The progress of those who attend these schools is slow, from the reason that they have grown to maturity without ever having exercised their minds with study of any kind, and it is only by patient resolution and hard work, that they can acquire any book knowledge. Nothing but a keen desire to learn would reconcile them to the irksomeness of the task. In many instances, diligence has been singularly well rewarded. Many can now read intelligently, to whom at the beginning of the session a book was as meaningless as blank paper.

In a school of this character nothing like classification can be attempted, and for this reason a much larger number of teachers might be profitably employed. The attendance, too, is necessarily fluctuating. No difficulty has ever been experienced in maintaining order. The sessions of this school have been held in the Mixed School House, into which gas has been introduced with especial reference to its accommodation.

SCHOOL PROPERTY.

There has been but a single School House added to the number during the past year, and that one has been erected on the corner of Cedar and Maxfield streets, and it is just completed. It is a wooden two story building, well finished, and conveniently arranged. A Primary school has been established in the lower story. The upper story has not been finished, and will not be until the wants of the neighborhood require another Intermedial school, which is anticipated. The lower floor is divided into two rooms of equal size, after the arrangement of the Parker Street Grammar school, and the Committee sincerely hope that the plan of partitioning off small, ill ventilated class rooms will find no favor with their successors.

The Bush Street Boys' Grammar School has been somewhat improved by the erection of a porch at the south end of the building, and changing the entrance from the north to the south end. One of the class rooms has been considerably enlarged thereby.

The alterations in the Parker Street School house have been already noticed.

The south western section of the City, which has filled up, and spread very much within the last few years, is entitled to a Primary and Intermedial school in that neighborhood. They have waited patiently, and should be postponed no longer.

During the year it was voted by the Committee to establish a school at Belville in answer to an urgent petition from that district, and an appropriation was made by the City Council for the purpose of purchasing a lot and erecting a suitable building. With great difficulty, and after considerable lapse of time, a lot was obtained, which it is thought will very well answer the purpose, and a building of moderate dimensions and cost is now in course of erection, and will be soon completed.

In accordance with the recommendation of the Committee, a lot was recently purchased on the corner of State and Franklin streets for the erection of a building designed to accommodate a Primary and an Inter-medial school.

FINANCIAL.

The condition of the School Funds on March 1st, 1855, is exhibited in the following statement, viz:

Whatever degree of success may have attended the labors of the Committee, they have the satisfaction of knowing that they have honestly endeavored to promote the interests confided to them; and they can especially congratulate themselves, that unusual harmony has marked their councils.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

By order of the Committee,

JOSHUA C. STONE, Chairman.

NEW BEDFORD, March 19, 1855.

At a meeting of the School Committee of the City of New Bedford, held this day, Rev. M. G. Thomas presented the following Resolution.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Board be presented to their Chairman, Joshua C. Stone, Esq., for the impartial, able and very acceptable manner in which he has discharged the arduous and many duties of his office.

By a unanimous vote of the Board it was Voted, That the above Resolution be adopted and appended to the Annual Report.

GENTLEMEN OF THE CITY COUNCIL:

In entering anew upon the duties to which I have been again called by the suffrages of my fellow-citizens, it is with a distrust of my ability satisfactorily to discharge them, a distrust which a year's experience has not overcome.

A just sense of the responsibilities which attach to the Chief Magistracy of a large and thriving City, in which new and unforeseen contingencies are constantly arising in the course of public affairs, is not likely to be lessened by time, or by experience in the ordinary routine of its duties.

The most that I can do is to assure you, and through you, my fellow-citizens, of my intention to discharge according to the best of my ability whatever duty may devolve upon me, having still "but one object in view, the promotion of the best interests of all classes of the community."

In order to a successful discharge of those duties, to which I can only promise to bring a faithful and honest purpose, your co-operation will in many instances be required; this I am confident I shall have; being fully persuaded, that, however we may differ in some points, in whatever relates to the public good there can be but one opinion amongst us.

We are now convened agreeably to the City Charter, for the purpose of organizing the City Government for the Municipal year, and having taken the initiatory step, let us pass on to the prosecution of our duties with a determination to discharge them in accordance with the obligation which we have just now assumed.

It will always afford me pleasure to co-operate with you in any and all measures, which have for their end, the public good.

Before entering upon a detailed statement of the matters usually treated of, on occasions like the present, there is one event which has transpired during the Municipal year just closed, to which I shall refer; one, which is of serious import to us all, showing us that in the midst of life we are in death. I allude to the decease of our late City Treasurer, Frederick Bryant. I deem it within the proprieties of this occasion, that I should bear my testimony to his fidelity as an officer, and his worth as a man. In all the relations of life he has sustained a spotless reputation, which secured for him the confidence and respect of the community, and in his removal from the sphere of usefulness which he so acceptably filled, the City has lost an efficient and valuable public servant. His sudden and lamented death is an admonition to us all to be prepared for the same inevitable summons, by that discipline of life which comes from a faithful discharge of every duty which a kind Providence assigns us.

By the Treasurer's report which will be laid before you, you will have an account of the disbursements of the public moneys the past year, and by which you will observe that the whole amount paid into the Treasury from all sources, including the balance on hand

| With payments on warrants drawn bythe Mayor during the year, the sumof                                                                                    | 358,177.13   |
| And with the balance on hand 3d mo.1st, 1856,                                                                                                                 | 2,820.23     |

Of the above amount of $358,177.13, the sum of $107,827.74 for the repayment of temporary loans and interest thereon, and the further sum of $32,449.68 paid for land taken for streets, (principally for Front street,) and of $27,721.59 for Sewers, for the City Liquor Agency, and for the several Cemeteries, which last amount is returned to the Treasury by loans and assessments and by sales, and may therefore be deducted, leaving the sum of $190,178.12 as the amount of ordinary expenditures for the year.

The City Government for the past year appropriated the sum of $190,000 for the purposes of the City, under the different heads of appropriation. To two of the accounts only, have transfers been made, $10,000 to the repairs of highways, and $1,500 to the Fire Department. With these exceptions no account has exceeded its appropriation during the year, and the whole amount expended has exceeded the whole amount appropriated in the sum of $178.12.

There has been paid during the year for bills contracted by the former Government prior to 4th mo. 1st, 1855, the sum of $26,461.87; from this deduct the sum paid by the last Government since 3d mo. 1st, 1856, for bills of the past year $16,094.31, thus showing the amount paid by the Government of last year and chargeable to the Government of 1854-'55 to be $10,367.56, to be deducted from the expenditures of the past year. The amount of outstanding bills at the present time is believed to be small; very few, except some yearly running accounts, are known to be out. The ordinary expenses for the last municipal year, after deducting the temporary loans, the amount of the State and County taxes, and what may be considered as extraordinary expenses, together with the excess of amount paid for bills of the previous year, may be set down at $179,810.56.

In my address, last year, I stated the legitimate ordinary expenses of the year 1854-'55 to have been $182,116.63, to which should be added $2,700 for one quarter's salary of the City Officers, there having been but three quarters included in that account, making the sum of $184,816.63, to which must again be added the excess of bills paid by the Government of last year $10,367.56, making the actual expenditure for 1854-'55 to have been $195,184.19, showing a diminution in the expenses of the last year from that of the preceeding in the sum of $15,373.63.

In addition to this there has been paid the last year for the State tax over and above that of the previous year $3,472.50, and for 5 per cent. of the increase of City debt and the interest thereon the further sum of $3,555.

CITY DEBT.

The amount of the City debt 3d mo. 1st, 1855, was for permanent loans $116,608.46, and for temporary loans $19,500 an aggregate of $136,108.46; the foregoing amount of $19,500, together with another loan of $7,000 made prior to 4th mo. 1st, 1855, was paid at their maturity by a permanent loan of those two amounts.

The permanent loan has been further increased by one of $5,000 for the Sewers, and others amounting to $30,000 to pay the damages caused by the opening and widening of Front Street; the temporary loans have been one of $5,000 for the payment of damages above cited and which is to be made permanent at maturity, and another of $10,000 to meet the demand upon the Treasury in advance of the collection of taxes and the assessments on the Sewers, for the past year.

There has been paid on account of the permanent loans during the year the sum of $7,908.52; and for temporary loans and interest, $5,930.24, making an aggregate of $13,838.76. The amount of the debt 3d mo. 1st, 1856, was for permanent loans $170,199.94, and for temporary loans $15,000.

STREETS AND HIGHWAYS.

For this branch of public service there has been expended the past year the sum of $41,237.58. In consequence of the advanced price of materials of every kind, the amount expended for this account has been larger than was contemplated. For the items of curbing and paving stones alone, the excess of cost over the previous year for the quantity used, was more than $1,600. The amount expended for sand catchers on the lines of the Sewers on Bush and Hillman streets, and for three additional ones which it was found necessary to construct on Elm street, has been something over $2,000. This amount has usually been charged to the account of the Sewers, one half of which was assessed upon the abutters; but as the purposes for which they are constructed, seem more properly to belong to this department, and more especially as those on Elm street could not be so charged, it was decided that they all be placed to this account.

As the "Clark's Point Road" continues to be a place of general resort for the purpose of healthful and agreeable recreation, it was thought proper for the better accommodation of the public, that the approaches to it, should be put in better condition than they had heretofore been, in pursuance of which the ledges on Water street and also on County street near Cove street, have been removed, and the streets brought to a proper grade, and County street below Cove street which had never been worked in accordance with a layout from the Head-of-the-River to Clark's Cove, accepted many years since, was also widened by the removal of the walls, where they were within its lines, and the street put in a proper condition, and also a way which has been open for a great many years, connecting the lower end of County street, and also the road across the Beach, with the Clark's Point Road, has been put in passable condition. The amount expended for these purposes has exceeded the sum of $3,000.

By the extension of Allen street from Dartmouth street, westerly, which was accepted 6th mo. 4th, 1855, and which was in such a state, that it was necessary to put it in condition for use at once, the sum of $1,800 has been expended. In consequence of the acceptance of Orange street, the name of which was subsequently changed to Front street, it became necessary as fast as the buildings were removed from the limits of the street, to fill the cellars, and put it in a condition to be safely used by the public. For this purpose not less than $1,000 have been expended.

From the above facts it will be seen that a large proportion of the amount transferred to the credit of this account has been absorbed in what may be considered as extraordinary expenses. So that in reality the outlay for the purposes contemplated when the appropriation was made, has not much exceeded the original appropriation.

A considerable amount has been expended on the roads, north and west of the more compact parts of the City, for which purpose a much smaller amount of expenditure will be required the present year.

During the past summer the County Commissioners laid out a road leading "from the corner of Parker and Chancery streets, to the road near Philip Allen's house," in the neighborhood of Allen's Mills, to be finished by the 1st of 11th month, (November) next. It was put under contract to Peleg S. Sanford, 10th mo. 16th, 1855, to be completed on or before the 1st day of 10th mo. (October) next, for the sum of $4,840, he being the lowest responsible bidder for the same. The City holds his bond with sufficient sureties, in the sum of $5,000, for the faithful performance of the contract, to the acceptance of the County Commissioners.

As the construction of this road, and the grading, and perhaps paving, if not curbing and flagging of one side of Front street, will require a large expenditure of money, I submit for your consideration whether it will not be better to raise the amount necessary therefor by a permanent loan, than include it in the amount appropriated for the repairs of highways.

SEWERS.

During the past year two Common Sewers were constructed, one in Hillman and one in Bush street, and a short one was also laid in Campbell street, from the east side of Ray street to the west side of Purchase street. The cost of these was $11,761.65, of which $5000 was raised on a permanent loan.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Although the expenditure of the public money for the support of our schools is very large, amounting for the past year to more than 25 per centum of our whole ordinary expenses, yet I believe that no citizen will for a moment doubt the expediency of a reasonable expenditure for this purpose, so long as it is judiciously and economically disbursed.

The amount expended exceeds that of any previous year, reaching to nearly $50,000; the principal items of this account are for teachers' salaries, $25,459.07; for new houses and alterations and repairs of old ones, and for land $17,351.81; the balance of the expenditure is for the usual incidental expenses of the department. Perhaps a sufficient explanation of this very great outlay for new houses and land will be found in the last paragraph of the report of the School Committee, and which is as follows:

“It is proper to state in explanation of the above account that the item ‘Alteration, Repairs and New Houses,’ includes not only almost the entire cost of the School houses erected this year, with their appurtenances, but also the whole expense of those erected last year, with the furnishings, fences and other things pertaining thereto; and in the item of ‘land for new houses’ is embraced not only the cost of the Dartmouth street lot, but also of that purchased last year on the corner of State and Merrimack streets."

In accordance with the report of the Committee on Public Instruction of the last City Council, and which it appears meets the approbation of the School Committee, a petition for an alteration of our City Charter has been forwarded to the Legislature, asking that the Charter may be so altered as to provide that after the next annual election, one person shall be chosen from each Ward as a member of the School Committee, who shall hold his office for three years, thus securing a majority from year to year of old and experienced members, a result, which, if attained, must operate very much to the advantage of this department. The subject of the appointment of a Superintendent of Public Schools, to which I alluded a year ago, and which has received the approval of the Committee on Instruction and also some action on the part of the School Committee, is referred to the present City Council.

I can but express the hope that the subject will meet with that consideration at your hands which its importance demands. I have no doubt that the appointment of a competent person to the office of Superintendent of our Public Schools, will have a most beneficial and lasting influence in the advancement of the most material interests of this branch of the public service.

From the report of the School Committee, I learn that our schools are for the most part in a prosperous condition.

I commend to your careful attention the remarks of the Committee, on the subject of truancy, for such action as you may deem expedient.

During the year just closed, the School House near Belville, has been completed and two others have been erected, one on Dartmouth street, and one at Haskins' Corner. Some further increase of School accommodations will probably be required the coming year.

It will afford me pleasure at all times to aid you in any effort that may tend to the advancement of our Schools, entertaining as I do the firm conviction that the city can devote its energies and resources to no worthier or nobler object.

FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Intimately connected with the subject of education for which our city so cheerfully makes provision, is the Free Public Library, an Institution worthy of the fostering care and support of the City Government, and of the generous and hearty encouragement of our citizens. My official connection with the Board of Trustees has afforded me the opportunity of witnessing some of the beneficial influences resulting from this means of intellectual and moral culture, and authorizes my commending it to a prominent place in your consideration.

The Library continues to be a place of favorite resort for very many of our citizens.

The number of books taken from the shelves for the year ending 3d mo. 4th, 1856, is 23,240.

The number of cards issued has been 754, making a total of 3,937.

During the year there have been added to the Library 979 volumes, selected with much care and a due regard to the varying wants of all our citizens, and embracing many excellent works in every department of literature and science. Of the above number 105 were donations.

But for these and other details, as well as for much suggestive matter connected with the whole subject, I would refer you to the Fourth Annual Report of the Trustees.

The want of a suitable building for the safer and more convenient accommodation of our valuable and increasing Library, is again urgently presented in their report. This subject received some attention from the last City Council, by which an appropriation was made for a building; a location was also decided upon, but owing to some embarrassing circumstances the further consideration of this subject will devolve upon the present Council. To that I invite your early attention.

ALMS HOUSE AND POOR.

Owing to the inclemency of the past winter the demands upon the charity of the city for relief, by persons out of the Alms House, has been large. The amount thus expended has been $4,262.64 of which $1433.82 was for fuel. Three hundred and twenty-five families were relieved; one hundred and thirty-four of these were the families of widows.

The amount expended for this department has been $15,899.40. Owing to the very extensive accommodations which have been provided at our Alms House establishment, the expenses of the department are very much increased beyond what our actual necessities demand. The State Alms House, at Bridgewater, at the time of its opening, took from us more than one half of our inmates, thus reducing our numbers most materially, without any great reduction of expense, except that for food.

Whether any means can be devised under our present system for a reduction of this expense, will properly be a subject for your consideration.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

During the year just closed, our city has been wonderfully preserved from the devastating scourge of fire ; the department has been called out 44 times ; 25 of which were false alarms. The loss of property beyond the amount insured has been about $6,800.

It affords me pleasure to state from information derived from the report of the Engineers, that harmony prevails in the department, and that all demands upon the Firemen for their services have been responded to with their usual promptness and alacrity.

One new Engine has been received and added to the force in possession of the City for extinguishing fires, as also a new Hook and Ladder Carriage, both of which were ordered by the former Board.

Three new Reservoirs have been constructed, and one on Purchase street, near William, has been discontinued, making the number now available 42, all of which are reported to be in good condition.

The amount expended for this department has been $18,213.44, for the details of which I refer you to the report of the Committee on Finance.

As I understand that everything connected with the apparatus for protecting our property from destruction by fire, is in good condition for any emergency, there will not probably be any great outlay required for this department the ensuing year, beyond the pay of Firemen, the necessary repairs of Engines and Houses, for Hose and the addition of two or three Reservoirs.

And now, Gentlemen, having thus in accordance with general usage, briefly touched upon some of the most important subjects which will claim your attention, let me in closing, bespeak your sympathy and cooperation in the duties which the present municipal year will devolve upon us, and express the hope that nothing may occur to disturb the harmony of our deliberations, and that we may come to the close of the year, conscious, individually and collectively, of having done our duty, our whole duty, and nothing but our duty.

BOARD OF ENGINEERS.

To the City Council of the City of New Bedford.

In compliance with the requirements of the City Ordinances, the Board of Engineers submit the following Report, relative to the present condition of the Fire Department, and the expenditures for its account during the past year. Likewise their estimate of the amount necessary to meet its present liabilities, and the probable outlay required for the ensuing year, viz:

|                                                            |             |
|------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| For pay of Firemen to 5th mo. 1st, 1855,                   | $6,068 45  |
| For construction and repairs of Reservoirs,                | 4,649 25    |
| For repairs of Engines, Hose and Engine Houses,            | 1,995 91    |
| For new Hose,                                              | 1,889 22    |
| For new Engine and Hose Reel for Company No. 5,            | 1,678 00    |
| For new Hook and Ladder Carriage,                          | 1,225 00    |
| For incidentals, including alterations of old Watch House, | 707 61      |
|                                                            | <hr/>       |
|                                                            | $18,213 44 |
| By balance of old account, 3d mo. 1st, 1855,               | $509 66    |
| Received of F. Underwood for stone,                        | 1 88        |
| By Annual Appropriation,                                   | 17,500 00   |
| By Amount overdrawn,                                       | 201 90      |
|                                                            | $18,213 44 |

It may be seen that the expenditures exceed somewhat the estimates of the preceding Board, which additional expense has been incurred by the purchase of new Hose, the construction of Reservoirs and the repairs of Engines and Engine Houses.

Three Reservoirs have been located and built the past year; one on Dartmouth street, near Allen street, one on the corner of Cedar and Morgan streets, and another on Mill, below County, making forty-two Reservoirs throughout the City, all of which are in good condition.

There have been added to the Department during the year, one new Hook and Ladder carriage, to replace the one formerly in use, and one new Engine, (both ordered by the preceding Board)—the latter placed in the house previously occupied by Engine No. 5, and that Engine has been put in good order for use as occasion shall require.

The following statement comprising the names and numbers of the several Engines belonging to the Department, will convey their capacities, and when and by whom built.

VETERAN No. 1.—Built in Philadelphia in 1821. Single cylinder, Perkins' Patent. Diameter of cylinder 7 inches. Stroke of piston, 17  $\frac{3}{4}$  inches.

CITIZEN No. 2.—(Located at the Head of the River.) Built in Philadelphia, by Mason, in 1802. Diameter of cylinders 6 inches. Stroke of piston, 9 inches.

OHIO No. 3.—Built in Philadelphia by John Agnew, in 1850. Diameter of cylinders 6  $\frac{1}{2}$  inches. Stroke of piston, 10  $\frac{1}{4}$  inches.

COLUMBIAN No. 5.—(Reserve Engine.) Built in New Bedford in 1826, by Timothy Delano. Diameter of cylinders 7 inches. Stroke of piston, 9 inches.

COLUMBIAN No. 5.—(New.) Built in Waterford, N. Y., by L. Button & Co., in 1855. Diameter of cylinders 10 inches. Variable stroke to piston, from 4  $\frac{1}{2}$  to 7  $\frac{1}{2}$  inches.

YOUNG MECHANIC No. 6.—Built in Philadelphia in 1854, by John Agnew. Diameter of cylinders 8 inches. Stroke of piston, 8 1-2 inches.

PHILADELPHIA No. 7.—Built in Philadelphia by Merrick & Agnew, in 1833. Diameter of cylinders 6 1-2 inches. Stroke of piston 9 inches.

HANCOCK No. 9.—Built in Philadelphia by John Agnew, in 1843. Diameter of cylinders 6 1-2 inches. Stroke of piston, 10 1-4 inches.

FRANKLIN No. 10.—Built in Philadelphia by John Agnew, in 1843. Diameter of cylinders 6 1-2 inches. Stroke of piston, 10 1-4 inches.

OREGON No. 11.—Built in Philadelphia by John Agnew, in 1847. Diameter of cylinders 6 1-2 inches. Stroke of piston, 10 1-4 inches.

HOOK AND LADDER CARRIAGE No. 1.—(Located on Purchase Street,) has attached, 5 Ground Ladders, 3 Roof Ladders, 1 Pike, 3 large Pole Hooks, 7 Fork Hooks, and 4 Axes.

HOOK AND LADDER CARRIAGE. (In reserve, located on Second Street,) has attached, 3 heavy Ground Ladders, 1 Medium Ladder, 1 Roof Ladder, 3 large Pole Hooks, 2 small Pole Hooks, 4 Fork Hooks and one strong Clasp Hook.

Spare ladders are also placed in the Engine Houses on Purchase, Foster, Fourth, Second and Third streets. These ladders are all from thirty to forty feet long.

There is in store twelve hundred feet of new leading Hose, and on the Reels attached to the different Engines, five thousand and fifty feet of Hose.

As the Engines and apparatus connected with the Department have increased, a necessity has been felt, that some building should be set apart in which to make repairs and alterations. Accordingly the room in the brick Engine House on Mechanics Lane, formerly used as a Watch House, has been fitted and supplied with the necessary tools for such purposes.

The various Engine Houses are in good repair, and have been kept neat and cleanly.

There has been purchased during the year eighteen hundred feet of new leading Hose, seven hundred feet of which was of large size, for Engine No. 5, and the remainder to replace Hose which had become poor and unreliable.

The Department has been called out forty-four times, twenty-five of which have been false alarms. The value of property destroyed, as near as could be ascertained, was $12,225. The amount of insurance on the same, $5,400. There have been six houses, eight barns, shops, &c., wholly or partially burnt during the year.

The several Companies have been well filled, and good order and harmony have prevailed.

The estimate of expenses for the Department for the ensuing year are, viz:

|                                          |             |
|------------------------------------------|-------------|
| For pay of Firemen to 5th mo. 1st, 1856, | $6,500 00  |
| For construction of Reservoirs,          | 4,500 00    |
| For incidentals,                         | 1,800 00    |
|                                          | $12,800 00 |

Should the foregoing meet the approbation of the City Council, there will be required for the Department an appropriation of thirteen thousand dollars, including the balance to the debit of account.

A number of young men, mostly minors, having purchased an Engine, and organized themselves as a Company, volunteered their services to the City as Firemen. Their Engine, which is styled No. 8, is located in the house on North Second street, formerly occupied by Engine No. 3. In closing our Report we have not thought it unfitting to express our satisfaction at the spirit and promptness with which they have attended upon all alarms of fire, and the promise they give of becoming an efficient aid and service to the community.

We would recur with pleasure to the entire Department for their general promptness and efficiency, not omitting the "Veteran Association of Firemen," whose services on one occasion were of material benefit.

Per order of the Board,

ZACHARIAH HILLMAN,

Chief Engineer.

Whole number relieved in Alms House, 240

Number of deaths (included among discharged,) 17

Of the admissions, 70 were on account of sickness; 54 for destitution; 7 for intemperance; 30 by sentence for Truancy. The inmates remained in the Alms House 3,311 weeks.

|           |                |
|-----------|----------------|
| Corn,     | 300 bushels.   |
| Barley,   | 56 1-2 "       |

|            |        |         |           | 431 61  |

Value of produce consumed by the family, $1,229 27

Mr. Briggs remarks in his statement of the Farm Produce that "a great portion of our time has been devoted to improvement on the Farm, such as clearing land of stone, and laying wall, which has increased the expenses of the Farm without proportionally increasing its products."

The following Farming Tools have been purchased during the year, and have increased unusually that item of expenditure in the account:

A Stone Digging Machine, a Mowing Machine, Roller, Fan Mill, Ox Sled, lot of Iron Axles, Blocks, Derricks and Harrow.

Out of the Alms House, relief has been granted to three hundred and twenty-five families, of which one hundred and thirty-four were those of widows.

The Overseers recommend the appropriation of $13,000 for the ensuing year.

To the Mayor and Aldermen, and the Common Council of the City of New Bedford :

GENTLEMEN :

THE Trustees of the New Bedford Free Public Library, in the discharge of a duty placed upon them by the Ordinance for its establishment, respectfully beg leave to lay before you their Fourth Annual Report.

So familiar have the inhabitants of our City become, through the former Reports of the Managers and their own experience, with the history, plan and condition of the Public Library, that we are not, as we believe, now called upon to enter much into detail upon either of these subjects.

Should any wish or necessity exist for information upon these points, we would respectfully refer the members of the City Council and the public generally, to the former communications from this body.

We would, however, impelled by the same feelings which have prompted our predecessors to adopt the language of earnestness and satisfaction in their Annual communications to the authorities of the City, with all the sincerity and pleasure which have marked the addresses of former bodies, present to you the expression of our confidence in the plan upon which the Library is founded, and our congratulations at the success which has attended the enterprise.

The successful experience of another year, has given increased evidence of the usefulness and stability of this new and most interesting feature in our municipal history.

It is undoubtedly true, that no act of the municipal authorities of New Bedford has reached, with its recreative and improving operation, so large a part of our population, and probably none has ever met so universally and deeply the approbation of the people.

How clearly and firmly has the idea taken root among us, that a Free Public Library is the crowning glory of the system of public education, which has been from our earliest history, the pride of Massachusetts.

The great and important work of the education of the people, called for an agency which should continue its operation when the school should give up the training of the youth, and the active duties of mature age should demand a large portion of the time and attention.

The habit of reading, formed and disciplined at school, finds in the Public Library the means of gratification and enlargement.

Mental culture, next to the nurture of those germs of immortality and eternal life which is man's most exalted prerogative, the highest privilege of our nature, quickened by the training which the teacher has bestowed, finds encouragement for continued and expanded effort, as hope and help are afforded by the ample stores of the Public Library.

Labor, seeking rest and recreation after the hours of toil are over, finds pleasure and profit, innocent enjoyment and permanent advantage, from the shelves of that ample collection of books which an enlightened municipal action has provided for its use.

The artist and the artisan, emulous of excellence and eager for improvement, resort to this repository of the works of genius and skill, and find guidance and encouragement as they make themselves acquainted with what has already been accomplished in their respective domains, and are made hopeful and ardent in their efforts after excellence.

Thus among our whole people, is felt the potent and healthful action of this large and carefully selected depository of literature, science and art.

Thus among all classes, is there diffused a love of those delights which attend upon the culture and exercise of the intellectual powers.

Thus are the grosser and hurtful modes of recreation avoided and discouraged, and relaxation from toil is no longer, from necessity, a temptation to injurious indulgence.

Thus is there fostered among us the love of elegance and refinement, a source of happiness to the possessor and full of good fruit in every community.

Thus do we encourage in their efforts after improvement and excellence, those who could not by their unaided exertions find access to those helps to progress and high attainment afforded by the recorded labors and discoveries of those who have trodden successfully the same paths before them.

Thus do we, by inciting to intellectual effort and an enlarged and refined intellectual action, give strength and activity to the higher principles of our nature.

Thus do we encourage the seekers after an exalting and refining course of pursuit, in their search after a knowledge of the good, the beautiful and the true in the domains of nature and art, giving a healthy and commanding activity to those tastes, habits and pursuits, which are in harmony with man's exalted nature and position, and give an assurance of his alliance with the spiritual and divine.

And we feel it allowable to us to add, to this brief enumeration of the benefits of widening and deepening the current of intellectual wealth, that its waters are not given for man's present well being and happiness only, but are intended to mingle in harmonious and aidful action, with the waters of life of that pure river, upon whose banks is found the tree whose leaves are for the healing and salvation of the nations.

Guided by the prominent and important fact that in the administration of the affairs of an institution thus popular in its origin and design, the reading of the people should be diversified and attractive, the Trustees have endeavored so to distribute their outlays as to meet this fundamental necessity.

Ours is a Library for the people. To meet the people's wants and the people's reasonable expectations, the books of a Library for them should be

" Various,
That the mind of desultory man,
Studios of change and fond of novelty,
May be indulged."

Within a reasonable limit, this desire for the recent and novel must be recognized and gratified. The new publications, when within the nature and means of our institution, must be found upon our shelves.

There are attractions in a new book which sometimes gives a charm to its pages to which it has no inherent claim. But while we have, as we believe, given due heed in sentiment and action to this fact, and have, in this respect, met the public expectation and demand, we have, to a greater extent than heretofore, added to the number of volumes of the standard literature of our language. Such books constitute the true wealth of every library; books of which the beauty never fades, and the wisdom is for all the ages.

Injustice is done to the popular mind, when it is represented as satisfied with the perusal of the light literature of the day. Most singularly unjust and offensive is the idea, that the vile pamphlets which are known as the yellow covered literature of the stews, are found to any considerable extent disseminated among the people. These books, reeking with impurity and poison, filled to repletion with all that can stimulate the prurient thought and give fatal activity to the beastly appetite, are not, we are confident, often met with among us.

But it is sorrowful to believe, that, to some extent, the young and thoughtless of our city are exposed to the deadly contamination of these pernicious publications.

We have reason to believe that the guilty vendors of these vile pages are here, carrying on in secret their horrible traffic, and doing all in their power to spread among our youth these polluted and polluting books.

Let the public sentiment brand the culprit with the deepest marks of its execration.

Let the public authorities bring forth from his hiding place this violator of human and divine enactments.

Let the outraged law visit him with its heaviest penalties, and shield with its protecting arm the youth of our city from the ruin which he spreads around him.

While we know that we are comparatively free from the corrupting influence of the books of which we have been speaking, we feel also confident, that there is no justice in the declaration that the public are satisfied with what is popularly called the light literature of the press, and seek no acquaintance with the more profitable and substantial works which are placed within their reach.

We believe that there is among our people an increasing disposition to give their time and attention less to the fictitious and ephemeral publications of the day, and more to those books, which give to the reader not only that pleasurable excitement which affords innocent recreation, but those lessons of knowledge and wisdom which render the perusal of their pages one of the most profitable pursuits in which we can engage.

We rejoice in this belief. Although we would pass no censure upon that course of reading which includes, to some extent, the light literature to be found in our depositories, we feel anxious that such mental entertainment should occupy a secondary place in the minds of the people. We are fully assured, that when the pleasure and profit of a higher grade of publications have once found a place in our experience, but little satisfaction is derived from the pages of the novels and noveletts which fill the shelves of the circulating library.

The work of training the mind to a fondness for reading should be commenced in early life. The habit of reading should be early formed. And while the young are still under the guidance and control of the parent and the teacher, should the foundation be laid, of that habit of healthful discrimination which will lead, in maturer age, to the rejection of the merely frivolous and exciting, and to the choice of such books as will carry forward in the mind and heart the work which anxious and judicious parents and experienced and interested teachers, have commenced.

We would counsel the parent to give earnest heed to this important subject. The books that his child is reading are doing a work of good or evil in the susceptible mind of his offspring, and in this branch of his training, as in every other, will it be found to be true "That as the twig is bent the tree's inclined."

It is not a habit of reading, merely, that brings pleasure and profit in its train.

A depraved appetite may be created which seeks gratification at the sacrifice of the highest good of the mind and heart.

But this can be guarded against, if, as the mental powers expand, they are exercised and disciplined, and nourished, by a course of reading and study which shall give them access to the pure fountains of our higher literature. The children of our schools should read, not only that they may learn that important art, but that the love of the true, the beautiful and good, may be awakened and cherished.

The use of good books, as instruments for training the young, has not been allowed its due importance by the teachers and superintendents of our schools and academies.

Reading and Grammar, while they have occupied a prominent place upon the list of studies, have too generally had attached to them a meaning so restricted and technical, that they have failed to fulfill the important work which truly belongs to them. If the maxims and definitions of Lindley Murray are recognized as the supreme law, and every word and sentence arranged and spoken in strict conformity with some one of the legion of the manuals of those language-mongers whose Grammars have become a nuisance among us, the work is supposed to be accomplished.

But all this may be done, and the disciple of Murray remain without any just conception of the powers and beauties of our noble language. All this may be done, and yet the reading of the scholar be utterly powerless. All this may be done, and yet the reader may not have the least apprehension of those niceties of meaning, those felicities of phrase and that profundity of thought, which constitute the excellence of the composition.

These remarks are not, we would respectfully submit, irrelevant to the object of this report. The purposes of the Free Public Library are the recreation, elevation and improvement of the public mind. The books to accomplish this work must be read, and read with a capacity to apprehend their meaning and with a mind trained to a love of the beautiful and true.

The books of our Library best fitted to carry forward the work of education, commenced in the Public School, are those which will not be read at all, or if read, will not be appreciated, by those who come forth from our schools destitute of the tastes and tendencies which seek opportunities for elevation and improvement.

Deeply impressed with this truth, and clearly convinced of the potential position of our higher literature in the work of training for usefulness and happiness the minds and hearts of the people, we have felt it to be our duty to call the attention of parents and teachers to this subject.

A great and good work will have been effected, when all our teachers shall clearly understand, and understandingly inculcate the sentiment, that correct reading is not an attractive and powerful delivery; and that a memory loaded by flattery or flagellation with every particle of the weariness of Murray and Brown, furnishes but little aid in the work of obtaining an accurate and extensive knowledge of our noble English tongue.

A knowledge of language and the ability to use it rightly, and fully to understand the written thoughts of others, or effectually to give them utterance, are acquisitions which follow a diligent and comprehensive study of the writings of those master minds, whose genius and labor have built up the massive and beautiful structure of English literature.

A mind thus prepared to appreciate and enjoy the books of a well selected depository, can understand and appreciate the language of the poet in his address to the silent teachers upon the shelves of his library:

“Whether ’tis yours to lead the willing mind
Through history’s mazes, and the turnings find;
Or whether led by science, ye retire,
Lost and bewildered in the vast desire;
Whether the muse invites you to her bowers,
And crowns your placid brows with living flowers;
Or godlike wisdom teaches you to show
The noblest road to happiness below;
Or men and manners prompt the easy page
To mark the flying follies of the age:
Whatever good ye boast, that good impart;
Inform the head and rectify the heart.”

During the year ending the 4th instant, there have been taken from the Library, twenty-three thousand two hundred and forty books.

The number of new cards issued within the same period is seven hundred and fifty-four.

The whole number of cards issued is three thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven.

The number of books out at this time is about twelve hundred.

Nine hundred and seventy-nine volumes have been, added to the Library.

Of this number, one hundred and five are donations.

The number of volumes now belonging to the Library, is rising nine thousand.

We would respectfully recommend to the City Government an appropriation of the same sum for the maintenance and increase of the Library as has been for the last two years, devoted to this object. This sum has been found sufficient to pay the annual expenses, preserve the Library from deterioration, and allow of an outlay for books sufficiently large to meet the reasonable expectations of the public.

The Trustees of the Library, in their last Annual Report, use the following language with reference to a building for its safety and accommodation.

“ While the Board would express themselves satisfied with the appropriation which was last year voted to the ‘support, maintenance and increase’ of the Public Library, and believe that the sum of two thousand dollars for the next year will be sufficient to sustain it in a creditable and useful position, they feel bound to call the attention of the City Government to the fact that more extensive and securer apartments are demanded for its accommodation.

“ The rooms now occupied by the Library are limited and unsafe. The public need better accommodations, and the books a safer depository. Our rooms are often too crowded for safety, comfort or convenience. Our books, now a large and valuable collection, are every moment exposed to destruction. We feel bound to state these facts without circumlocution or qualification.

“The public good, in its highest and most comprehensive meaning, demands, in our opinion, a depository for the Public Library, more extensive and more secure. The value of the books it contains, and the position it now occupies in the public mind, claim for it the means of a safer and more advantageous arrangement for its keeping and its use. In what way shall these objects so desirable, may we not say indispensable, be obtained? How shall this great and imminent want be met?”

The operations of the City Council during the year, render it apparent, that these views in relation to more convenient and safer accommodations for the Library, were met with favor on the part of its members. The response to the earnest questioning of the Trustees, was a liberal and sufficient appropriation for the erection of a building for the New Bedford Free Public Library.

But another year has passed by and the books are still where they long have been; imperfectly arranged, because space is wanting to have them otherwise, and constantly exposed to loss, injury and destruction, and the public are still suffering from the restricted accommodations allowed them when they visit the Library.

It belongs not to us to review the proceedings of the City authorities in relation to this subject, with a view to the determination of the question, why, with a Council unanimous in its action upon the proposition to erect a building for the Library, the building is not erected, and the books still remain in their exposed and inconvenient location.

It would have been highly gratifying to the Board, had they been called upon to discharge any service, however humble, in the important work of providing for the City a building for its Library, worthy of the wealth, liberality and intelligence of our inhabitants, and of that prompt, decisive and liberal action which marked the proceedings that resulted in the appropriation for this purpose.

But while the execution of this enlightened and generous design must be left with their successors, it will always remain an honorable distinction of the present Municipal Body, that they have laid the foundation for its ultimate accomplishment.

We would most respectfully avoid any expression of feeling or opinion, that does not belong to the position we occupy in relation to this subject, as the servants of the Council. We have set forth the wants of the Library. We have shown the necessity for ampler and safer accommodations. We have endeavored to present to you a faithful statement of the public wants and the public wishes. It only remains for us to express the hope, that it may be found in accordance with the public convenience, and a proper regard to prudence and economy to have no further delay in the commencement of this important undertaking.

The year that has passed, like those which have preceded it, since the opening of the Library, has afforded evidence of the interest with which it is regarded by the friends of "a more genial culture" both at home and abroad.

Books and other publications have been received as follows:

From Mrs. Eliza Wood, Charles L. Flint, Esq., Secretary of the Board of Agriculture, the Hon. J. H. W. Page, of Boston, the Hon. Thomas D. Eliot, Prof. Louis Agassiz, through the Hon. John H. Clifford, A. D. Bache, Esq., Superintendent of the Coast Survey, Martyn Paine, Esq., Thomas A. Greene, Esq., J. B. Congdon, Esq., the Hon. Shepherd Knapp, of New York, Charles Johnson, Esq., of Norwich, Henry C. Carey, Esq., of Philadelphia, Messrs. Lindsay & Blackstone, of Philadelphia, Doct. Edward Jarvis, of Dorchester, John Hartshorn, Esq., of Boston, the Smithsonian Institute, the Connecticut Horticultural Society, the State of New York, the Board of Education of the State of New York, the Commissioner of Patents, the State of Pennsylvania, and the Commissioners of the Boston Public Library, by the Hon. Robert C. Winthrop.

Some of the works thus received are rare and valuable, all useful, and all more than welcome. In accordance with our duty and our rules, we have already expressed our thanks to the generous donors for their valuable contributions. We would, however, in this public and general manner, convey to them on behalf of our City, a renewed declaration of our grateful feelings. May this thoughtful regard for the welfare and progress of our highly cherished Institution continue and increase; so that every year the Trustees may be called upon to discharge the pleasing duty of making public a long and continually lengthening list of its friends and benefactors.

We would close our Report by recommending the Free Public Library to the continued regard and fostering care of the Government and the People.

A small balance remains on the books of the City Treasurer to the credit of the account.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

GEORGE HOWLAND, JR.,

Mayor of the City, and, ex-officio,

Pres't of the Board of Trustees.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE of the City of New Bedford, in obedience to statute requirement, as well as in conformity to long established usage, respectfully submit the subjoined Report of their proceedings, and of the condition of the Department which has been under their charge, for the municipal year now about to close.

Considering the difficulties and embarrassments naturally arising from the fact, that an unusually large proportion of the Board were new members, who entered upon their present term of service with little or no prior experience in the management of School affairs, and with but a limited knowledge of the varied interests submitted to their guardianship, the Committee believe that they have accomplished as much for the welfare of our schools as, under the circumstances, could reasonably have been expected; though they are neither entirely satisfied with the results of their administration, nor with the manner in which they have discharged the obligations of the important trusts confided to their care. In a city like ours, a long experience as a member of the Committee, is necessary, for the attainment of that intimate acquaintance with the large number of teachers in the service, and that full and accurate knowledge of the numerous schools, and their still more numerous relations, which is indispensable, in order to the intelligent and proper discharge of the duties of the office ; and, therefore, no sweeping or extensive change in the constitution of the Board can, under ordinary circumstances, at once be made, without seriously endangering the prosperity of the School Department.

Realizing the consequences of such a change, in the obstacles which it has presented to their own operations during the year, the Committee have been gratified to learn that a movement has been made, in the City Council, to prevent the recurrence of the evil in future, by an alteration proposed to be made in the City Charter, for that purpose, providing for the election of the members of the School Committee for three years, with an arrangement whereby one member in each Ward may be elected annually. Securing as it will, at all times, a large majority of experienced members upon the Board, the Committee believe that the proposed alteration will, if carried into effect, be followed by the most favorable results, and they earnestly hope that the necessary steps will be taken to perfect it without delay.

The recommendation of a former Board, in favor of attaching to this department of the public service, a Superintendent of Public Schools, received some attention, in the City Council, during the latter part of the year. Pending the consideration of the matter in that Body, the present Board, having been called upon for an expression of their sentiments upon the subject, after some deliberation, passed the following resolution :

Resolved, That this Board have learned with great satisfaction that a proposition is now before the City Council for the appointment of a Superintendent of the Public Schools; that they believe the cause of education would be served by the appointment of such an officer, and the economical expenditure of the funds appropriated to the support of schools, would be promoted thereby.

Subsequent to this action on the part of the Committee, a report was made and adopted in the City Council, in favor of establishing the office, and recommending the subject to the favorable notice of their successors in the City Government. Thus the matter stands at the present time. And, deeply sensible of the importance of the proposed measure, and anxious to secure all the advantages which can be derived from its adoption, though with that degree of doubt and solicitude which some difference of opinion in the Board naturally engenders, as to the success of its practical operation in this locality, the Committee would respectfully but urgently request the incoming administration, in case they establish the office, duly to consider the character and circumstances of our city, and the qualifications requisite to be possessed by the incumbent, and place it upon such a basis in respect to salary, as will enable the Committee to secure a competent person to fill it, and thus give the experiment a fair trial.

Some complaint has been made during the year, that the Committee in filling the vacancies which from time to time have occurred in the corps of female teachers, have not properly considered the merits of our own citizens. The Committee, however, think that there has been no good reason for dissatisfaction in this particular, believing that if they have erred at all in this behalf, it has been rather in giving undue importance to citizenship, than otherwise, in making their appointments. The prosperity of our schools is a consideration which far outweighs in importance that of providing employment for our friends and neighbors; and it should ever be the object of the Committee to obtain those, as teachers, who combine the best qualifications for the employment;—at home if they can there be found, but abroad if necessary. And, in this connection, the Committee would take occasion to recommend to those females who may design to engage in the service of the city in the capacity of teachers, the propriety and advantage of attending, if possible, some one of our State Normal Schools before entering upon the occupation. The idea is far too prevalent in our community, that any young lady of fair intellectual capacity, graduating at the High School at the age, perhaps, of sixteen or seventeen years, is competent, at once, for the discharge of the duties of an instructor of youth. But, with few exceptions, this is very far from being the case. The wide range of study there pursued, necessarily precludes that thorough and systematic drilling upon particular branches, which experience has shown to be eminently serviceable in the preparation of teachers; neither is it to be expected that the pupils of the High School should be carefully instructed in the best means of imparting knowledge to others, or in those rules and regulations by which obedience to authority can best be enforced. The High School was not designed particularly for the preparation of teachers or for any other specialty, but to qualify, to some extent, those who might attend it, for the discharge of the various practical duties of life. But if the knowledge here to be acquired, be followed up by the course of training and instruction which it is the peculiar province of the Normal Schools to afford, no lady, possessing a fair natural adaptation to the profession, could, under ordinary circumstances, fail to command success as a teacher, from the beginning. It is perhaps neither practicable, nor desirable, to fill all the situations in our own public schools with teachers graduating from the schools in question. But if it were generally understood, that the Committee would appoint no teacher to a situation of any considerable importance, whose attainments were not very nearly equal to those possessed by the graduates referred to, it is believed that a more general use of these institutions would be made on the part of applicants, especially from our own community, as a means of elevating themselves to the standard required; and this not only with advantage to themselves, but to the great benefit of the educational interests of the city.

Frequent visits to the schools and their frequent examination, are important, not only to enable the Committee correctly to judge of the character and standing of the particular schools, but in giving stimulus and encouragement to both teachers and scholars in the performance of their respective duties. The former, if competent and faithful, derive new strength from the consciousness that their efforts are witnessed and appreciated; and the latter, aware that their attainments are to be subjected to the test of an examination, are impelled to greater care and attention in their studies and recitations, and to greater exertions for a respectable degree of advancement in their text books. Such, with many others, being the advantages which result from the performance of this duty, the Committee regret that the business engagements of many of their members have, as has often been the case in preceding years, prevented them from giving to it that degree of attention which its importance demands.

But though some of the schools may, in this respect, have been to some extent neglected, the Committee believe that, with the visits of the various Sub-Committees in the annual examination, and at other times, in connection with those of the Chairman, they have still the means of determining with at least an approximation to correctness, the progress and present condition of all the schools in the city. And the Committee with confidence express the opinion, that in the schools taken collectively, there has been gradual improvement during the year—that they are now, generally, in a better state than when the present Board assumed their supervision. Particular schools may, indeed, for a limited time, have deteriorated, rather than improved. Some of the teachers may have proved incompetent for the discharge of the duties assigned them, and others may have, to some extent, neglected those duties. But the Committee have endeavored to remove causes of complaint and supply deficiencies as they have come to their knowledge; and, without contending that the present prosperity of the schools is, in any great measure, to be attributed to their own efforts, or that under more favorable circumstances much more might not have been done for their advancement, they claim to have contributed in some degree to the present favorable state of things, and that they are entitled to a fair share of credit therefor.

The pages immediately succeeding contain a schedule of all the schools in the city, with the names of their present teachers, and the percentage and average attendance of each for the year.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

When it is considered that in these schools the foundation is laid for whatever instruction may subsequently be received, and that here also the young pupil receives those first impressions of the character and object of schools in general, which will probably make his attendance upon them either pleasant or repugnant to him during all his youthful days, it is obvious that they claim, equally with the others, the attention of the Committee, and that they cannot be neglected, without the consequences of such neglect being felt in all the higher grades of schools. While a wise regard should always be had to the main purpose which they were established to serve, too much effort cannot well be made to pervade them with a healthy moral influence, and to make them pleasant and attractive in all their adjuncts and surroundings. The discipline should be of the mildest character that is consistent with a reasonable degree of order, and the instruction should be so imparted as to animate and interest those who receive it. The exercises should be varied as much as possible to prevent them from becoming tiresome, and the ingenuity of the teachers constantly taxed to maintain a lively and unflagging interest. A warm love of children, engaging manners, and an equable temperament, are qualities the possession of which by teachers in this grade of schools, is indispensable to complete success; and it should be the aim of the Committee to provide them, as far as possible, with instructors of that character. That many of the teachers now in these schools, are wanting in some of the requisites of natural adaptation to their positions, is apparent, when the highest and lowest in rank are compared with each other. But how this consequence is to be avoided as long as the Primary Schools are considered as they now are, to some extent, as a means by which teachers are to acquire the necessary experience to qualify them for situations in the higher grades, is not easily to be perceived. In all of these schools the teachers appear to be endeavoring to perform their duties. But while in some, the recitations are marked by carelessness and indifference, rather than by animation and zeal; in others, all the exercises are characterized by earnestness and enthusiasm, and a visible pleasure is depicted upon the countenances of those who are engaged in them. And these differences are, no doubt, in a great measure, owing to the varying characteristics of the teachers, and the different methods of instruction pursued.

Hill Primary School. This school has made great improvement during the year, and the examining Committee report favorably respecting its present condition.

Parker Street Primary School. This school is not in a state entitling it to a very favorable notice from the Committee. It is wanting in interest and animation among the scholars; and in this respect, more particularly, a change for the better is greatly to be desired.

Cedar Street Primary School. This school is reported as being in an improving condition, though not in some respects in an entirely satisfactory state.

Maxfield Street Primary School. The remarks made in relation to the Cedar Street School, apply with equal propriety to this.

Charles Street Primary School. This school is now under the charge of Mrs. Patience R. Almy; Miss Jane M. Cook, the former Principal, having resigned her situation at the close of the summer term. Mrs. Almy has had much experience as a teacher, and the school, under her management, well sustains the good character which it has hitherto possessed.

William Street Primary School. This school has a corps of very industrious teachers, and is much in advance of many of its grade. The examination was quite satisfactory.

Bush Street Primary School. This school is under active and vigorous management, and the recitations and other exercises of the scholars, exhibit much of that life and spirit which it is always pleasant to witness in a school. It is among the first of its grade, and has but one superior in the city.

Sixth Street Primary School. This school has made some improvement during the year, but still occupies a position much inferior to that which has been attained by some others of its class.

Griffin Street Primary School. The system of instruction and mode of management followed in this school, might, it is believed, be imitated with the most favorable results, by the teachers of many of the other schools, not only of the same, but of a higher grade. The exercises, of whatever nature, are always interesting, because both teachers and scholars are evidently interested in them. Every thing appears to be done in this school, with a love of doing it, and a will to do it well. The school has long sustained an enviable reputation; and some fears were entertained by the Committee, that the resignation of Miss Howe, the former Principal, which took place in the latter part of the Fall term, might unfavorably affect its character. Miss Lothrop, her successor, has, however, proved herself to be equal to all the requirements of her position; and though the school may not have gained, it has suffered no material loss from the change.

INTERMEDIAL SCHOOLS.

Many of teachers employed in this grade of schools are among the best in the service; and, as might be expected, they are for the most part in very good condition. Experience has shown, that a thorough course of training upon the introductory portions of the text books here used, is far more serviceable, as a preparation for the Grammar Schools, than a more extensive field of study, less perfectly pursued. And with reference to no branch of education taught in these schools, is constant and careful drilling upon first principles, of more especial importance, than in that of Reading. It is here that the scholar's habits in reading are chiefly formed; and, therefore, the utmost care should be taken by the teachers to give them a right direction. Much attention should be given both to the vocal exercises introductory to the reading books, and to those preceding each lesson. Great advantage is also to be derived from the frequent enunciation of the elementary sounds of the letters of the alphabet. Concert exercises in reading may also be occasionally introduced, with profit, for the purpose of forming the habit in the scholar of rendering the meaning of the author with naturalness and expression. In those of these schools in which the system of instruction, above indicated, is closely followed, the scholars appear to much better advantage, than in those where they are taught upon a different principle.

Under this prefatory notice, the remark may, perhaps, most appropriately be introduced, that in one or two of these schools, the manners of the teachers, in their general management, and in their intercourse with the scholars, are not characterized by that degree of refinement which is to be desired.

Hill Intermedial School. This school is under energetic management, and maintains its former good character as an orderly, well conducted school. The excellence of the classes in Arithmetic is particularly noticed by the examiner in that branch.

Parker Street Intermedial School. The order of this school is good, and its condition has decidedly improved during the year. The chief deficiency in this school consists in a want of a proper degree of spirit and animation among the scholars; and if some means could be devised by the teachers to remedy this difficulty, nothing more, it is believed, would be requisite to give the school a high rank among those of its grade.

Maxfield Street Intermedial School. This school has sent a large number of scholars to the Grammar Schools during the year; and, as a consequence, there were no classes far advanced at the time of the examination. The classes appeared well, however, as far as they had progressed in their studies; the discipline is good; and the school is considered to be in a flourishing condition.

Kempton Street Intermedial School. Miss Howland, the former excellent Principal of this school, resigned her situation near the close of the Fall term; and Miss Margaret T. Barker, formerly of the Middle Street Grammar School, was appointed to fill the vacancy thus occasioned. The discipline of the school has improved under its new management; and the examining Committee express themselves as much pleased with the thoroughness of instruction manifested by the classes. The Principal is laying well the foundations for a good school; as will be more apparent as time shall furnish opportunity for the development of the natural fruits of the system pursued.

William Street Intermedial School. This school has a great advantage over any other of its grade, in the possession of a corps of teachers, all of whom are of superior excellence, who act in perfect harmony with each other, and have for a long time retained their present positions, steadily refusing any change or promotion that does not include their whole number, and provide for their joint action in any new field of labor to which they may be transferred. As a consequence, the school is believed to be without a superior of its kind; and is particularly characterized by the rapid progress and excellent training of those who attend it. It is commended as an example of what can be accomplished in a school of this grade, by experienced, skilful and energetic teachers.

Bush Street Intermedial School. This school continues under the same Principal as last year, and has lost nothing of its former good reputation, as being one of the best of its grade. The happy moral spirit with which the scholars of this school are imbued, affording as it does, many facilities for their government and instruction, is not among the least of the good qualities which have given it its present high rank.

Sixth Street Intermedial School. This school has made marked improvement during the year. The government is good; the classes, with but few exceptions, stand well, and the school may now be regarded as being in most respects, in a flourishing condition.

Grove Intermedial and Primary School. An alteration in the room in which this school is held, was made early in the year, with a view of removing some of the evils which resulted from the union of the two grades. The room was divided by a partition into two apartments, one of which accommodates the smaller Primary scholars, and the other the Intermedial and larger Primary. Though this arrangement is a great improvement upon the old, it separates the two grades only in part; and the school is still subjected to many of the disadvantages which formerly existed. Miss Caroline E. Bonney, the former Principal, resigned her situation at the close of the Summer term, and was succeeded by Miss Phebe B. Cathell. Miss Cathell has heretofore ranked as one of our best teachers; and though the result of the last examination is rather unfavorable to the comparative standing of that department of the school which has been under her immediate control, the Committee have entire confidence in her ability, and look for more favorable results in the future.

The Primary department of this school is in excellent condition. The examining committee express themselves as being very much gratified with the attainments of the classes, and with the great improvement made.

Charles Street Intermedial School. This school is not composed of the class of pupils best adapted to give it a high standing in respect to scholarship, but the order is good, and its general condition, creditable.

MIXED SCHOOL.

This school, as is well known, was established for the accommodation of those whose age and size render them unsuitable for the Intermedial schools, and who have not the requisite qualifications to entitle them to admission to the Grammar Schools. "Habitual truants," and the disorderly and unmanageable in the other schools, are also sent to this, as occasion requires. The labor of instructing and disciplining scholars of the character thus brought together, is by no means one inviting in its nature; yet, judging by the standard of success, the teachers of no school are more deserving of praise; especially when it is considered that it is only by the most patient and indefatigable exertions, that success to them is possible. The location of this school is very unsuitable, it being much disturbed by the rattling of carriages, and by various other noises in its vicinity; and it is hoped that some provision for its better accommodation will soon be made, by the erection of another building in a more favorable locality.

COUNTRY SCHOOLS.

Notwithstanding the distance of several of these schools from the more populous part of the city, which subjects them to some liability to neglect, they have received a due share of the attention of the Committee during the year, and are all considered to be in a very satisfactory condition.

North School. This school, has for some years past, been under the charge of a succession of good teachers; and its most advanced class will now compare favorably with the first classes in any of our Grammar Schools. Mrs. Jane C. Thompson, who was Principal of the school in the early part of the present year, was transferred to the Cannonville School at the commencement of the Summer term, and was succeeded by Miss Lois N. Deane, under whose management the school has since been. The school is very favorably reported; and in point of excellence of scholarship, ranks first among those of its class.

Acushnet School. On the opening of the Belville School at the beginning of the Summer term, the Committee acting upon the suggestion contained in the Report of last year, united the Intermedial and Primary schools at this place, with the Grammar School; and this arrangement has been continued without detriment to either, during the remainder of the year. The school remains under the charge of Mr. William A. Chamberlain, with Miss Susan E. Harrington as Assistant, and continues in a prosperous condition.

Belville School. This school opened at the commencement of the Summer term in the new building completed in the Spring, and the number and size of the pupils who have attended it, are sufficient proof of the wisdom and necessity of its establishment. The scholars are nearly all small; but the school is pervaded with life and animation, and under the industrious and faithful teacher, (Miss A. J. Borden,) having it in charge, it is rapidly improving.

Perry's Neck School. This school, since the commencement of the Fall term, has been under the charge of Miss Alice Barker, and is very favorably reported. The order is good, and the exercises show thoroughness and faithfulness on the part of the teacher, and industry and zeal on the part of the scholars.

Haskin's Corner School. This school was suspended during the Fall term, on account of the erection of a new building upon the site of the old one. A new house had become necessary, the accommodations afforded by the former one being of a very poor character, and altogether insufficient for the number of scholars to be provided for. The school again opened at the commencement of the Winter term, and has had an unusually large attendance. The school continues under the charge of Miss Miranda Williams, who is entitled to much credit for the ability and success with which she has governed and taught the large number of scholars who have been under her control.

Cannonville School. This school, in the early part of the year, was in a very unsatisfactory condition. The school was very large, and the scholars for the most part, of rather an intractable and disorderly character; and the task of keeping them under any reasonable degree of restraint, situated as they were, large and small in the same room, was one of no little labor. Mrs. Jane C. Thompson was appointed Principal at the beginning of the Summer term, under whose administration the school was much improved; but the scholars could not be taught with advantage under the arrangement then existing, and it was deemed advisable by the Committee to divide the school, and place the larger scholars by themselves in the upper story of the building, which was accordingly done. The change has proved highly advantageous to the school, and it has since continued rapidly to advance in standing. During the latter part of the Winter term, Mrs. Thompson was transferred to the Parker Street Grammar School, and was succeeded by Miss Alvira D. Burdon, under whose management the Committee have confidence that the school will continue to prosper. Miss Bryant, the Assistant, has charge of the lower apartment, and the Committee have been much pleased with the order and neatness which there prevail, and with her general method of management.

Dartmouth Street School. The wants of the South-western section of the city, have long called for better school accommodations in that locality, and the demand has at length been supplied by the erection of a new school house on Dartmouth street. The lower story only, of the building, was at first finished; but that being found insufficient for the accommodation of the scholars, the upper story has likewise since been prepared for their reception. The school opened at the commencement of the Fall term, with Miss Ann M. Bonney as Principal, and Miss Mary A. Crapo, as Assistant; and was in a very excellent state, both in respect to order and the attainments of the pupils, at the time of the Annual Examination. At the beginning of the present term, Miss Eliza A. Sisson was added to the school, in the capacity of Second Assistant, and under the very able corps of teachers now having it in charge, no doubt need be entertained of its continued prosperity.

Clark's Point School. The attendance at this school had become so very small, and so little interest was manifested in its behalf by the inhabitants in its vicinity, that the Committee decided to suspend the school for the Summer term. At the beginning of the Fall term, however, some renewed interest having been awakened, the school was again opened with some increase of attendance, under the temporary charge of Miss Miranda Williams, of the Haskin's Corner school. Miss Elizabeth R. Howland was appointed to the Principalship of this school at the commencement of the Winter term, and judging from her success in this limited sphere of action, she gives good promise of becoming one of our first teachers. The attendance, though much better than formerly, is still small, (the average for the last term being only 14,) yet, with a fair prospect of a considerable accession to the present number during the warmer season, and with the favorable state of things pertaining to the school in other respects, the Committee would not advise either its discontinuance or renewed suspension.

Alms House School. This school still continues under the charge of Miss Hannah S. Macomber, who, from the commencement of her labor in her present position, has met with marked success in the government and instruction of the class of children of which this school is composed. As its name implies, the school is designed for the instruction of the children connected with the Alms House; but the immediate necessity of its establishment, resulted from the designation of that Institution by the City Government, as the House of Reformation, &c., named in the Act concerning Habitual Truants. The number of children now in confinement at the Alms House, under the Truant Act, is very small; only six being in attendance at the last examination. The falling off in the number of this class, is owing to various causes, which it might be proper to enumerate in this connection. Complaints have repeatedly been made on the part of parents and others interested, that the Alms House is by no means a fit place for the confinement of this, in many respects, unfortunate class of children. During school hours they are, indeed, under the best of influences; but at other times, with no regular employment, and without the oversight of any individual interested in their welfare, they associate freely with the inmates of the establishment, and with each other; and thus subject for a large portion of the time, to the contaminating influences and example of the corrupt among their own number, and the vicious among those with whom they mingle, it is not surprising if, as is alleged, many of them leave the place at the expiration of the term of their sentence, morally, no better, at least, than when they entered it. So strong is the opposition to the law itself, and so many are the obstacles thrown in the way of its execution, in consequence of the objections above named, that the Chairman of the present Board, by whom the prosecutions under it have hitherto been conducted, has latterly deemed it inexpedient to attempt its rigid enforcement; and, in consequence, few complaints have been made during the last three or four months of the year, against those subject to its provisions; and of the number previously prosecuted, but a small part have been sentenced. It is believed, nevertheless, that the Statute itself, when its design is properly carried out, is beneficial in its operation; and that its repeal would be attended with very unfavorable results. But the whole matter, both in relation to the means by which the enactment is carried into effect, and the disposition of those violating its provisions, needs to be put upon an entirely different foundation, so far as our own city is concerned. There is a large number of boys daily rambling about our streets, who are no doubt liable to prosecution under the law, whose cases do not come, neither, under the present arrangement, can it be expected that they should come, to the knowledge of the Committee now having this matter in charge. And besides, that Committee, as at present composed, cannot, even under the most favorable circumstances, properly attend to all the duties pertaining to their official position. Some further means are necessary to secure the general and more prompt execution of the law; and if no better method of accomplishing this object, is suggested, that of constituting the "Committee on Truants," wholly, or in part, of discreet members of the Police force, might be tried with advantage. And, in regard to the disposition of these "truants," some place should be provided for them, in which they may receive not only the best instruction, but where they may have the constant supervision of those who will exert themselves to correct their evil tendencies, and encourage them to reformation. All their associations and influences should be of a character to stimulate the moral and religious elements of their nature. They should have, also, constant and regular employment during a prescribed portion of each day.

In view of what has been above stated, it is a question deserving the serious consideration of our City Government, whether the time has not arrived for the establishment of a separate institution designed especially to meet the wants of this large class of boys. It is believed that there are not less than fifty of this description of boys now in the city, who might be subjected to the influences which a Farm School, or some establishment of that kind, would afford, not only with advantage to themselves, but to their parents and the community at large.

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

These schools are generally in a very satisfactory condition ; though the standard of excellence in some of them is not quite so high as is desirable. A desire has been repeatedly expressed on the part of several of the teachers of these schools, that the regulation providing for the admission of scholars to them from the Intermedial Schools, should be so changed as to allow these scholars to be admitted only at the commencement of the Summer and Winter terms, instead of at the beginning of every term, as is now the case. It is urged in support of the proposed alteration, that the Grammar Schools are relieved of a class only on the occurrence of the semi-annual examinations for the admission of scholars to the High School, which take place in June and December, and that they can, therefore, accommodate a new class at the time mentioned without difficulty ; while if admitted at the beginning of the intervening terms, it seriously interferes with the good arrangement of the classes in these schools, and causes great embarrassment to the teachers in other respects. The subject is deserving of consideration, and is commended to the notice of the new Board.

An instructor in Singing was employed in the schools of this grade, during the early part of the Winter term, with the design of testing the effects of the exercise upon the scholars, and of judging from its general influence, whether or not it might be advisable to provide for the teaching of this branch of education in the Intermedial and all the higher grades of schools. The instructor, Mr. Jason White, has had several years experience in teaching the art in the Public Schools of Providence, where he met with excellent success ; and judging from his mode of teaching and the interest which he has awakened in the subject during the brief period of his labor here, it is believed that no person better qualified, as an instructor, could be found, if it should be determined to make the teaching of Singing a permanency in the schools in question.

The remarks in relation to Reading, under the head of Intermedial Schools, apply with equal force to the teaching of that branch in these schools ; in some of which, the method there indicated, has been pursued with excellent effect.

Parker Street Grammar School. The Board of last year, partly for the purpose of providing accommodations in the building occupied by this school, for the scholars who had previously attended the Hill Grammar School, and partly with the view of introducing here a system which has been successfully pursued in some of the Grammar Schools of Boston and vicinity, removed the walls previously separating the main room from the recitation rooms, throwing the whole into one large apartment, and then divided the same by means of sliding partitions, into four rooms of equal size ; one of which is occupied by the Principal, and each of the others by an Assistant. The theory of the system is that the time lost by the passing of the classes from the main room to and from the recitation rooms, is saved by this arrangement, and that many other advantages are secured, by giving, as it does, to each teacher, the immediate care and management of all the classes coming under his instruction. But, however well the plan may have succeeded in other places, it has not met the expectations of those who introduced it here, owing in part, perhaps, to the imperfect manner in which it was put in operation. The partitions separating the rooms are not of sufficient thickness to obstruct, in any considerable degree, the passage of sound; and consequently, in order to avoid interrupting the exercises which are going on in the adjoining rooms, modes of hearing recitations, not the best calculated to secure either the attention of the scholars, or to make the ability and efficiency of the teachers available, have to be pursued in each. Owing to the combination of qualities—rendered necessary, in part, by the embarrassment arising from this defect—required to be possessed for the government and instruction of the number of scholars contained in each of these rooms, the Committee have had much difficulty in procuring Assistants of the proper character for this school; and for this reason there has not been that uniform progress in all of its departments, which was to have been desired. The room which has been under the immediate management of the Principal, has invariably appeared well; and the large number of scholars sent from this school to the High School, during the year, attest his ability as an instructor, and evince the value of his labors. Much credit is also due to Miss Gardner, for the good order prevailing in her department, and for the fidelity with which she has discharged the onerous duties of her position. Some further change in the interior arrangement of the school room, with the view of removing the causes which now detract from the character of the school, will probably be found necessary, before its condition and progress as a whole, will be satisfactory.

Middle Street Grammar School. The Principal of this school is eminently deserving of commendation, for the improvement which he has in every way effected in its character and condition since it has been under his charge. The excellent moral tone of the school, and the harmony and good feeling manifested between scholars and teachers, are due in a great measure to his exertions; and the school, as a whole, furnishes a happy example of what teachers, fully competent in respect to qualifications, and animated by a worthy ambition to excel, can accomplish, even under circumstances somewhat unfavorable to success.

Charles Street Grammar School. Miss Abbie Nelson, the former excellent Principal of this school, resigned her situation at the close of the Summer term, much to the regret of the Committee, and of all others interested in the welfare of the school. She was succeeded soon after the commencement of the following term, by Miss Nancy Burr, under whose supervision the school has since continued. The classes are, for the most part, very favorably reported, and some of those of the First Assistant, Miss Colburn, are especially commended. Perfect neatness and order prevail in all the departments; there is no lack of exertion on the part of either Principal or Assistants; and the school is in a highly prosperous condition.

Bush Street Boys' Grammar School. This school maintains its character for superior excellence in Arithmetic; and some of the classes in other studies, also passed a creditable examination. But though this school in many respects appears well, the scholars are not engaged in their work with that zeal and enthusiasm which are manifested by those of some of the other schools of this grade; and a more hearty co-operation between the teachers, and a warmer sympathy between them and the scholars, are also believed to be necessary, to make the school in all respects what it should be.

Bush Street Girls' Grammar School. Nearly the whole of both the first and the second classes in this school, were admitted to the High School at the December examination of candidates; and the school has sent, during the year, a much larger number to the High School, in proportion to its size, than any of the other schools. This fact alone, is a sufficient indication that the school continues to maintain the high rank among those of its class, which it has hitherto possessed.

Grove Grammar School. This school is in very fair condition. Mr. Cornish, the Principal, is a good teacher, and is laboring earnestly and successfully in his present location. Among several of the classes favorably reported, particular mention is made of one of Miss Tobey's, in Grammar.

HIGH SCHOOL.

The attention of the Committee was early directed to the recommendation contained in the Report of last year, and after giving the matter due consideration, they determined to abolish the Female Principalship in this school. It is not, perhaps, necessary here to enumerate the reasons which led the Committee to this determination, it being sufficient to state, that a proper regard for the welfare of the school, seemed not only to justify, but imperatively demand the taking of this step. Miss Converse, therefore, retired at the expiration of the Summer term, and the Female department was subsequently put under the immediate direction of Miss Eliza H. Tobey, ranking as an Assistant, as heretofore, Mr. Emerson being made Principal of the whole school. At the June examination, a class of thirty-seven in number was admitted, followed by a class numbering sixty-one in December; and the school, during the last term, has had an average attendance of ninety-three in the Female department, and of fifty-eight in the Male department. Mr. Newcomb, the former Male Assistant in this school, resigned his situation at the close of the Fall term, for the purpose of taking charge of the High School in Brighton; and Mr. William E. Fuller was appointed to the vacancy thus made. Mr. Fuller has given very good satisfaction since he has occupied this position; and the Committee deem themselves fortunate in securing his services. A native teacher of the French language was employed in this school soon after the commencement of the last term, and it is earnestly hoped that the services of the same individual will be continued. It is urged as an argument against the employment of such a teacher, that the regular teachers now in the school, are fully competent to give all the instruction requisite to enable the scholars to read the French language understandingly, and thus enjoy the chief benefit to be derived from its knowledge; and this cannot be denied. But, on the other hand, it is believed that the progress of the pupils in attaining an acquaintance with the language, is much more rapid under the instruction of a competent native teacher, than under any other. Besides, the employment of such a teacher, gives a character to the school, which has a tendency to make its advantages sought for by the better class of scholars. The High School should be equal to any in the city, not only in the means which it affords of obtaining an education, but also in the scholarship of those by whom these means are enjoyed. And if the Committee would have it sustain that position, they must provide it with such teachers and such advantages, as will attract to it, and retain in it, those who are most studious, and most ambitious for extensive culture.

The examinations which have been had during the year, have not been very thorough or extensive; but, so far as conducted, have been satisfactory. Notwithstanding the large accession to the number of scholars during the year, the standard of scholarship in the school has not, it is believed, been lowered, those entering being equal, if not superior in their attainments, to those admitted during the preceding year. Under the arrangement made on the retirement of Miss Converse, the school has been managed very pleasantly and satisfactorily to both teachers and scholars; and if it does not now compare favorably with the best schools of its class in other cities, circumstances are propitious for its soon reaching that desirable condition. Since the close of the Summer term, only four regular teachers have been employed in the school, till, at the commencement of the present term, Miss Caroline E. Bonney was added to the corps of instructors, in the capacity of Assistant.

EVENING ADULT SCHOOL.

The object of this school is sufficiently indicated by its title; and it is only necessary to observe that the advantages which it affords, are eagerly embraced by quite a large number of the class of persons for whose special benefit it was established. The school was opened on the first day of October, and has been continued twenty-four weeks; with an average attendance in the Male department, for the whole season, of forty-one, and in the Female department, of sixty-six. The whole number entered in the first named department was one hundred and sixty-two; and the average attendance, for the first twelve weeks was fifty-three; and the whole number entered in the other department was two hundred and seventeen; with an average attendance, for the corresponding period, of eighty-six. Having for the most part been under the charge of teachers of much experience, the instruction in these schools has been, of the character best adapted to promote the rapid advancement of those to whom it has been imparted, and in many instances very commendable progress has been made by the scholars. But from the nature of the material of which the school is composed, and from the fact that the instruction is necessarily confined entirely to elementary principles, no very striking results are to be expected.

SCHOOL PROPERTY.

Three School Houses—including the one at Belville, which was commenced early in the last Spring, but was completed after the organization of the present Board, —have been erected during the present year; all of which have been incidentally noticed in connection with the remarks made under the head of the respective schools which have been established in them. The School House erected on Dartmouth street, is upon the same general plan as the one erected last year on Cedar street; there being four rooms of moderate dimensions, two in the lower, and two in the upper story of the building, each designed comfortably to accommodate from forty to fifty scholars. As the school is at present arranged, the lower rooms are occupied one by the Primary, and the other by the Intermedial scholars; and one of the upper rooms by the Grammar scholars, the remaining room being as yet not in use. The whole establishment including land, buildings, fencing, grading, &c., has cost a sum probably exceeding $5,000; and both in its interior and exterior arrangements presents a very handsome appearance.

The new house at Haskin's Corner, is also a very neat and well arranged building; and has cost, including the expense of fitting up and fencing the lot, a sum not varying much from $1,100.

The spacious lot occupied by the School House erected at Belville, has been enclosed by a handsome fence, and the cost of the buildings, together with these items of expense, has been about $1,300.

The lots occupied by the Cedar street and Maxfield street School Houses, respectively, have also been neatly and durably enclosed.

The upper story of the School House occupied by the Cannonville school, has been finished and prepared for the accommodation of scholars, as has been already noticed under the head of that school.

An urgent request was made in the early part of the year, for the erection of a School House for a Primary and an Intermedial school, on the lot purchased last year for that purpose, on the corner of State and Merrimack streets. The Committee, after some investigation, becoming satisfied of the immediate necessity of further accommodations, in that locality, for Primary scholars, and believing that additional accommodations would very soon be required for Intermedial scholars also, made application to the City Council for permission to erect such a building as was called for. The City Council granted the authority required, provided that the building could be erected out of the funds already appropriated for the support of Schools; but as with that proviso the object could not be accomplished, nothing further has been done in relation to the matter.

Some change will no doubt very soon be found necessary in the location of the South Grammar Schools. The Grove school is at present very inconveniently situated for the larger portion of the scholars attending it, and as is well known, the building now occupied by the Bush Street School, is but poorly adapted to the purposes for which it is used. It is suggested that the plan which has been proposed, of removing the Grove school to some situation considerably to the north and west of its present locality, should either be carried into effect, or the alternative plan adopted, of erecting a building somewhere in the vicinity of the intersection of Russell and Sixth streets, designed to accommodate all the Grammar Schools in the southern section of the city. Considering the poor quality of the Bush street building, the latter of the two plans will in the end, perhaps, prove most economical, and is on that account to be preferred. But if such a step is really contemplated, it is desirable that early measures should be taken to secure a suitable lot in the vicinity designated, before all the land shall be appropriated to other purposes.

FINANCIAL.

The amount of expenditures by the School Department for the year ending March 1st, 1856, and the condition of its funds at that date, are exhibited in the following account:

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT DR.

|                                      | $49,944.01 |

It is proper to state in explanation of the above account that the item of "Alterations, Repairs and New Houses," includes not only almost the entire cost of the School houses erected this year, with their appurtenances, but also the whole expense of those erected last year, with the furnishings, fences and other things pertaining thereto; and in the item of "Land for new Houses" is embraced not only the cost of the Dartmouth street lot, but also of that purchased last year on the corner of State and Merrimack streets.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GENTLEMEN OF THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN, AND OF THE CITY COUNCIL:

Another municipal year has closed. The terms of office of those who have had the administration of the affairs of the city in their hands has expired, and we have met in conformity with the provisions of the City Charter to organize the government for the ensuing term.

In taking our respective oaths of office we have assumed the responsibility, and have pledged ourselves to the faithful discharge of our duties. The wise and judicious government of any community, however small, is not an easy or trivial matter. The offices which we hold to-day by the suffrage of our fellow-citizens, are not merely honorary positions designed to enlarge our self-consequence or amuse our conceits. Serious and earnest is the work with which we have been entrusted, and in order that we may enter upon it intelligently, and with some sense of our accountability, I ask your attention to a few remarks upon the general nature of the business before us, and upon some of the particular subjects which will demand our consideration.

The present condition of our city reflects great credit upon previous administrations. Our history is one of almost unparalleled prosperity. Imagination, too, pictures a bright and glorious future, beckoning us on to still greater happiness and prosperity; but between the dead past and the ideal future, there is the living present, full of toil and care, and anxiety to us, that we may add shining pages to the one, and hasten the approach of the other. We shall accomplish much if we equal our predecessors, but lest we fall below the mark, let our aim be to excel them.

Those who have placed us here expect, and have the right to demand that we not only preserve what has already been accomplished, but that we make every advancement to secure the best government possible. While we thus recognize our responsibility, let us be careful to distinguish between it, and that trimming to the popular breeze, which proceeds only from a thirst for popularity. An independent, high toned conservatism alone can give dignity to the government, or advance the great ends for which all government is established.

He greatly mistakes I apprehend, who supposes that the objects of government are fully attained by the providing of Schools and Libraries, the opening of streets, and the economical appropriation of money for these purposes, indispensable indeed as such things are. The great end is government itself—the securing and maintaining of order, amidst elements of disorder, the preserving of peace and harmony where otherwise would exist turmoil and confusion.

The government of a city differs not in essential respects from other and higher forms of it. It is nearer to the people and more identified with their interests. They feel more its restraints and experience more directly its advantages. Consequently the acts of Municipal officers are more frequently the subject of remarks, sometimes judicious, but often severe and unjust. To intelligent criticism we certainly should not object—neither if we stand fast in our integrity have we any occasion to fear it. And thus while we cannot but regret ill advised attacks, they should neither influence nor disturb us.

In the administration of public affairs, general experience has shown that all men feel more or less, the restraints of government and manifest a desire to be rid of its burdens. Though good citizens and willing to make sacrifices for the public welfare, and although having entrusted all public matters into the hands of officers of their own electing, yet they stand at times in a sort of antagonistic relation and put themselves into an attitude of defence. It is our duty beyond all question to make the necessary restraints and burdens of the government, as few, as light, and as equal as possible, but at best we can only approximate to such a result, more or less nearly according to the degree of judgment and care we exercise.

Government on the other hand guarantees protection to life, to liberty, and the enjoyment of property, and in general makes good its guarantee—yet there are and always will be cases quite beyond its reach. Government too redresses wrongs; yet all wrongs cannot be redressed, nor can we so regulate public affairs as never to prejudice individual comfort and happiness. Unfortunately the general welfare is not always consistent with the welfare of each individual. It is by reason of misunderstanding these things that complaints are often made, when no cause for complaint exists.

The duties of all the branches of the City government are onerous, but especially so is it with the Executive, and our citizens do not, I think, discriminate with sufficient clearness between the several departments, and the powers and duties belonging to each. I do not wish to shrink from any responsibility properly belonging to me, but many seem to entertain the idea that the Mayor, though not the whole city government, yet by some municipal imputation, which I do not understand nor acknowledge, is responsible for the short comings and misdoings of all.

I have great confidence, gentlemen, in you all, yet you will allow me to protest against being held accountable for all you may at any time see fit to do, as on the other hand I should be very sorry to have you answerable for all the vagaries of the Executive.

I cannot refrain in this connection, from a grateful acknowledgment to my fellow-citizens, for the honor which they have conferred upon me, and confess to them a feeling of want of confidence in my entire ability to discharge duties so various and so new to me. I can only promise to bring to the conduct of the affairs now entrusted to me, a single purpose to do according to my best knowledge and judgment. I have, in so far as I know myself, no other end than the best interests of the city, and in prosecuting them I shall endeavor to act independently and conscientiously, leaving consequences to time, and my conduct to the generosity and to the intelligent criticism of my constituents.

To you, gentlemen, belongs more particularly the legislative business of the government. Many of you are already familiar with its details, and I have the fullest assurance that your acts will be wisely considered, and your administration beneficial to the various interests of the city. Since many public acts result for the immediate advantage of some of our citizens, and to the injury of others, it is but to be expected that claims may be urged and remonstrances presented with a zeal and earnestness difficult many times to resist. Yet while we recognize the rights of all, we should act independently and for the good of the whole, knowing no local or party differences. Great diversity of opinion must necessarily exist among men ; indeed it is not possible for any two always to agree. The stand points of observation, the private interests and prejudices of each being different, they cannot take the same view. For ordinary and trifling differences, a spirit of conciliation, and a courteous, frank and generous intercourse is generally sufficient. If unfortunately, there should arise a variance as the result of reasoning or judgment, I trust improper motives will not be attributed, nor want of confidence in and respect for the integrity of each other manifested. I anticipate, however, no difficulty from honest differences of opinion, since we can have but one feeling and one motive, as we have also the same responsibility.

It is not possible that I should be able to communicate to you fully in relation to all the various interests of the city, which will, during the year, demand your attention. I shall confine myself, therefore, to such suggestions, as the subjects you will more immediately have to consider, seem to me now to demand leaving other matters for future communications. A larger experience will give me more comprehensive views, and greater familiarity with the business of the city will render it easier for me to make intelligent suggestions.

I do not deem it to be my duty to mark out for myself any particular course of conduct, nor to confine myself within set limits. Emergencies may arise impossible to conjecture at this time, and I may entertain quite different views when I have a larger and better knowledge. I feel it wiser, therefore, to assure you that in the line of my duties I shall endeavor at all times, to consult the present and future welfare of the city.

The year now just closing has been one of general prosperity. The pestilence that walketh in darkness has not been permitted to visit us. No general conflagration has consumed our dwellings, and peace, plenty and happiness, have been within our borders. Our ships, upon which we mainly depend, have returned to us well freighted, and wealth has been added to what was rich before. The institutions of Religion and Education have been well supported, and have done what they could for the moral and intellectual advancement of our citizens. A general respect for law and good order has prevailed.

In proceeding to the statements of particular subjects, it is proper to give precedence to our Fiscal affairs. The government of a city, with interests so various, naturally involves a large expenditure. It is not possible to have good schools, a valuable library, well graded and provided streets, an efficient fire department, proper provision for the poor, and a well regulated police, without expense. Our position among our sister cities of the Commonwealth, creditable as it has been in the past, demands that we be not behind in any of these respects. There is no difference in the principle which regulates private affairs, and which should govern public financial concerns. True economy can consist with liberal provision for all these matters, and differs as much from a miserly withholding as from lavish expenditure. That branch of the city government to which belongs more especially the power to regulate the public expense, and provide the necessary revenue, cannot therefore be too circumspect. It should equally avoid parsimony and extravagance.

I cannot refrain in this connection from some remarks upon the city debt. It is in the nature of a debt to be both burdensome and to augment itself. It is not just to hand down to future administrations causes of difficulty and embarrassment; and though many expensive improvements are permanent in their character, and the benefits resulting from them of equal advantage to future periods, yet we should remember that as we increase in size and wealth, so even in a greater proportion, do our actual and necessary expenses increase.

The following statement of the City Finances, prepared at the Treasurer's office, represents our condition this day:

| Payment on warrants drawn by the Mayor during the year,                                                                                                                       | 385,628.65   |
| Balance in the Treasury March 1, 1857,                                                                                                                                        | 6,482.82     |
|                                                                                                                                                                               | $438,684.51 |

$66,347.15, may be regarded as extraordinary expenses, leaving the sum of $212,664.93 as the ordinary expenditure of the year.

There is no subject to which I call your attention with more pleasure than that of our Public Schools. It is impossible for us to over estimate the advantages of a thorough system of public instruction. All other interests are affected by it, and to a greater or less extent depend upon it. You will be called upon to make large appropriations for this object, and it is in itself so noble and of such infinite consequences to all classes of the community, that the burden, however large, will be cheerfully borne.

Our school houses have recently been built upon a liberal plan, and those to whom the matter has been entrusted have combined beauty and durability in their structure, at the same time securing the health and convenience of both teacher and pupils.

We should remember that about one-half of the waking hours of the scholars are spent in the places we provide, and the health and comfort of both teachers and pupils are greatly dependent upon our action in this respect. I doubt also, whether in the matter of good scholarship, something is not often gained by the pleasant and agreeable surroundings of the seat at school. The application of the money appropriated by you, belongs to the School Committee, and I have no doubt of its wise and judicious disbursement by them.

An amendment to the City Charter recently passed by the Legislature and ratified by our citizens, will, in my judgment, prove advantageous to this department. It provides that the members of the Committee hold office for three years, a part of them only retiring annually. Before the adoption of this amendment, the School Committee could hardly do more than make themselves acquainted with the workings of our school system, and then give place to a new Board. The Board of one year was thus continually undoing what had been done the year before, and this branch of the public service was thereby greatly prejudiced. The expenditures of the department for the year have been $42,749.45. I take pleasure in referring you to the report of the Committee for all information you may require relative thereto. It will be seen that the progress of improvement has been unabated while defects appear which remain yet to be remedied.

Prominent among the institutions of our city I consider the Free Public Library. Our citizens continue to regard it with great favor, and they will look to the action of this and future administrations respecting it with much interest. No want was felt to be greater, and no act was ever more beneficial than that which made what was hardly more than a pile of useless lumber, into the foundation at least, of a large and valuable Library, open at all times to the public. The experiment of Free Public Libraries has been tried, and so completely successful and satisfactory has been the result, that neither argument nor persuasion are now necessary to convince us of their importance. My own connection with our Library as one of its Trustees, has satisfied me not only of its great utility, but of the high estimation in which it is held by our citizens. The new building on William street is now fast approaching completion. A beautiful structure, its appearance is gratifying to the taste, while its adaptation to the purposes designed cannot fail to call forth admiration. Its size will afford ample accommodation for many years for the additional books which will be placed there, and the material used in its construction will ensure their safety. The plan and the workmanlike manner in which it has been carried out, reflect great credit upon both Architect and Builder. I bespeak for it with great confidence, such appropriations for the completion of the building, for the improvement of the lot on which it stands, and for all suitable and proper furnishings, and adornings, together with what is required for the Library itself, as may be needed to make it one of the most attractive, as it is one of the most useful institutions of the city. The following statistics have been kindly furnished me by the Librarian:

For further particulars in regard to the condition, wants and prospects of the Library, I refer you to the annual report of the Trustees.

Our Streets and Roads will continue to demand the attention of all branches of the City Government, and large appropriations will be needed. Although it is desirable that the expenditure in every department should be as small as is consistent with judicious economy and the interests of the city, yet streets well improved add so much, not only to the beauty of the city, but to the comfort and convenience of the citizens, that the expense actually necessary will be cheerfully borne. The changing of the grade of streets after their acceptance has been the occasion of much trouble and expense, and damages are often paid, which, under our present law, seem to me to be wholly unnecessary. I would advise, therefore, as a remedy for this evil, the acceptance on the part of our City Council, of an Act passed by the Legislature in 1853. The act provides "that the Mayor and Aldermen of any city by which this Act shall be accepted, are hereby authorized to fix and establish the grade of any way or street before the same is actually graded, and to cause a plan of such grade to be deposited in the City Clerk's office, and all those persons who improve the lots abutting on any such street or way, after the grade shall be so established and recorded, shall in their improvements, either by building or otherwise, conform to such grade and shall be entitled to no damages for the making of such street according to such grade, provided such street be actually made within two years after such grade is established. The establishing and recording of such grade shall not be considered an acceptance of said street. Any city shall have power of accepting this Act by a vote of the City Council." As the city extends its limits over new territory, so increases the demand for new streets.

A very important item in the expenses of the city, as well as a large proportion of the city debt for a few years past, has been occasioned by the laying out of new streets. While every facility should be afforded for the easy and convenient transaction of business, it behooves us to guard, even in this respect, against extravagant outlays exceeding the means of the city and out of all proportion to its wants. I cannot refrain here from some allusion to a subject which has occasioned much discussion among our citizens, and no little embarrassment to the government. It has also involved the city in a suit at law. I refer to the proposed extension of Ray street. In the month of July last the City Government laid out a street from Union street to William street, in the line of Ray street as at present located. This was but the initiatory step to the opening of the street through to its present southerly limit. An estimate of the damages which would be sustained by the owners of property taken, was made by the Board of Aldermen, and believed by them to be sufficient to compensate them liberally for their loss. The result however, was, that a majority of the land owners upon the proposed street were dissatisfied with the award, and suits were brought against the city. These suits, tried before a Sheriff's Jury, resulted in greatly increased, and as many think excessive damages. The verdicts have never been paid by the city, and measures were taken to discontinue the street. In our present state of indebtedness, I respectfully submit whether we ought to undertake any great project, though it be an improvement much needed, without knowing something near what it will cost. The citizens of Boston are urging upon the Legislature the passage of an Act authorizing the assessments of Estates for a portion of the benefit which they may derive from street improvement. Until some such Act can be obtained as "shall afford some relief to the city without being burdensome to the Estate holders," I doubt the expediency of undertaking any more than the wants of the city imperatively require, unless the abutters evince a readiness to co-operate in their accomplishment. The amount expended upon our streets and highways for the past year is $43,620.91.

The Fire Department, upon which the security of our property, and the public safety so much depend, has been under good management, and is in its usual efficient condition. It abundantly deserves the high reputation it has heretofore sustained. During the year the department has been called out fifty-three times, twenty-eight of which were false alarms. The loss of property is estimated at only forty-seven hundred and twenty-five dollars. It is remarkable in a city so full of combustible material and so much exposed, that so small an amount of property has been destroyed by fire. Too much credit cannot be given to those who stand ready at all times to protect and save from destruction property in which in general they have but little personal interest. The government in return cannot do less than give them all the support they need. This department is supported at great cost and is entrusted with the care of valuable and expensive apparatus. The liberality of our citizens will continue to be cheerfully extended to it, and I trust none who belong to it will be regardless of their own reputation, or wantonly put in jeopardy the property entrusted in their hands. The report of the Board of Engineers, to which I refer you for further information, shows the expenses of the department for the year to have been $14,877.12.

The Poor we are told, we shall have always with us, and for this unfortunate class it will ever be our duty to provide. Everything within our power should be done to prevent pauperism, but from whatever cause it may proceed, we must give relief when we find it. The administration of this department if faithfully and impartially performed, is one of the most difficult connected with the City government. To deal justly by the thrifty citizen and tax-payer, while dispensing liberally to the needy, to discriminate between the different grades of destitution, and to guard against unfairness and imposture, are not trivial duties. It is no charity to support the incorrigibly idle or the improvidently vicious, for such a course strengthens the inclination to slothfulness and vice, and discourages the efforts of honest labor for self-support. There are few places where more is done for the poor than in this city. Our Alms House is of itself a model of neatness and comfort. It is under good management and answers the ends desired in all essential respects. Our public charities are aided by two separate organizations for the relief of the destitute, supported by the several churches and by private contributions. Besides these, are the Ministers at Large, who not only do much to better the physical condition of the poor, but remove in so far as they are able, the causes from which want and poverty arise. I have mentioned this, not as a matter strictly connected with our Municipal charities, but from a desire to acknowledge, in this public manner, my appreciation of the private efforts which are so generously put forth for the alleviation of the suffering and distressed in our community.

The report of the Overseers of the Poor shows the expenditure of the year to have been $14,291.71. The statistics of the dispensation of the city charities are so clearly and succinctly stated in this report, that it is unnecessary for me to do more than refer you to it. While upon this subject, I wish to offer a few remarks upon the Alms House School and the subject of Truancy. I beg leave to call your attention to the manner in which the subject is treated in the School report of 1855-6. It is obvious that a case is here presented which is not met by the provisions of the statute nor by any action of the city hitherto. I would suggest, therefore, for your consideration, whether the plan proposed by the Committee in the report referred to of "Constituting the Committee on Truants, wholly or in part of discreet members of the Police force," has not sufficient reason in it to make it wise to adopt it at least as an experiment. For the disposition of these "Truants" it is evident some more suitable place than the Alms-House should be provided. As the expense attending the establishment of a Farm School would be very great, it has been suggested that the old Alms-House building, situated on the City Farm, might at no very considerable expense, be converted into a suitable place for the confinement and instruction of this class of children. Whether or not this is feasible, remains to be determined, and I allude to it in this connection, mainly for the purpose of directing your attention to it, leaving it for you to consider and take such action as you may deem advisable.

I come now to speak of that department of the government which is clothed with authority to execute its laws. I feel my own responsibility, and my own inability to discharge no part of the duty now imposed upon me, more than that which belongs to the Mayor, as the Executive officer of the city. As I understand it, however, I shall endeavor to discharge it. It matters not what may be my individual opinion, neither is it within my province to question the wisdom and justice of the laws. It is enough for me to know what the laws are, to respect them myself, and to endeavor to enforce obedience to them. In doing therefore what I deem to be my duty, I trust I shall have the aid, not only of the co-ordinate branches of the government, but of all good citizens. Many evils exist in every community, against which the law making power has found itself unable to provide. Many crimes are committed which every honest citizen would gladly have prevented, but human law is not subtle enough to accomplish it. While I do not propose in the least degree to relax effort, from an idea that such effort may prove unsuccessful, yet I shall strive to avoid the opposite error of weakening our power by attempting what is clearly impracticable, thereby bringing the government into disrepute, and as a consequence rendering it less efficient.

Not long since certain amendments to the City Charter were passed by the Legislature and ratified by our citizens, one of which I have already noticed in connection with the subject to which it belongs. The most important of the other provides that the election of the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council, with such other officers as were heretofore elected on the first Monday in March, shall hereafter be elected on the first Monday in December. The effect is to change the beginning of the Municipal year to the beginning of the Calendar year. This change gives to the new City Government an opportunity to lay out their work for the year by the time that it is practicable to begin operations, and ensures its completion before the inclement season renders out of door work impossible. Another amendment provides that the Board of permanent Assessors shall hold their office for the term of three years, one Assessor retiring annually. This amendment is similar, and will produce like advantages to the change in the term of office of School Committee already noticed. The amendments also provide that the Mayor and Aldermen hold over till others are elected and qualified in their stead. Circumstances might occur to render this an important provision.

In this review, gentlemen, partial though it has been, I have trespassed long upon your patience. The subjects to which I have called your attention are all important. They deserve and will engage your attention, not so much from any remarks of mine as for their own intrinsic merits.

Coming as you do from every section of the city, and bringing with you a personal knowledge of the interests and wishes of your constituents, you possess every facility for a faithful discharge of the important trusts committed to your hands. I shall be happy to lend you my hearty co-operation in all matters for the public good. I ask your generous indulgence for errors unintentionally committed, and should by no means desire the position into which I am so unexpectedly placed, did I not feel that under all circumstances, you would concede to me, what I so willingly grant to you, sincerity of purpose, and a desire to maintain the peace, honor, and happiness of the city, so prosperous, so favored, and so well governed hitherto.

In conclusion, I invoke to our councils the spirit of harmony and mutual esteem, trusting that the same kind Providence which has watched over us hitherto, will vouchsafe its blessings to us this year, and for years yet to come, and grant to us all necessary wisdom, that we may conduct the affairs in our hands for the general welfare, and for the prosperity, honor, and dignity of the city.

The property on Purchase Street, a few rods South of William Street, on which a Reservoir formerly was situated, and from which the Reservoir on the corner of William and Second Streets was supplied, having changed hands, the City was deprived of its use, and it became necessary to find some other supply to take its place. Accordingly a well was dug on Cheapside, from which, as a head, pipes were laid down William Street to the Reservoir, and also down Union Street to the new Reservoir, corner of Fourth Street, which will contain 2,600 barrels. This was filled from the head alone, in  $32\frac{1}{3}$  days during the dryest season of the year, and the stream has been constantly running since, the over supply being led into the public Sewer. The water from the roof of Ricketson Block has also been led into this Reservoir.

The Engine House lot on North Second Street, has been sold and the House removed to Jesseville, and put in good repair, and is now occupied by Engine No. 4, (formerly No. 5,) which having been thoroughly repaired with new box, axles, &c., is now as good an Engine as any of its capacity in the Department. A company has been organized for it, consisting of thirty men, and is now ready for active service. The old Hook and Ladder carriage has also been placed at Jesseville.

The improvements (for all we believe regard them as such) which were made in the Department the past year, viz: the reducing the number of men for the several Engines, and increasing their pay, &c., has had a very beneficial effect, both as regards the character and efficiency of the Department, and by comparing the false alarms from month to month, it will be seen that there has been a great diminution in their number since those changes were made. The companies have been well filled and great unity now exists in the Department. The Houses are all in good repair, and have been kept neat and clean during the year. The Department has been called out fifty-three times, twenty-eight of which were for false alarms. The amount of property destroyed by fire as near as can be ascertained, is $4,725.00. Insurance on ditto, $3,000.00, viz:

The Farm comprises about seventy-five acres, of which fifty are under cultivation. The remainder is very rocky, and of little value until cleared.

Out of the Alms House, relief has been granted to four hundred and twenty-five applicants, most of whom represented families. About one hundred of them were men, of whom a considerable proportion had been reduced by want of employment; some by dissipation, by infirmities of age or of health, or by these causes combined.

Of the female applicants, a large proportion have been widows. Of the remainder, the destitution has arisen from the desertion or dissipation, or prolonged absences of their husbands, and occasionally from sickness. The aggregate number relieved out of the Alms House, is one thousand one hundred and eighty-four, of whom six hundred and eight were children.

THE Trustees of the Free Public Library present to the City Council, their Fifth Annual Report.

The general aspects of the institution are unchanged. It has continued to do its work, imparting to our people useful instruction and innocent and improving recreation. It still maintains its high position in the minds of the people; every year finds it more firmly rooted in their regards, and thus far the administration of its affairs has been in harmony with the principles upon which it was established, and has given satisfaction to the inhabitants of the city.

For more than four years it has been in successful operation, giving evidence from its results of the wisdom which planned, the liberality which established, and of the enlightened and vigilant guardianship by which it has been cherished and sustained.

In every respect in which it can be viewed, it must be regarded as a most successful undertaking. The people of New Bedford have found it a source of great and enduring advantage. It has entertained, enlightened, and improved them. They have realized from it advantages beyond the promise of its inception. The range of its influence has been wider and deeper. Its educational features are gradually unfolding, and giving it a higher and more comprehensive position. It is at work in the minds and hearts of the people, and the more influential it becomes, the more deeply it is cherished, and the more active and earnest is the determination to sustain it in all its integrity and to enlarge the sphere of its operations. It has come to be indented with our views of Municipal prosperity and well-being; and while partaking of its advantages, we are not indifferent to the fact, that our city has increased its reputation by its early and earnest action in this direction.

The establishment of a Free Public Library, while it has been profitable to our people, has brought us a rich harvest of praise. Its plan, progress and position, are subjects of remark and commendation in all parts of the country. Now that four years of successful experience have sanctioned the wisdom which gave to us the theory of a Library for the people, many other communities are looking towards us earnestly and hopefully; and there are movements making in various parts of our country, indicated by the constant demands which are making for our reports, which promise the extension of the principle and plan to many of our sister municipalities.

We look upon it as a most fortunate and important circumstance, that we have, in this city, made a demonstration so successful, of the principle upon which the law of our Commonwealth is founded. Had there been wanting in our experiment, the liberality and devotedness which are the only foundation for success in such an undertaking, the result would have been without utility or influence. Fortunately for us, and may we not say, fortunately for the cause of public enlightenment and a free and generous intellectual culture, there was, in the beginning, and there always has been, in the Councils of our city, a deep, active, enlightened conviction, that a Free Public Library is an institution which belongs to our highest ideas of a rightly constituted municipality. The action of our City Government has been in harmony with this conviction; and while it has given to our community an educational establishment of great and constantly increasing interest and value, it has quickened into activity and hopeful effort many thoughtful minds and earnest hearts in various parts of our country, who have heard of our undertaking and its successful issue. We are gratified at this result. A measure so successful here, cannot fail of success in other communities similarly situated. It is good for any people, to unite in establishing and fostering an institution having for its object the public enlightenment and welfare. There is dignity and elevation in the union of the minds and hearts of a community in such a work. There are elements in it which elevate it above all the conflicts of party, above all the disturbing, dividing and alienating circumstances which are found to exist wherever men have gathered for their common welfare. It is significant of progress in the right direction, when we find such a work has been accomplished—it gives encouragement and hope when the minds of any community are intent upon engaging in such an undertaking—it is a source of gratification and of commendable pride to know, that such a purpose and such a consummation have an intimate and important connection with our own united and successful movement. To such of our sister communities as may now be giving their attention to the subject of Free Public Libraries, we can say with confidence, that the success which has attended the effort here, has been far beyond the highest anticipations of those who were the pioneers in the enterprize. The statements contained in the former Reports of this Board, showing the beneficial operations of the institution, the interest with which it is regarded by the people, and the elevated position which it has attained, under the fostering influence of enlightened municipal action, demand from us neither denial or modification. On the contrary, we can cheerfully unite with those who have preceded us in the honorable position of Trustees of the New Bedford Free Public Library, in giving the sanction of our judgment and experience to the declarations which they have so repeatedly and earnestly given forth to the public. In the Reports of our predecessors, there is to be found a faithful record of what the public has done for the Library, and what the Library has done for the public. This record may be received without qualification or modification. It is a record creditable to our city, and full of encouragement to the friends of a more genial culture everywhere. To all, here or elsewhere, who would acquaint themselves with the history of this successful fulfillment of a wise design for the benefit of the people, this record may be given, as one reliable in its facts, and useful as an encouragement and guide, to those who would imitate and profit by the example which it furnishes.

The year now about to close, while it does not call upon us to lay before the City Council any facts of material importance in the operations of the Board of Trustees, is nevertheless, an important one in the history of our cherished institution. On the 28th day of August last, the corner stone of our Library edifice was laid; and on the day that this Report will be placed in the hands of the City Government, the building will be nearly finished.

The completion of this work will form a memorable era in the history of the Public Library of New Bedford. Anxious as the Trustees of this institution have been for a place of deposit for our large, valuable, and constantly increasing collection, less liable to destruction, more convenient of access, and more ample in its accommodations for the visitors to the Library; and earnest and unremitted as have been their efforts and appeals, a consummation so complete had hardly been within the range of their hopes, much less of their expectations. Constituting but a part of the Body charged by the City Council with the duty of superintending the erection of the building, it belongs not to us to enter into the details of the work now so near a successful completion. Upon the Board of Commissioners, whose labors are soon to close, will it devolve to lay before you the details of those operations which have, under their direction, resulted in the erection of an edifice for the Free Public Library, safe and enduring in its character, ample and commodious in its arrangements, and beautiful and harmonious in all its architectural features.

The circumstances under which the work was commenced, are familiar to the Council and the people. A simple but impressive ceremonial marked the occasion when the corner stone was laid, and in the addresses then delivered and subsequently published and distributed among the people, are to be found, the history of the Municipal action which led to the event, and some of the facts and associations which rendered the occasion interesting and memorable to the inhabitants of our city. The name of the Architect,* who had planned, and of the builder,† who had taken upon himself to execute, are there given. Full of confidence and hope, inspired by what had been at that time accomplished, one of those upon whom had been conferred the honor of addressing the people on the occasion, thus gave expression to the feelings and anticipations of those who had been charged with the undertaking.

“The foundation walls are firmly placed; the corner stone is immovably fixed in its appropriate position; an enlightened and ever to be commemorated public liberality has provided ample means; devoted, earnest and competent Commissioners have been selected and given themselves to the work; an Architect, with a large experience, a cultivated taste, and an affluence of that zeal and love of the beautiful and true, which finds its highest reward in giving form and fixedness to their creations, has given us arrangements of convenience and elevations of beauty; a master builder has grappled with the undertaking, who to that clear apprehension of beauty and fitness which lies at the foundation of architectural success, and that practical knowledge without which all architectural affluence were as worthless as the baseless fabric of a vision, unites that love of art, that meritorious striving after excellence, that praiseworthy emulation after a high and enduring reputation, which are an earnest of well-doing, and a pledge that a liberal devotedness of means and a design of skill and beauty can be entrusted to his mechanical guardianship.

“Thus auspiciously have we commenced our work. Thus do we find on the day devoted to the important and interesting ceremony of placing the corner stone of our edifice, that the forms and the forces by whose combination and harmonious action the work is to be accomplished are all arranged and marshalled, and give to all an assurance of a speedy and perfect consummation.

“Allow me, fellow-citizens, to congratulate you upon this memorable and auspicious event. Allow me to use the language of a chastened exultation and a reasonable enthusiasm in view of the high position given to us as a community by this noble work, and of the unspeakable advantages which will flow to this people from the institution which will have this beautiful edifice as the guardian of its intellectual treasures; the attractive home of the seekers after intellectual enjoyment and wealth, the perennial source and the truthful emblazonry of refinement, high mental cultivation, and a correct taste, and a heartfelt love of all things beautiful and pure.”

These hopes and anticipations have been realized. There has been “harmonious action” between the “forms and the forces” by which the work was to be accomplished. He who designed, and he who had been selected to execute, have come up to the full measure of this confident and hopeful announcement. In no respect have they come short of the anticipations thus expressed; and aided by the labors of the Commission charged with the superintendence and direction of the work, they have erected a building substantial and neat in its workmanship, convenient in its arrangements, and beautiful and striking in its architectural characteristics.

We should do violence to the feelings with which we have constantly regarded this undertaking, should we fail to congratulate the City Council and the people they represent, upon the completion of this work.

The "ornate and enduring receptacle and safeguard of our Bibliothecal Treasures," thus characterised in anticipation, is completed; and in no respect does it fall short of the high hopes and expectations which found expression in the language we have transferred to our Report. The building is an ornament to our city; and when associated, as it ever will be, with the enlightened and honorable purpose in which it had its origin, will, as long as its walls shall endure, be a source of commendable pride and satisfaction to the inhabitants of New Bedford. And we shall all be proud to remember, and the memory thereof will linger with many of the generations who will succeed us, that not only is it true, that the library that is to be placed within its walls, was "THE VERY FIRST FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY KNOWN TO THE ANNALS OF THE WORLD," but it is also true that this is THE VERY FIRST FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY EDIFICE EVER COMPLETED.

Although the principal room of the building is completed, several weeks must elapse before it will be ready for the reception of the books. In the mean time, a thorough examination of the library must be made, and measures taken for a more perfect classification and convenient arrangement.

That this may be done effectively, the books must all be called in, and for a short period retained. The public will gain by a detention, which will allow the Trustees to open the doors of the new building, with every arrangement for the accommodation of the inhabitants, carefully matured and effectually completed. It will be a work of much labor; but that the advantages of our beautiful and convenient rooms may not be lost, there must be given to our operations, when they shall re-commence under such auspicious circumstances, the advantages of a plan the most perfect that it may be in the power of the managers to provide.

Our efficient and industrious Librarian, ever intent upon promoting in every way in his power the usefulness of the institution and the convenience of the public, has already made much progress in the work of preparing a catalogue. This is a laborious undertaking; but when completed it will be of essential service to those who wish to avail themselves of the advantages of the Library.

With the occupancy of the library edifice, a perfect arrangement of the books, and the completion of the catalogue, a new impulse and an enlarged sphere of operations will be given to our Free Public Library. Then will the idea of those who gave the first impulse to this movement be realized. Then shall it be the boast of our city, that it has within its borders, established by the people and by the people cherished and sustained, free to all as the schools and the highways are free, attractive to all by its concomitants of architectual fitness and beauty, convenient for all by arrangements of careful and comprehensive adaptation, and accessible to all from its central and prominent position, an institution, established and dedicated and sustained for the high and noble purpose of informing, elevating and refining the minds of the people, giving to those whom the public schools can no longer retain, educational facilities calculated to stimulate and satisfy the never dying thirst after knowledge which claims the companionship of every rightly directed mind ; winning the young to the love of books, to the love of a pure and elevating literature, to the love of refined and intellectual pursuits and recreations, while it opens avenues to the attainment of useful knowledge, and aids in the important labor of preparing them for the work which their hands may find to do ; affording opportunities seldom enjoyed, for the females of the community to participate, not only in the advantages to be derived from books, but in the pleasure and profit of quiet and prolonged study ; multiplying in many ways the enjoyments of the people, while it gives dignity to intellectual pursuits, and throws the charms of a refined and cultivated taste around the pleasures and pursuits of all conditions and all classes ; giving to all loftier and more comprehending views of man's intellectual capacity ; aiding in the formation of those habits of self-respect which all should cherish, and those habits of thought and mental action which adorn and dignify, while they elevate and protect ; in a word, spreading broad-cast through our community those aids to mental and moral efforts, to the love of knowledge and the desire for excellence, which give hope and strength in the struggle of life, which throw around the pathway of existence the light of all things beautiful, and the love of all things pure, and which while they constitute the most elevating and enduring of man's earthly purposes and hopes, are significant of that alliance and destiny which belong to him as an immortal being, and are, in their highest and purest form, "golden links which connect the children of earth with the throne of the Eternal," and which the religion of the Gospel so hallows and directs, that the problem of man's destiny is solved, and the Christian finds himself the recipient of the promise of this world and of that which is to come.

With regard to the increase of the library, the same general plan has been followed as in previous years. Of the new issues from the press, such have been added as were in accordance with our design and within the reach of our means, while of the standard literature of our language we have made a large number of valuable accessions. Every year has found us, through the judicious expenditure of the means which the liberality of the Council has annually devoted to this object, with a large increase of valuable books both new and old; and although the process is slow, yet we look forward to the time, when the united action of public and private liberality, and a wise and prudent administration of our means, shall give to the people of our city a library, second to none in our Commonwealth in all that constitutes the real wealth of such an institution.

We feel that we are, as yet, but upon the threshold of our undertaking. To perfect it, will call for many days and years of earnest and well-directed effort. There must be the same enlightened liberality and the same unremitting devotedness bestowed upon the institution now so highly and so justly appreciated, if we would continue to have it a source of usefulness and an object of regard, and if we would ensure for it that improvement and progress which constitute indispensable elements in its constitution. But as we look upon the past, we have no fears for the future. The work is in the hands of the people. By them it will continue to be cherished and sustained, and the children of those by whom it was established, educated under its influence, and taught to look upon it as an institution held in special regard, by their fathers, will not fail to bestow upon it that fostering attention which will ensure its continuance and prosperity.

We are gratified to be able to announce the receipt of many valuable books as donations to our institution. The names of the donors will be found connected with this report. There is no part of our duty that gives us more pleasure, than that which calls upon us to lay before our fellow-citizens this portion of the records of our board. To the thoughtful and enlightened liberality and attention of our friends, we are indebted for many highly cherished volumes. Every such volume is regarded by us with a special interest. It brings with itself the welcome and encouraging fact, that, beyond the circle of those who have been officially entrusted with the management of the library, there are many who are heedful of its importance, and who are desirous of promoting its prosperity and usefulness. The reflection, to those who are charged with its management, is ever a joyous one, that the number of those is large and increasing whose thoughts are intent upon its interests, and whose minds and hearts are “devising liberal things” with regard to it. Again would we express our grateful acknowledgements to those who have been thus thoughtful of us, and who have placed upon our records and our shelves the evidence of their enlightened and benevolent regard. In all coming time, will this portion of our municipal records be regarded with a deep and abiding interest. The generations which shall come after us will seek upon it for the names of those who have thus come down to them as public benefactors, and children will be gratified to find there, the names of parents who have honored themselves and honored them, by contributing to the growth and prosperity of an institution so closely identified with the prosperity and reputation of the city.

While we thus do justice to the past, may we not be allowed to express ourselves hopefully and earnestly for the future. With no considerations to influence us but such as belong to a deeply rooted conviction that we are "zealously affected in a good thing," we could wish to find access to many, whose "pure minds" if once "stirred up by way of remembrance," would not fail to "devise liberal things concerning us. We know that it may be most emphatically said of the institution in whose behalf we are pleading, that "by liberal things shall it stand." No form of words could more aptly express the idea which lies at the foundation of the work in which we are engaged. Liberality is its life. It came into existence at its bidding, it has flourished under its fostering care, and its future is bright with a radiance thrown around it by our hopeful confidence. Liberality, public and private; liberality of thought, feeling and action; liberality that recognizes the obligation and feels the joy of dealing justly and nobly with the manhood of every member of God's earthly family; this is the word, which in its beautiful comprehensiveness more fully than any other, expresses the origin, the aims, and the needs of our Free Public Library. Therefore it is that we feel great freedom in using it, when we would incite to thought and action favorable to a cause so worthy of the advocacy and assistance of all generous hearted and right minded persons. We ask them to be liberal towards our new, but influential and valuable Public Educational Institute—liberal in thought, liberal in feeling, and, as they may have ability and opportunity, liberal in action.

We want from the wealthy and enlightened citizens of New Bedford, what we cannot obtain from the action, however liberal and harmonious, of our Municipal authorities. That want would be met by finding in the alcoves of our beautiful Library hall, and upon the walls of the tasteful edifice now about to be dedicated to the cause of public enlightenment and progress, the evidence of a lively sympathy with the movement and of a disposition on the part of those upon whom have been bestowed large stores of material wealth, to direct a portion of it into this channel. Money can purchase books, and pictures and statues; and money will come, when votes are passed and City officials demand it in the name of the Commonwealth. But money cannot purchase that feeling, born of gratitude and benevolence and of a thoughtful and rightful apprehension of the brotherhood of man and of man's craving for sympathy and for a good beyond the joys of sense, which bids those to whom Providence has been bountiful and who feel the responsibilities of the stewardship to which they have been called, to send forth for the well-being of their fellow-men, the rich streams of their bounty directed and hallowed by elevated thought and self-forgetting charity, to cheer, to refresh, to renovate, to bless.

Let us then multiply the evidences of this manly, this Christian feeling. Let the whole field be made green and beautiful by an irrigation, generous and bountiful, from those rich fountains of pecuniary ability and elevated sentiment. Let there be concentrated within the walls of our Library edifice, a spot consecrated, not only to moral and mental improvement, but to the cultivation and enjoyment of a spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion to the public well-being, many of the treasures of literature and art, not only diffusing around the rich delights of taste, and the valuable accumulations of knowledge, but sending forth constantly and forcibly, the teachings which fill the mind with thoughts of an enlightened munificence and awaken within us emotions of gratitude and good will.

The following statistics exhibit the operation of the Library for the past year. During the year ending March 4th, there have been taken from the Library twenty-three thousand one hundred and sixty books.

The number of new cards issued during the same period, is seven hundred and twenty-five.

The whole number of cards issued is, four thousand six hundred and sixty-two.

Six hundred and eighteen volumes have been added during the year, five hundred and forty-nine by purchase and sixty-nine by donation.

The number of books now out is about twelve hundred.

The number of volumes in the Library, about ten thousand.

Books and other publications have been received from the following persons:

Mrs. Eliza Wood, Mrs. Sarah Coffin, Charles L. Flint, Esq., Secretary of the Board of Agriculture, Hon. Charles Sumner, Hon. Robert B. Hall, Hon. L. B. Comins, Gen. Thomas Lawson, Doct. N. B. THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE of the City of New Bedford respectfully submit the following Report :

On the organization of the Board at the commencement of the municipal year, the usual Sub-Committees upon the different grades of Schools were appointed, the City having been divided, as heretofore, into Northern and Southern divisions, and a separate Committee assigned to every grade of schools in each of these sections, the High School being the only exception to this arrangement.

It is but just to the working members of the Board to state at the outset, that while the members of some of these Sub-Committees have almost without exception devoted much time and attention to the schools which have been under their immediate care, many of the members of others have been extremely remiss in the discharge of their duties ; nearly the whole labor accomplished having been performed by a few individuals of their number. Though this negligence has, in some instances, doubtless, been owing to causes beyond the control of those who have rendered themselves liable to the imputation, yet, in view of the consequences of such a state of things, it is a question worthy of the serious consideration of every person who takes upon himself the important trust of guardian of our Public Schools, whether, if from any cause he finds himself unable to give a reasonable share of time and labor to the discharge of the duties of the position, a just regard for the welfare of the Schools, as well as a proper respect for the rights and feelings of his associates, does not require him to yield the place to some one more nearly equal to its responsibilities.

The difference above alluded to, in the amount of labor which has been bestowed upon the different schools, renders it impossible for the Committee to give so full and complete a report of the standing and proficiency of some as is given of others; which will account for the contrasts in this respect which the following pages present. But this is a matter of small importance when compared with the loss which the schools themselves must have suffered on this account; for there can be no question but that the progress of any school will be much more rapid when frequently visited and thoroughly examined, than when left wholly to the care of its teachers, however excellent they may be; and that the benefit in the one case, and the loss in the other, will be proportionate to the frequency or rarity of these visits and examinations.

One of the greatest obstacles in the way of the advancement of our schools consists in the natural repugnance to labor evinced by the scholars. It is in this tendency to indolence that disorder, carelessness and inattention, as well as numerous other subordinate difficulties with which the teachers have to contend, have their fruitful source. While some of our teachers exhibit much tact in overcoming this disposition to idleness, readily succeeding in awakening the pupils under their charge to a sense of the importance of the object of their pursuit, others, with much greater apparent exertion, either fail entirely, or meet with but partial success in accomplishing the same end. No doubt a variety of causes contribute to these different results, not the least of which, however, it is believed, is the dissimilarity in the systems of instruction pursued. It will almost invariably be found, that those schools are pervaded to the greatest extent with the spirit of industry in their appropriate work, in which the most thorough and systematic drilling is practiced by the teachers. In order that a scholar should be interested in his books, he should be made to understand what they contain; and in proportion as the teacher enables him to comprehend the principles which lie at the foundation of his studies, will his industry be quickened, and his aversion to labor be removed.

* This thoroughness of teaching is, however, rarely possible, unless a proportionate share of interest is manifested by the teacher as well when without as when within the school room, in the progress of his scholars. It assumes that the teacher suffers no point of importance to escape his notice in any recitation, that every principle is illustrated and fully explained, and that the explanations given are so varied as to be adapted to the comprehension of every member of the class. And unless long experience in his profession, coupled with a great degree of familiarity with the text books used, enables him to dispense with the labor which such a course involves, much previous preparation and study, out of school hours, are necessary, to qualify him for such a discharge of his daily duties as is above indicated. It is too often the case, that the teacher throws off all care and responsibility concerning his charge, the moment that the door of his school room closes behind him ; only to resume them again when the hour for commencing his school returns. If what has been observed in relation to the general good effects which thoroughness of instruction has upon the character of a school, and of the necessity of previous study and reflection on the part of the teacher in order to enable him to carry such a system into effect, be true, it follows, that the teacher who limits his services to the hours prescribed for the sessions of his school, not only fails in doing his whole duty to his scholars, but also comes far short of attaining that elevated position both for himself and his school, to which every teacher should aspire, and which a proper use of his opportunities might enable him to reach.

Though in some of our schools the system of instruction pursued is far from being in point of thoroughness, what the Committee could desire, they believe that additional efforts are being made by most of the teachers to this end, and that much improvement has been made in nearly all of them, during the year, in this as well as in other respects ; and that our schools as a whole will compare favorably, in all of the qualities which contribute to excellence, with those in other sections of the State.

The instructor in Vocal Music, who was employed in the Grammar Schools during the latter part of last year, has not only been continued in the same grade of schools, but since about the middle of the present school year, has been employed also in the High School, the Mixed School, and in all the Intermedial Schools. In most of the schools in which this branch has been taught, much interest has been manifested in it by both teachers and scholars ; and, as a consequence, good progress has been made, and the general effect has been salutary. It has been the aim of the instructor to teach the subject in a thorough and scientific manner; so that while giving variety and animation to the exercises of the schools, it should operate at the same time as a good discipline to the minds of the scholars.

Whatever may be the opinion of individuals as to the value of a knowledge of vocal music, it is a question whether as an exercise calculated to exert a healthful and harmonizing influence upon the minds of the pupils, and to give a character of pleasantness and attractiveness to our schools, it does not present claims sufficient in themselves to warrant its continuance as a separate branch of instruction. But so long as a majority of the community consider a scientific knowledge of this subject a valuable accomplishment, and when thoroughly taught there can be no doubt that it is a good mental discipline, it is submitted, that if by employing a teacher in our schools who is skilled in a knowledge of its principles, it can be made more profitable to the scholars without detracting from the other purposes which it is intended to subserve, and this result cannot so well be attained by other means, then such a teacher should be employed, if one possessing the requisite qualifications can be obtained at an expense which the object to be gained will warrant. Mr. Jason White, the present instructor, has performed the duties of the position which he has occupied, in a very acceptable and satisfactory manner; and, if it should be determined to continue the services of such a teacher, he is recommended to the favorable notice of the incoming Board.

The Committee would again call attention to the imperfections which exist in the means at present employed for remedying the evil of Truancy; and to the consequent inadequacy of those means to accomplish the end desired. The subject was considered at some length in the Report of the Committee of last year; and the unfitness of the present instrumentalities employed for the enforcement of the law upon this subject, and the unsuitableness of the Alms House as a place of confinement for the class of children coming within its provisions, were plainly stated, and the necessity of reform in both these particulars earnestly urged. The remarks then made are applicable in their full force to the present state of things, no reformatory measures whatever having been adopted since that time. But unless something is speedily done in the way of providing more effectual means for enforcing the law, and a more suitable place than the Alms House for the accommodation of these children, a large number of the youth of our City will inevitably grow up in our midst in ignorance and crime, with such consequences to themselves and the community at large as can be better imagined than described. It has been suggested, that the old Alms House building, situated on the City Farm at Clark's Point, might, at no very considerable expense, be properly enclosed and converted into a suitable place for the confinement and instruction of the class of children in question. Whether or not this plan be feasible, remains to be determined; and it is alluded to in this connection mainly for the purpose of directing to it the attention of those who may be called to act upon the matter, and who will no doubt be capable of judging of its merits. In concluding their remarks upon this subject, the Committee would again urge it upon the attention of the incoming City Administration, as a matter which in all its relations deserves and imperatively demands their serious consideration.

A change has lately been made, by the Committee, in the text books heretofore in use on the subjects of Geography and History. The treatise upon the former branch had long been used in our schools, and besides being in many respects poorly adapted to its intended purposes, is wanting in many of the advantages possessed by more recent publications. And, furthermore, there were so many different editions of the same book used by the scholars, as to render it a source of constant trouble and vexation to the teachers; and if there were no other reason for the change, this alone would be sufficient to justify the action of the Committee in this behalf. Cornell's system of Geography, which has been substituted for Smith's, was selected after a careful examination of the works of several other authors, and in its plan and arrangement is believed to be the best school book upon this subject now published; and the Committee are confident that much benefit will be derived from its introduction.

Lossing's History of the United States has been substituted for that of Goodrich; the former being better arranged, more attractive in its form and character, and containing many features well calculated to interest and impress the mind of the learner; and thus being better adapted to convey a good knowledge of the subject, with less labor and in a shorter time than the latter work.

The following pages contain the usual schedule of all the schools in the city, together with the names of the several teachers now employed in the same, with the average and per centage of attendance in each school for the year.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

The studies pursued in the schools of this grade are necessarily limited in their range, and are not of such a character as usually to interest the majority of persons serving as members of the School Committee. On this account these schools are liable to be less frequently visited and examined than those of a higher grade; less care and caution are likely to be exercised in selecting their teachers; and they are apt in other ways to be considered as having less relative importance than really belongs to them. But in fact there are none of our schools more deserving than these of careful attention, or which better repay for the amount of time and labor expended upon them.

The greatest advancement of the other schools is, indeed, utterly impossible, without a proportionate advancement of these. The appropriate work of the Primary Schools must be done and well done in the Primary, and so, also, in all the intermediate grades between the lowest and the highest, in order to the best state of each and all. Taking into account the comparative estimation in which these schools have been held, and the manner in which they have as a consequence been cared for, they are certainly in much better condition than could reasonably be expected; several of them, indeed, being well deserving of the appellation of excellent. In others, however, there is still room for improvement in various particulars, as will more fully appear in the remarks which follow under the head of each school.

Hill Primary School. This school still maintains the improved character which in the Report of last year it is represented as having acquired; it being in point of order and in most other respects a well managed school. But though the teachers have all been industrious and faithful, all have not been equally successful in the training of their classes, those under the direction of the Second Assistant exhibiting superior carefulness and thoroughness of instruction. Some further effort on the part of the other teachers, in this direction, would soon render the school equal in standing to others of its grade.

Parker Street Primary School. This school, since the commencement of the Summer term, has been under the charge of Miss Mary L. Blake ; and under its new management it has exhibited most marked and decided improvement. Miss Blake, combining as she does vivacity and gentleness of manner, with aptitude to impart instruction and thoroughness in her system of teaching ,appears to be peculiarly adapted to a school of this grade. Miss Abby F. Bryant continues to act as Assistant in this school ; and the exercises in her department, though not fully equal to those in the Principal's, are reported good.

Cedar Street Primary School. This school has been under the charge of Miss Hannah S. Macomber since the beginning of the present school year, Miss Annie S. Homer, the former Assistant, having continued to act in the same capacity. Though both of these teachers are, perhaps, better adapted to a school of a higher grade, they have labored faithfully and with success to advance the standing of their several departments ; and though the school does not in all respects equal in excellence some others of its class, its deficiencies are not attributable to any lack of effort on the part of its instructors.

Maxfield Street Primary School. Though the same teachers have been continued in this school, it is now in much better condition than at the date of the last Annual Report. The classes of some of the teachers exhibit very careful training. Some other classes, under different management, do not appear to have been quite so thoroughly drilled. The school, as a whole, however, is doing a very good work and stands well.

Charles Street Primary School. This is a well governed, thoroughly taught, and in every other respect a superior school. Mrs. Almy, the Principal, has labored earnestly and effectively to elevate the character of her charge, and being well adapted to her position, and her efforts having been ably seconded by her Assistants, she has so far far succeeded in her object as to leave little to be desired for this school beyond its continuance in its present prosperous condition.

William Street Primary School. Though this school cannot be said to have deteriorated in character during the year, it has not made the same progress as some others of its grade, and therefore now occupies only a fair relative position.

Bush Street Primary School. This is a very pleasant, well drilled and excellently managed school, and fully maintains the deservedly good reputation which it has long enjoyed.

Sixth Street Primary School. The classes of the Assistants in this school indicate more careful and better instruction than those of the Principal. If the efforts of the latter had been as earnest and well directed as those of the former, the school, it is believed, would, as a whole, have made much greater progress, and might now have been in a state more satisfactory to the Committee. Miss Covill, who has long acted as Principal of this school, resigned her position at the close of the Winter term, and was succeeded by Miss Harriet P. Cushman, from whose previous reputation as a teacher, the Committee have reason to hope for a better future for this school.

Griffin Street Primary School. Miss Lothrop, the late Principal of this school, resigned her position during the latter part of the Winter term; and in consequence of the time at which her resignation took effect, this school was left in rather an unfavorable state for the annual examination which followed soon after. Judging of the character of the school, however, from the appearance which it has presented at other times during the year, as well as from the results of this examination, the Committee do not consider that the school fully sustains its former rank as the first of its grade. Miss Annie H. Sanford, the present Principal, gave entire satisfaction while acting as Assistant in the same school, and it is hoped that she may be equally fortunate in her new position.

Grove Intermedial and Primary School—Primary Department. This department has, since the beginning of the Summer term, been under the immediate direction of Miss Mary J. Chase. The opinion of the Committee as to the manner in which Miss Chase has discharged the duties of her present position is sufficiently indicated by the remark, that the school, under her management, presents the same characteristics of excellence which belonged to it while under the charge of her predecessor, Mrs. Harriet N. Allen.

Dartmouth Street School—Primary Department. The Primary scholars in this school now occupy two rooms, one of which is under the care of Miss Mary A. Post, and the other has, until the beginning of the present term, been under the direction of Miss Eliza A. Sisson. Though Miss Post has had no experience in teaching beyond what she has acquired in her present position, which she has only occupied a little more than two terms, yet, in respect to order and general good management, her department will compare favorably with the higher departments in the same school. The exercises in Miss Sisson's department are highly commended by the examining Committee; and the continued success she has met with during the period of her connection with this school, together with her long experience as a teacher, seems to have entitled her to the promotion she has received in being placed in charge of the Intermedial department, to which position she was appointed at the commencement of the present term; Miss Betsey B. Winslow having, at the same time, been appointed to the vacancy thus made.

INTERMEDIAL SCHOOLS.

The scholars admitted to these schools have arrived at sufficient maturity to begin to have some preception of the use and value of knowledge; and, especially if they have been properly instructed in the Primary Schools, are in the best possible state for effective training. Their minds being in a condition best fitted to receive and retain whatever impressions are made upon them, more is probably accomplished towards permanently fixing their habits, while they remain in these schools, than during any other period of their school attendance. It is, therefore, of the first importance that they should here be well drilled in the rudiments of those branches which they are to pursue more extensively in the higher grades of schools; and that they should be trained to those habits of studiousness and correctness which are so necessary to their future rapid advancement. The teachers of these schools, more particularly their Principals, have hitherto been appointed mainly with reference to their ability fully to meet and carry into effect the requirements implied in the above remarks; and it is no doubt to this that their present generally good condition is mainly attributable.

Hill Intermedial School. The spirit and vigor with which this school is managed, tolerating neither idleness nor inattention, impart to it an appearance of vitality and industry which the condition of the classes proves to be real and not imaginary. The school is well governed and well taught, and the report of the examining Committee shows that it has lost nothing of the good name it has hitherto borne.

Parker Street Intermedial School. This school has greatly improved within the last two years, and now ranks among the first of its grade. The order is unexceptionable; the school rooms invariably wear a neat and pleasant appearance; and the good impression given by these features, which first attract attention, is confirmed and sustained by the proficiency of the classes. The Committee take pleasure in noticing the increased energy and efficiency manifested during the past year by both of the teachers in this school.

Maxfield Street Intermedial School. The system of classification lately introduced into this and some of the other schools of this grade, by which the first class in one study is made first in all, and so also with the subordinate classes, in connection with the fact that at the close of the previous term the first class was sent to the Grammar Schools, was rather unfavorable to the comparative standing of this school, judging from the examination alone. Yet the school is considered as being in an excellent state in regard to training and order; and under more favorable circumstances would undoubtedly do better justice to the industry and faithfulness which characterize all its teachers.

Kempton Street Intermedial School. The reputation which the present Principal of this school had acquired, as a good disciplinarian and thorough teacher, while acting as First Assistant of the Middle Street Grammar School, induced the Board of last year to transfer her to the Principalship of this school; and she entered upon the discharge of the duties of that position with well founded expectations on the part of the Committee that under her management the prosperity of the school would be ensured. The fact is too obvious, however, to be kept out of sight, and therefore it may as well be plainly stated, that neither in the general condition of the school during the year, nor in the result of the last examination, have the expectations of the Committee been realized. The order of the school has not been satisfactory; and the examining Committee report that the classes do not compare favorably with those of the same rank in the other Intermedial schools. This unfavorable state of things is, no doubt, in part, attributable to the turbulent character of the material of which the school is composed, and in part to the large number of scholars which have been in attendance; these extenuating circumstances do not, however, in the opinion of the Committee, fully account for the present condition of the school; and some reform in the method of its management is urgently desired.

Charles Street Intermedial School. The attendance at this school during the year has been quite small, but there has been no remission of effort on the part of the teachers on this account; and the report of the examining Committee indicates that it is not wanting in any of the elements which constitute a good school.

William Street Intermedial School. This school has attained during the year even a higher character for excellence than that which it had previously enjoyed. The teachers, while faithful in the discharge of their own duties, exact from the scholars the same strict performance of theirs; and, as a consequence, in no school of its class is, perhaps, so great an amount of labor accomplished, and such rapid progress made, as in this. In short, both teachers and scholars, in all the exercises of the school, appear to be governed by the maxim that "whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing well."

Bush Street Intermedial School. Miss Mary T. Congdon, the long continued and deservedly popular Principal of this school, resigned her situation at the close of the Spring term, and was succeeded at the commencement of the following term by Miss Mary E. Allen, under whose direction it has since been. Miss Allen is a laborious and faithful teacher; the examination was creditable, and in many respects excellent; but the school, as a whole, is not considered as fully maintaining its former high rank.

Sixth Street Intermedial School. The improvement in the character of this school, which was noticed and commended in the Report of last year, has been still more marked and striking during the present year. The teachers seem to have succeeded to a very considerable extent in infusing into the scholars the same spirit of industry and desire to excel which have characterized their own exertions; and thus all having labored together with well directed efforts to accomplish the same end, the school has attained a state of excellence highly gratifying to the Committee.

Grove Intermedial and Primary School.—Intermedial Department. Notwithstanding the discouraging circumstances under which this school has labored during the year, arising from the sickness which has prevailed among the scholars, the examination was highly creditable to the character and standing of the school. The exercises in every respect merited commendation; the order is of the best kind; and the school, as a whole, is considered to be in a very flourishing condition.

Dartmouth Street School.—Intermedial Department. This school has been under the direction of Miss Mary A. Crapo up to the close of the Winter term, and has been conducted in a most unexceptionable manner. Miss Crapo resigned her situation at the time above mentioned, and, as has been already stated, was succeeded at the commencement of the present term, by Miss Eliza A. Sisson; and if under the care of the latter the school is maintained in its present condition, the reasonable expectations of the Committee will be fully realized.

Market Square School. The Principal of this school seems to possess in perfection all the qualifications necessary for the successful management of the class of scholars of which the school is composed. Made up of truants, and the dull and disorderly from the other schools, the most that can be expected is, that they should here be trained to habits of unhesitating obedience, and of strict regularity in their attendance at school, and that their dormant energies should be aroused, and a proper start given them in the way of acquiring a more complete education in the higher schools. All this, and whatever else can well be done for this class of scholars during the period of their attendance at this school, is being done by Mr Lincoln, aided, however, by the valuable services of an Assistant, whose qualifications for her position are not much inferior to his own.

The initiatory steps were taken by the present City Council towards providing better accommodations for this school, and an appropriation was made for that purpose; but owing to the lateness of the season before the necessary preparations were made, or from some other unexplained cause, the original purpose has not been carried into effect. It is earnestly to be desired that the incoming City Government will immediately take measures to accomplish this object; for the location of the building in which the school is now held is in very many respects unsuitable; and its accommodations are also inadequate for the number of scholars who might with advantage be sent to a school of this character.

COUNTRY SCHOOLS.

North School. Among the scholars attending this school there are a number of bright and intelligent girls, whose attainments are comparatively of a high order, and who add much to the interest of the exercises, especially of the more advanced classes to which they belong. It is indeed mainly to the superior scholarship of these girls that the satisfactory character of the examination was due. The school, since the beginning of the Spring term, has been under the management of Miss Mary A. Sears; and it appears to be orderly and well conducted.

Acushnet School. Notwithstanding the union of all the scholars of this place into one school, and the admission to it of a number of Fairhaven scholars, the size of the school is comparatively small, the average attendance for the past year having been but forty-four. The scholars admitted from Fairhaven are charged a small fee for tuition, and being of the best class, they serve rather to increase than to diminish the usefulness of the school to those properly belonging. Both at the time of the Annual Examination, and at other times during the year, the exercises have been of a high order of merit, and creditable to the skill and efficiency of the teacher. Under the charge of Mr. Chamberlin, the school has for a number of years been in a highly prosperous condition; and the Committee much regret the loss of his valuable services, he having lately resigned his situation with the intention of removing West. Mr. William A. Barrell has been appointed to the vacancy thus made.

Belville School. The pupils attending this school are for the most part young, and therefore the school could not be expected to compare, in point of scholarship, with some others of its class more fortunately situated in this respect. The teacher labors earnestly and faithfully for the advancement of her scholars; and the progress they have made is creditable to her exertions. Some further attention to the order of the school is, however, suggested to the teacher as a means of still further increasing its usefulness.

Perry's Neck School. This school continues under the charge of Miss Alice Barker, and is in good order, and in fair condition as to the attainments of its classes. The examination was creditable, but not of a character deserving particular commendation.

Haskins' Corner School. Miss Miranda Williams, the former Principal of this school, resigned her situation at the close of the Fall term; and Miss Ellen Atwood was placed in charge of the school at the commencement of the Winter term. Miss Williams was considered to be a good teacher; but under the management of Miss Atwood, the school has been completely revolutionized and in every way improved. The order of the school is all that could be desired; the examination was in every respect satisfactory; and if her success thus far indicates her true character as a teacher, the Committee were fortunate in securing Miss Atwood's services.

Cannonville School. There are several quite large and evil disposed boys belonging to this school, whose conduct is such as to render the school exceedingly difficult of management by any female teacher. The scholars of which the school is composed are as a whole of rather a disorderly description, and are of just the right sort to be easily influenced and led astray by the boys in question. Under these circumstances it is not surprising that the character and standing of the school should not be good. Miss Alvira D. Burdon, the late Principal of the school, during her connection with it, used her best exertions to keep it in subordination; and it is not considered as any reflection upon her ability as a teacher, under the circumstances in which she was placed, to state that she was unsuccessful. Miss Burdon was transferred to the Middle Street Grammar School at the beginning of the present term, and Miss Hannah H. Sears was appointed to the situation thus made vacant. Under the management of the latter, the school has been even in a much worse state than while under the former; and the Committee have been obliged to interpose to prevent the school from falling into a state of complete anarchy. Under their direction three of the most turbulent of the boys have been suspended; and it is hoped that a better state of things will now soon prevail in the school. But if this result should not be realized, it is suggested to the incoming Board that the services of a male teacher should at once be secured for this school. The remarks above made have no application to the department of the school under Miss Bryant, which has been in a fine state of order, and in general good condition through the year.

Clark's Point School. This school continues under the charge of Miss Elizabeth R. Howland; and though small in number, is a well conducted and admirably managed school. The classes have been very thoroughly drilled, and the examination was highly satisfactory. Miss Howland is one of the best teachers in the service.

Alms House School. Miss Hannah S. Macomber resigned her situation as Principal of this school, at the close of the Spring term; and the school since that time has been under the charge of Miss Amanda A. Howland. Miss Howland has had a fair degree of success in her present position, but the school hardly sustains the character it possessed while under the care of her predecessor.

NORTH GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

The general condition of these schools fully appears in the Report of the Sub-Committee on the same, which is as follows.

The Committee respectfully submit the following Report:

Feeling the importance of systematic effort in visiting and examining the schools under their immediate charge, this Committee, at the commencement of the year, divided the responsibility of their management, by assigning to each member distinct and definite duties. Rev. Mr. Bradford was appointed Sub-Committee on Geography and Moral Science, Dr. Swasey on History and Physiology, Mr. Barney on Arithmetic, and Mr. Gleason on Reading, Spelling, Grammar and Writing.

In accordance with the above plan these schools have been examined in each department of study during every term, and the results of each examiner carefully noted at the time. From the minutes of these several examinations a general statement is made, showing the condition of the schools in all the studies during the year.

Subjoined are the Reports of each examiner:

GEOGRAPHY.

Upon the undersigned was imposed the duty of examining the several classes in Geography in the North Grammar Schools during the school year just closing. That duty has been performed,—all the schools having been visited, and every class, with but a single exception, examined during each term; and the following is presented as his report:

Parker Street School. In this school there are four classes in this study, each of the four departments into which the school is divided forming one class. The class in room No. 4, have been through the introductory portions of the text books and partly through the maps of the United States, and as far as they had progressed they passed fair, and some of them good examinations. The class in room No. 3, during the early part of the year, accomplished but little; but during the latter portion of the year, they have done much better; and at the close of the Winter term the examination was generally well sustained. This class have passed through about the same portions of the text books as the one previously noticed. The class in room No. 2, did not, at the Fall term, fully meet my expectations; but at the examination recently held they had made excellent progress, and I was much pleased with their proficiency. In room No. 1, the examinations have been generally well sustained through the year.

Middle Street School. In this school there are eight classes in this study, two classes reciting to each of the four teachers. The lower classes have made about the same progress in the text books, and with about the same results as those of the same grade in the Parker Street School. The higher classes sustained themselves well, with a few individual exceptions. The first class of the First Assistant is a good class, and sustained very satisfactory examinations. The first class of the Principal also acquitted themselves well. They excel in drawing maps, first having memorized the latitude and longitude of the principal points.

Charles Street School. This school has five classes in this study, each of which have passed good examinations upon the topics pursued. In the four lower classes recitations in concert upon the outline maps are chiefly relied on in teaching this study. The topics are first thoroughly committed, and then the several places &c., are required to be pointed out in succession upon the maps. In this manner the three lowest classes have passed over the American Continents and their divisions; and the first class of the First Assistant have been through Europe and Africa, and have committed the topics of Asia. The class of the Principal has in the same manner completed all the maps. Numerous maps were presented which had been drawn by members of this class, all of which were well, and some of them beautifully executed.

In closing this report your Committee feels it a duty to say that he has found much to commend. Deficiencies which appeared at one examination were found supplied at the next, showing diligence on the part of both teachers and scholars, and also proving the importance of frequent and thorough examinations by the Committee. In each of the schools there are scholars who have invariably acquitted themselves well, thus honoring themselves and reflecting equal honor upon their teachers.

MORAL SCIENCE.

The subject of morals has received considerable attention in the several schools, some of the scholars exhibiting a fair knowledge of the manual used as a text book.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

E. B. BRADFORD.

HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES.

At the organization of the Board last April, the examination of the classes in the History of the United States, and also the classes in Physiology was assigned to me as one of the Sub-Committee of the Grammar Schools North.

Every class in History in these schools has been examined during the year, three and some of them four times. It was intended to make these examinations thorough, more especially in the higher or first classes; and particularly at the close of the Winter term, a whole half day having been devoted to a single class in some instances at this last examination.

Of the condition and improvement of the Principal's classes in the Parker Street, Charles Street and Middle Street Schools, I am pleased to be able to report very favorably. In these classes there has been not only progress but decided improvement, giving evidence of faithfulness on the part of the teachers as well as application on their own. To this general statement there are a few, and but a few, individual exceptions. The same general statement in regard to the first classes is also applicable to the second classes, with perhaps a larger number of individual exceptions to good scholarship. Some of these classes are under the charge of the First Assistants in these schools. As an offset to these cases of poor scholars I have alluded to, I might mention individual cases of superior scholarship in these classes were it proper in this place.

As the third and lowest classes have made but little progress in History, little can be said of them in comparison with the other two. It is not doubted, however, but that the material both as to the teachers and scholars, gives a good guaranty of progress and improvement here. These classes have received their proportionate share of attention from the Committee.

PHYSIOLOGY.

Early in the school year some recitations in Physiology were heard; but so few have been the scholars and classes in this branch in the Grammar Schools North, and so little the interest manifested on the part of both teachers and scholars in the same, that I did not deem it expedient to examine any classes in this study at the close of the year. In what I have said in regard to a want of interest in this study, I intend no reflection upon the teachers or scholars ; for I think it is owing in a great measure to the fact that the text books upon this subject, now used in our schools, are poor and imperfect and not what they should be.

In conclusion, I feel justified in speaking well of the improvement, the attention and respect of the scholars in the different classes in History, in the Grammar Schools North, as well as the faithfulness, kindness and urbanity of their teachers.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

CHARLES L. SWASEY.

ARITHMETIC.

The undersigned, who attended to the examination of the classes in Arithmetic in the North Grammar Schools for the school year 1856-7, respectfully submits the following Report :

During the Spring and Summer terms, the schools were so nearly equal in their standing in this branch that it would be difficult to discriminate between them. The same remark is also very nearly correct when applied to the Fall term ; though from the hasty examination made at that time the undersigned judged that the Middle Street and the Charles Street Schools stood rather the best, the percentage of error made by the scholars in these schools being about the same, and somewhat less than was made in the Parker Street School.

At the close of the Winter term a more thorough and satisfactory mode of examination was adopted, and the Committee would report the following as the relative condition of the three first classes in each school.

CHARLES STREET GIRLS' SCHOOL.

|                                    |           |
|------------------------------------|-----------|
| 1st class—Percentage of error,     | .16 8-10. |
| 2d   “           “       “       “ | .20 2-10. |
| 3d   “           “       “       “ | .23 8-10. |

MIDDLE STREET BOYS' SCHOOL.

|                                    |           |
|------------------------------------|-----------|
| 1st class—Percentage of error,     | .16 8-10. |
| 2d   “           “       “       “ | .16       |

PARKER STREET BOY'S SCHOOL.

|                                    |           |
|------------------------------------|-----------|
| 1st class—Percentage of   “        | .09 7-10. |
| 2d   “           “       “       “ | .04 2-10. |
| 3d   “           “       “       “ | .01 6-10. |

From the above schedule it appears that the Parker Street School made the least percentage of error, the Middle Street stands next in order, and the Charles Street last. The undersigned feels it his duty to report to the Board the result of this last examination, because the same method was pursued with the three first classes in each school. The Parker Street School is, however, the only one in which all these classes have been under the instruction of the Principal; and this circumstance in connection with the fact that the first and second classes in this school are smaller than those of the same grade in the Charles Street and Middle Street Schools, gave the former school a decided advantage over the two latter. In all these schools the classes, under the instruction of the respective Principals, passed a fine examination, and I report them to be in excellent condition. Judging of the standing of the respective schools from the relative standing of all the classes in each, I find that the Middle Street School stands the best, and that the other two are about on an equality.

The government in the Charles Street and Middle Street Schools is good ; but in the Parker Street there is some difficulty in this respect. The Principal of this school does not exercise that care and authority over the scholars in the rooms of the Assistants which I find to exist in the other schools. Though there is some excuse for this in the present arrangement of the rooms, it is not, in my opinion, sufficient to justify the state of things which prevails, and reform in this particular is much desired.

E. L. BARNEY.

GRAMMAR.

From a comparison of the examinations of these schools in Grammar, your Committee is pleased to be able to report steady improvement ; slight deficiencies at one examination having been so far remedied at another, as to leave no exceptions to the general rule. The system of instruction is different in the different schools with varying results. In the Middle Street and Parker Street Schools, the text books used, treat this subject upon the synthetic method, with but little analysis ; in the Charles Street, the text book for the higher classes is purely analytic in its arrangement. The teachers of these classes, however, combine the two methods. The exercises with the more advanced classes have been substantially the same, and consisted in parsing from their reading lessons, in the construction and analysis of sentences, and upon the principles and rules of Grammar generally. The lower classes were confined principally to their Grammars in their examinations, and were found quite familiar with the principles as far as they had advanced. There is but little difference in the standing of these schools, if we except those classes that have studied analysis, which are superior to others of the same grade. There are good Grammarians in all the schools, and there is no class, that has not made respectable progress. The interest shown in this subject both by teachers and scholars, refutes the notion that "Grammar is a dry study," when skilfully and properly taught.

READING.

This important branch receives its appropriate share of attention in these schools. From term to term, progress has been made in all the classes, and marked improvement in some, particularly in the second class, under the instruction of the Principal in the Middle Street School. Very few cases of monotonous reading or unpleasant formality can be found in any of the classes, and they generally exhibit a fair knowledge of the use and properties of the marks and stops used in punctuation. We do not attempt to compare these schools in Reading, as the excellence of each consists in reading very different kinds of composition, each school in a style somewhat peculiar to itself. In the Principal's room at the Parker Street, they excel in narrative reading. This is partly owing to their frequent readings from History. The Principal's class in the Middle Street, read well in dialogue and declamatory composition. In the Charles Street, in promiscuous subjects, they read remarkably well. In expression and force, the classes taught by the Principal and First Assistant, have attained a high degree of excellence. Most of the Assistants' classes in these different schools, are in nearly the same degree of advancement, except in room No. 3, in the Parker Street, where there are some large boys who attend only in Winter, and whose presence reduces the standing of that room. But little inequality exists in the reading of the members of the same class in any, except the Middle Street School, and in this, it is the result of the mode of classification. In this school each pupil is in the same class in all of his studies. Much might be said of the importance of perfection in this study, attained only by patient thorough instruction in the elements of Elocution. Good reading, if not regarded as an essential, must certainly be ranked among the accomplishments of a thorough education; and no amount of labor to attain eminence in this department, can be regarded as superfluous.

SPELLING.

All the classes in each school were examined in Spelling. The exercise with the highest three classes was conducted in writing. Twenty words, selected by the Committee, were proposed to the pupils, who wrote them hastily upon strips of paper, without being allowed any time for subsequent correction. The remaining classes spelled, orally, words from their reading lessons. The following is a list of the words used in examining the higher classes in each school.

|            |            |            |            |
|------------|------------|------------|------------|
| Turpitude. | Tyrannize. | Pigeon.    | Raisin.    |
| Typify.    | Supersede. | Sparse.    | Basilisk.  |
| Satellite. | Apocrypha. | Irascible. | Chrysalis. |
| Brunette.  | Paralysis. | Pleurisy.  | Leopard.   |
| Chirrup.   | Mysticism. | Charade.   | Mayoralty. |

The result is given in a tabular view, showing the percentage of correct spelling, and the number of scholars to whom the words were given, in each school.

|                        | Percentage of correct work. | No. of Scholars. |
|------------------------|-----------------------------|------------------|
| Charles Street School, | .43                         | 46               |
| Middle Street School,  | .38                         | 45               |
| Parker Street School,  | .35                         | 64               |

The small per cent. of correct work here shown, is calculated to give a more unfavorable impression of the condition of these schools in this study than is just. The words are difficult, and were designed to test, severely, the pupils' knowledge of Orthography. Some allowance is due the Parker Street School on account of the large number of scholars engaged in the exercise, which would have a tendency to lower their percentage. It should be noticed that this is the largest Grammar School in the city.

WRITING.

All the pupils in these schools write. A large proportion of them are confined to writing the elements and simple words. This is owing in part, to the system and books now in use, which contain nothing but elements and single words in three or four of the first numbers. This is regarded as a radical defect, as the writing of sentences ought to be soon introduced. Neatness and care characterize these books generally, with an occasional exception of one sadly deficient in the proportions and positions of its principal characters. There are other systems of Writing, combining in a higher degree, beauty and simplicity, which could easily be substituted for the one now in use.

At the close of the Winter term the exercises in the Middle Street and Charles Street Schools, were of a miscellaneous character, consisting of declamations, compositions and singing, interspersed with some of their usual recitations. Many of the parents and friends of the teachers and pupils were present, as well as others interested in the prosperity of our Public Schools.

The general appearance and condition of these schools are somewhat differently noticed by the different examiners. Although these schools have not yet attained that high degree of eminence your Committee would desire, still I believe it but simple justice to say, that they have not only maintained their former standing in scholarship and discipline, but have made decided improvement. At all times the teachers have received the Committees' suggestions in regard to instruction and general management, in the spirit in which they were given, and have cheerfully complied with the same.

In conclusion, I refer with pleasure to the Reports of the gentlemen with whom I am associated, showing with what faithfulness they have examined and reported their respective departments, and in parting, beg leave to tender them my grateful acknowledgments for their advice and aid in the general conduct of these schools.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

A. L. GLEASON, Chairman
North Grammar Committee.

SOUTH GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

A Sub-Committee, consisting of the usual number of members, was assigned to these schools at the beginning of the school year, but, as has been the case with others of these Committees, the greater portion of the labor performed has devolved upon one or two individuals belonging to the same. For this reason these schools have not been examined with that degree of care and thoroughness which has been the case with the same grade of schools North,—it having been impossible to carry into effect the same method of apportioning the studies among the different members. The Chairman of this Sub-Committee has faithfully performed his duties, and with the assistance he has been able to obtain from the other members, has made such examinations from time to time, as were in his power. The following is a brief statement of the general result of these examinations in the several studies pursued.

ARITHMETIC.

The recitations in this study were generally satisfactory. The same results were frequently obtained by different scholars, by processes varying in their nature, showing that they had been instructed in the principles of the branch, rather than by rote and rule. Among the higher classes deserving of particular mention, are the first class in the Grove School and the first in the Bush Street Girls' School. The first class in the Bush Street Boys' School is a good class, but not equal to those first named. Among the lower classes, those of the Second Assistants in the Bush Street Schools, are highly commended.

HISTORY.

This branch has been well studied and thoroughly taught in all of these schools. The first class in the Grove School, and the first in the Bush Street Boys', are noticed as having passed excellent examinations.

GRAMMAR.

The examinations in this study were generally of a very favorable character. The Committee state that they were particularly well pleased with the intelligence and accuracy of the classes in the Bush Street Girls' School.

GEOGRAPHY.

The examinations in this study were creditable in all of these schools, with the exception of a class containing a number of large boys in the First Assistant's department in the Grove School. These boys are much better qualified by their size, than by their attainments, for a school of this grade.

READING.

In this branch, the Committee report that they were well pleased with the classes in the Bush Street Girls' School, particularly with a class under the instruction of the Second Assistant. The Principal's first class is made up of scholars, who have, for the most part, been under her instruction but a short time, and therefore, the class did not appear quite as well as is usual with the first class in this school. It is, however, rapidly laying the foundation for future excellence. In the Bush Street Boys' School there are some excellent readers, and many who would be profited by further thorough drilling. The same remark also applies to the classes in the Grove School. The Committee remark that in both of these schools the great body of the scholars betray a lack of finish and scholarly deportment. This doubtless is mostly owing to the want of home discipline; but perhaps in part to the exercise of too little care in these particulars, on the part of the teachers.

SPELLING.

The spelling was very good in all of the classes. Particular improvement is noticed in the Bush Street Boys' School. The words proposed were not selected with reference to the rarity of their appearance in the language, nor on account of any remarkable association of consonants, but were such words as are in common use, and were taken from the books used by the scholars in reading.

SINGING.

In relation to this subject the Committee remark,—
“That the trial of having a teacher to instruct each school weekly in this branch, has been entirely successful, it not only having caused an increased interest on the part of the scholars, but also a very great improvement in the art of singing itself.”

The general appearance and condition of these schools may be noticed as follows;

Grove School. This school is orderly and very well managed, and has, through the year, maintained a good standing. The examinations, with some few exceptions, have been satisfactory.

Bush Street Boys' School. There has been great improvement in this school since the last Annual Report. The Principal has made zealous efforts to bring his classes up to the required standard, and they have generally passed good examinations. It is, however, considered that the Principal has, at times, manifested undue anxiety to give the Committee favorable impressions of the attainments of his classes; and it is further remarked, that there is yet room for improvement in the deportment of the scholars, and in their general neatness of appearance.

Bush Street Girls' School. The happy relations which exist between the teachers and scholars, and the lady-like air and bearing with which all its operations are conducted, are in themselves, sufficient to make it always a pleasure to the Committee to visit this school. The government is mild, though firm and judicious, being as far removed from discord, as from constraint, and the examinations are generally of an excellent description. But of whatever character they may be, the fact is always apparent that the classes are under the management of patient, pains-taking and thorough teachers; and that every effort is being made to promote their advancement.

HIGH SCHOOL.

The Committee to whom the care of this school was assigned, included several members, who, for various reasons, have failed to give that attention to the school which its importance would seem to demand. The few members of this Committee upon whom the labor has mostly devolved, have found it impossible to make such thorough and extensive examinations as could have been desired; yet the results obtained have been of a character fully to show that the school continues to sustain the reputation for excellence it has long enjoyed. The public semi-annual exercises in Composition and Declamation, were well attended, and the performances of the pupils were of a very meritorious and most interesting description; indicating, if not proving of themselves, that the course of instruction and discipline pursued, is well calculated to make accomplished scholars.

A class, consisting of thirty members, was admitted at the June examination of candidates, and a class of eighteen at the succeeding December examination, and the whole number of scholars now in the school is one hundred and forty-five; fifty-seven of whom are in the Male Department, and eighty-eight in the Female Department, with an average attendance in the whole school, for the year, of one hundred and thirty-nine.

The Male Assistant who was employed the latter part of last year, resigned his situation at the close of the Spring term, and that position has since been filled in a very acceptable and satisfactory manner by Mr. J. Judson Tucker. Mr. Maggi, who was employed by the Board of last year, as an instructor in the French language, has been continued through the present year, and the classes in this study under his management have been well taught, and have attained a high degree of proficiency. The school has now a corps of very able, competent and faithful teachers. If proper care continues to be exercised in the admission of scholars to its privileges, and it receive its due share of attention from the Committee, its graduates cannot well fail to continue to evince, by their attainments, the high standing of the school, and by the excellence of their scholarship, the thoroughness of the training which they shall have received.

EVENING ADULT SCHOOL.

Anxious to afford to all classes of our population the means of obtaining the rudiments at least, of an education, the School Board has for several years past, opened this school during the evenings of about six months of the year, for the accommodation of such adults and others as have been desirous of acquiring knowledge, but whose circumstances have denied them access to the ordinary sources of instruction. A sufficient number of teachers has been provided to afford to each of those attending, a fair share of attention, so that all might receive the greatest possible benefit from the opportunities presented, and thus be encouraged to continue their efforts. Quite a large number of persons have to a greater or less extent, embraced the privileges which this school affords during the current season, and many of them have made commendable progress. The whole number entered in the Male Department, is one hundred and three, with an average attendance, for the first twelve weeks, of forty-eight. The whole number entered in the Female Department, is one hundred and ninety, with an average attendance for the same period, of seventy-one.

SCHOOL PROPERTY.

A brick School House has been erected on the corner of State and Merrimac streets during the year, at an expense for the building alone, of $8,500; which sum will probably be increased by the necessary outlay for furniture, fences, &c., to $9,500. The lower story of the building is designed for a Primary School; and it is contemplated to occupy it for this purpose at the commencement of the ensuing Summer term. The upper story remains unfinished; but is intended at some future period, to accommodate an Intermedial School.

An appropriation has also been made for the purchase of a Lot and the erection of a more suitable building for the Mixed School; but, as has already been observed under the head of that school, the purpose has not yet been carried into effect. It is desirable, however, that early action should be taken in relation to this matter, so that the building may be erected before the cold season again comes on, not only that it may thus be made more substantial in its character, but sooner be in readiness for occupancy.

The inconveniences and difficulties arising from the present arrangement of that part of the Parker Street School House which is occupied by the Grammar School, cannot, consistently with a proper regard for the welfare of that school, be permitted much longer to continue. The alterations in the premises made necessary by the introduction of the new arrangement which took place some three years since, were of rather an expensive nature, and though the practical operation of this arrangement has from the first been continuously productive of evil results, the original cost, in connection with the fact that the restoration of the old order of things would involve the repetition of the same expense, has deterred the Committee from taking any decisive action in relation to the matter until time should unmistakably have proved the experiment to be a failure. Should the old arrangement be restored, however, the premises could not be made to accommodate the present number of scholars, and it might therefore involve the necessity of re-establishing the Hill Grammar School.

There is quite an urgent demand for a new Country School somewhere about mid way from Jesseville to Haskins' corner. Such a school is, no doubt, much needed in that locality, and the subject claims the early attention of the new Board.

Several of the School Houses now in use, are old and unsightly in their appearance, and besides, are very far from being suitable for the purposes for which they are occupied; and it will probably be found necessary to erect one or more new buildings each year, for several years to come, before our school edifices will compare favorably with the erections of a similar character in other cities, or be creditable to our own.

FINANCIAL.

The expenditures of the School Department for the year ending March 1st, 1857, and the state of its finances at that date are exhibited in the following account:

|                                      | $53,317 40 |

Though from the foregoing statement it appears that the expenses of this Department are large, it is not easy to perceive how they can, consistently with the best interests of our schools, be materially diminished. The increased cost of living, for a few years past, has made it necessary to increase to some extent, the salaries of the teachers, and for the same cause, a still further increase of the same is called for. The growth of our city, and the condition of many of the School Houses now in use, are annually making the construction of new houses necessary. These causes combine to keep up the present large expenditures, and do not render it probable that they will be much diminished for a few years to come. But whatever sums may be required to furnish proper facilities for the education of our youth, and to maintain the high character of our Public Schools, will, it is believed, be cheerfully granted.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

By order of the School Committee,

ALANSON BORDEN, Chairman.

GENTLEMEN OF THE CITY COUNCIL :

The old year, with its record of troubles and trials, of joys and pleasures, has passed away, and we stand upon the threshold of a new year. Already have we participated in the greetings of this festive period, and throughout the land has there been joy at this new cycle of time.

Desolate indeed have been those homes and those hearts which have not been quickened into new life by the merry Christmas chimes and the happy New-Year salutations, that, echoing from one end of our country to the other, are yet ringing their joyful music in our ears.

At this stand-point of time, what reflections come crowding in upon us! what emotions fill our hearts! what reviews pass before us! what beautiful but too often deceptive pictures the fancy paints for us! Many who were with us when the year began, and who looked forward to this time as we now look forward to the coming of yet another and another new year, are gone, and their places shall know them no more forever. To all of us has there been much of disappointment, and trial, and suffering; yet to none have there not come some rays of sunshine. Our alternate joys and sorrows have come and gone as lights and shadows chase each other over the verdant landscape. So will human life ever be, and we grow wiser and better as the years go by, just as we heed and are profited by the experiences they contain.

As individually, so also as a community, have we experienced the full measure of this ever-changing scene of life. We have participated in the alternate good and evil. If a great financial revulsion has suddenly prostrated our business, and filled our commercial circles with embarrassment, a bountiful harvest has enriched the earth. If we have suffered in our shops and our warehouses, and confidence has been lost, and the exchanges of the business marts have been interrupted, no pestilence has wasted the land, no conflagration has consumed our dwellings; but all the blessings of peace are around us, and we are, on the whole, a prosperous and happy people, enjoying the goodly heritage which our fathers bequeathed to us.

Entering therefore into the spirit of this holiday season, with the consciousness that there will be both good and evil, joy and sorrow, in the year upon which we have entered, feeling that we know not what it will contain for any one of us, I wish you all, in your several and respective places of business, in your homes, and in the satisfactory discharge of your public duties, a happy New Year.

Called the second time by the suffrages of my fellow citizens to assume the duties and responsibilities of the chief executive officer of the city, I cannot refrain from a grateful acknowledgment to them of the honor conferred upon me ; the more flattering to me, since I cannot but regard it as an approval of the policy pursued, and the labors performed during the past year.

With the new calendar year, by a recent amendment of the City Charter, begins a new municipal year. The noise and strife of the election is over ; all party purposes and party prejudices are we trust now laid aside.

To us has been confided the care of the various interests of the city, and we have met to organize the government for another year. Having invoked a Divine Presence, and with the solemn oaths of our respective offices resting upon us, it would seem to be hardly necessary that we should be reminded of our duty. In conformity, however, with a long-established custom, I shall ask your patient attention to a few remarks upon the general nature of our business, and to a brief review of some of the more important questions upon which you will be called to pass.

The idea which generally prevails respecting our duties I apprehend is only partial. It does not attach sufficient consequence to the abstract idea of government, which, although abstract, is essential. We are placed here, according to the popular notion, only to provide certain ways and means, and are criticised only as we have provided those ways and means. The inestimable value of government itself, and a general respect for it in the community, are not sufficiently considered and appreciated. The true idea of government — a power somewhere to control, and if need be to punish — is too often lost sight of ; and yet this is the living principle, without which no government can exist. The providing of ways and means and the economical care of this or that department is necessary to its support, but more essential is a reverence for government itself, a strict obedience to its requirements, and a respect for those delegated with authority.

The government of a City like ours involves a great detail of business, and our time and our talents are required to accomplish it. I trust no one can be so regardless of the obligations he has now assumed as to make it necessary for me to remind him that the city expects a work at his hands. No tardy and reluctant giving of our time, no weak and vacillating purpose, no subserving of party or selfish ends, will discharge our responsibility. We can discharge it here only in the honest and faithful performance of our duty. Not all that will be expected of us will be pleasant work to do. It will be pleasanter sometimes to sit down quietly in our comfortable homes when we are needed here, and more gratifying to a selfish vanity to clothe ourselves with the real or supposed honor of our position. But this will not answer the solemn appeal made to God, nor fulfil the requirements of a trust which we have undertaken with a full sense of our responsibility.

It is not difficult for me to see that there will be some obstacles in our way. My own position is not in all respects a pleasant one. We do not all entertain like views, and conflicting feelings and interests may disturb our counsels. The different departments of the government may not always act in concert. Such difficulties must always be expected in a representative government; still it is possible that harmony may be brought out of them, and the general welfare promoted notwithstanding. I have therefore little solicitude, since it will be my earnest endeavor to add no causes of embarrassment to you, and since I have reason to expect on your part a willingness to lend all needed strength to the hands of the executive. The prerogatives of the Mayor are very limited, and in the honest exercise of them he does not anticipate any opposition, but rather expects that you will give to them all necessary confirmation.

It is not my purpose to mark out for myself any particular course of conduct. I am before you, Gentlemen, untrammelled by pledges to any individual,—free to pursue such a course of policy as my sense of duty and the best interests of the city may dictate; and with your co-operation, that liberty and that conviction of duty shall to the utmost of my ability be consecrated with singleness of purpose to the greatest good of our constituents. I have abundant reasons to congratulate you upon the prosperous condition of our City, the public affairs of which we are about to undertake. Good order and a general respect for law has during the past year prevailed. Our persons and property are comparatively safe, and we feel a confident security in both that is not felt in many other cities. Smaller and minor offences have been and will continue to be committed. Our endeavor should be to restrain these to the utmost. It is to be observed that it is not possible for us to do all that will be expected of us by every citizen; and he is greatly mistaken, I apprehend, who believes that we are able to provide the panacea for all the ills of life. Our business is not with private individuals, but for the general good. Some of course will be offended. Let them, if so they choose, until they better understand their relation to the government, and of the government to them.

We cannot legislate poverty into wealth, ignorance into knowledge, nor selfishness into charity. But poverty, ignorance and selfishness are in the world, and we are to take these things into account and provide against them as best we can. We will endeavor to alleviate them so far as we are able, and thereby promote the general welfare. Government is not a luxury; it is a necessity, and all men have to make sacrifices to it. It is burdensome, and all men must help bear it.

With these general remarks, Gentlemen, I come to consider more specifically some of the subjects which will require your attention.

In speaking of the Finances of the city, I am well aware that I am treating a subject upon which our citizens, one and all, are exceedingly sensitive. It is one which all can understand, if not in its larger and more comprehensive bearing, yet always in its details. All men like to live under a good government. They like to walk in nicely paved and well lighted streets; they like to see fine public buildings, and to point them out with pride to their friends who are visiting the city; they desire a good, efficient and active police, comfortable and neatly ordered School-Houses for their children; they like to boast of our Fire Department, our provision for the Poor, and our Public Library. But all men do not consider that these highly useful institutions involve expense to which they must according to their respective proportions contribute.

Complaints upon the subject of taxation are frequent and loud. I do not say that in some instances they may not be just; but I do say that in the greater number of instances they are wholly without foundation, and would be made under the most economical management. It is undoubtedly your duty, Gentlemen, to be exceedingly careful in your consideration of questions which involve expense; for do the best you can, and curtail in every possible point, and you will still find that the taxes will be large. Our city is growing in extent, and the wants of our citizens increase faster than the ability to meet them. I urge, therefore, upon that department of the city government which regulates the finances and provides the revenue, the strictest economy which is consistent with the true interests of the city. More especially is this necessary now when we are suffering from the effects of a great financial revulsion.

During the past year very great improvements have been made,—many, perhaps, which would not have been undertaken could the pressure and panic have been foreseen. Do not understand me as advising a narrow and contracted policy. Every necessary expense must be incurred. No great interest of the city can be allowed to suffer. It is one of the most perplexing questions which will demand your attention, to decide what expenditures ought and what ought not to be made. In many proposed improvements, some one or more individuals may be pecuniarily interested, and the measure will be urged upon you as if the existence of the city depended upon it. You will have little regard for such applications, but consider carefully all questions touching the expenditure of money, bearing upon the general welfare and wants of our citizens. Whatever will promote good government, and is essential to the solid and permanent improvement of the city, you will freely and willingly disburse.

The Financial year closes with the month of March, and as soon after as practicable the report of the Committee on Finance will be laid before you. The amount raised by taxation is believed to be adequate to the expenses of the year. By referring to the report of the Finance Committee for the year ending March, 1857, it will be seen that the city debt was $230,396.52, to which should be added the further sum of $11,500 authorized but not effected by the last government. We have paid during the past year on account of the city debt $14,503.52. We have added by new loans the sum of $13,600, having decreased the permanent loan $903.52,—a result which has not been attained by any one of the five preceding administrations.

I have prepared the following table of statistics, which will show you at a glance the actual growth of our city, with the increased value of property and rate of taxation, and also the history of the city debt:—The city was incorporated April 28th, 1847. The population has increased from 16,000 to 21,800. The value of property has increased from $17,851,000 to $27,539,400. The rate of taxation has increased from $4.20 to $8.90 on a thousand. The city debt has increased from $33,000 to $230,396.52.

I leave this subject with you, Gentlemen, as being one exclusively belonging to you, and with the fullest confidence that you will give to every consideration bearing upon it wise and careful attention, in the belief also that all necessary expenses will be cheerfully borne by every tax-payer in the city.

Feeling confident that the subject of Public Education will not be neglected by you, and that you will give due consideration to the wants of our Free Public Schools, I do not propose to weary you with any trite and commonplace remarks under this head. The importance of education in general, and the inestimable value of our system of Free Schools, are fully understood by you all. No remarks of mine would be likely to add to your appreciation of that which is the subject of general eulogium, as the glory of New England, and the very foundation of our free institutions.

We have ever enjoyed a high reputation for the excellence of our schools, and the government has always been liberal in its provisions for their support. Our expenditures in this department are large and constantly increasing; and our citizens, while they cheerfully contribute to their maintenance, reasonably expect them to be of a high character, creditable to our city, and equal to the wants of the growing generation of an enlightened age and people. The city charter vests the superintendence and care of the schools in the School Committee, and upon that board alone depends the condition, and rests the responsibility of their management. I have good reason to believe that the Public Schools are now in excellent condition, and that the committee which has them in charge has efficiently and faithfully discharged its duties. There are now in the city, sustained at the public charge, 39 schools, with an average attendance of 3600 pupils. There has been paid during the year on account of schools, — for instruction, $24,358; for repairs, fuel and other expenses, $8000.

The report of the School Committee, to which I take pleasure in referring you, will state more particularly the demands which this department will make upon you. Your attention will early be called to the necessity now existing for increased school accommodations. Two new school-houses are needed; and the purchase of the necessary land and the erection of suitable buildings at as early a day as possible is demanded as well by economy as by a desire to promote the public good.

The Free Public Library has become one of the permanent institutions of the city, and concerning its advantages there can be no conflicting opinions. I regard it not only as essential but indispensable to our system of public instruction, offering as it does to all, after they have left our schools, such free means of further culture through books, for which those schools have been specially qualifying them. It is a continued source of pleasure and profit to old and young.

During the past year the books have been removed to the new Library building, a building altogether suitable for the purpose, combining great architectural beauty with convenience to the visitors and safety for the books. That its future wants may be safely left to the judicious liberality of this and future administrations I have no doubt, as it will unquestionably grow in the favor of an enlightened and public-spirited people. Its growth must depend in a great measure, for the present, upon the donations of private individuals; and I think our citizens will gladly assist in an undertaking which will do honor to all who aid its progress. Much has already been done in this way; and I hope sufficient interest will be felt to secure for it such liberal increase as always to make it creditable to our city, and worthy a high rank among similar institutions in various parts of our state.

The number of books delivered from March 4th, 1857, to May 9th, 1857, the time of closing the Library, was 4781. The new rooms were opened on the 9th of November, from which time to Jan. 1st, 1858, 4660 books have been delivered. Whole number of books now belonging to the Library, exclusive of pamphlets, is 10,912. For further particulars in regard to the condition, wants and prospects of the Library, I refer you to the annual report of the Trustees.

During the past year great improvements have been made in the Streets and Highways of our city; this has been done at considerable expense, yet the results obtained, in my judgment, fully justify the outlay. Nothing adds more to the beauty of our city, and to the convenience of our citizens, than well ordered and well lighted streets. No narrow and short-sighted policy has been pursued. The improvements which have been made are of the most substantial and enduring kind.

Two of our principal thoroughfares (Kempton and Water streets) have during the past year undergone heavy repairs, which have long been needed, at an expense of about $15,000. The principal approaches to the city are now, for the first time, in good order; and I feel assured that our streets not only were never in better condition, but that the work has been so thoroughly performed as not soon to require doing again. I cannot refrain in this connection from the expression of commendation and praise, at the thorough and efficient manner in which the arduous duties of the Superintendent of Streets have been performed.

Frequent applications are made to the city council to lay out and grade streets that would apparently be more for the benefit of the applicants than for public travel and convenience. In view, therefore, of the very large and constantly increasing expense attendant upon the keeping of our streets already open in good repair, I think the Council cannot be too persistent in its rejection of all applications which are not clearly for the public good, and actually demanded by the immediate wants of the city.

I recommend that the ordinance in relation to the digging up of streets for the purpose of laying or repairing gas-pipes, and entering drains into the sewers, be made more definite and certain in its provisions. The ordinance should require that all streets opened for private purposes should be closed and repaired by the Superintendent of Streets, at the expense of the parties opening the same. It is obviously for the interest of any person who has occasion for his own purposes to open a street to fill it up again as cheaply as possible; and it is generally done in such a manner as to make further repairs necessary at the expense of the city. During the past year we have been subject to frequent annoyances from this cause, the streets having been left in many instances in an almost impassable condition. The wants of this department for the coming year will be much less than the expense of the past year, since no great improvements are contemplated or needed.

It is a matter for mutual congratulation, after the severe losses we have heretofore sustained by fire, that during the past year our ever ready and efficient Fire Department has been so seldom called out. This department is in excellent condition, and under the direction of popular and efficient engineers. The houses are well furnished, the engines and apparatus are in good order, and the men always ready, when occasion calls them, to perform cheerfully their hazardous and laborious duty.

I recommend it, therefore, to your favorable consideration. It is sustained at great cost, but its absolute necessity and the sense of security it furnishes well warrant and justify the expense. Our citizens will never object to such appropriations as are necessary; while on the other hand, if the department is properly encouraged, the members will feel it incumbent upon them, not only to aid in the protection of our property, but to sustain by their influence and example such wholesome regulations as are essential, not only to their own welfare, but to the peace and good order of the city. The department has been called out but eight times during the year, two of which were false alarms. The loss of property is estimated at $175. One first-class reservoir has been constructed on Chestnut street, at a cost of $4500, and one on Mill street discontinued. The report of the engineers shows the expenses of the department to have been $16,000.

The Poor will demand a portion of your attention. It will be your pleasure, as your duty, to make some provision for those who by misfortune are unable to provide for themselves. By reference to the report of the Overseers of the Poor, it will be seen that the expenditures of the department have been somewhat increased over that of the preceding year, owing, undoubtedly, to the high prices of the necessities of life, and to the want of employment of large numbers of our laboring population. The farm has been greatly improved. These improvements have consisted chiefly in clearing up bushes, removing stone, building walls, and putting the grounds in a better state of cultivation.

I am satisfied, from personal experience and observation, that the moneys raised for the support of the indigent and helpless persons who are recipients of the public charity are as carefully and wisely applied to their legitimate uses as is possible. And whatever we are called upon to do in this respect, we may congratulate ourselves that we have so few amongst us, compared with other cities, who must be supported at the public expense.

Intimately connected with the good order and welfare of our city, with the comfort and security of our citizens, both as respects their lives and property, is the Department of the Police. Its duties are readily comprehended, but its powers are very imperfectly understood. I am not sure that these powers are not very much too limited. The people are jealous of their liberties, and have been unwilling to intrust too much power to any one department, but they are disposed to expect as much as though all power to redress wrongs was embodied in the police. It should be observed that its duties are simply executive. It is the arm, and not the head, of the body politic. It can execute only what has been ordained. It is not only subservient to the city government in general, but has no power or efficiency except as it derives it from the laws of the Commonwealth. So delicate and difficult are its duties, that its usefulness depends very much upon the manner in which its officers are sustained by the people themselves. It depends, too, upon the general character of the legislation of the state, and upon the decisions of the courts of law. Its weakness arises from unwise legislation on the one hand, and conflicting judicial decisions on the other. As at present constituted and limited, it is not possible for it to do more than maintain general good order. Our courts, and more especially our Police Court, doubtless under the law and in conformity with the provisions thereof, in many instances completely disarm it. The police may make arrests; but to what end, if the offender is discharged as soon as brought before the court? The police cannot punish. It cannot always furnish evidence. It acts many times only upon suspicion, and often fails to rebut by testimony the legal presumption of innocence, and that, too, only because our citizens are unwilling to appear before the courts, and testify even against those of whom they themselves have made complaint. Experience has sufficiently demonstrated to me that the best and most efficient police may be made comparatively useless without the aid of all good citizens, and the co-operation of the courts of justice.

I invite and solicit the assistance of all lovers of good order to the work of removing the evils which are now in our midst, and I promise a faithful and impartial use of any information they can furnish, and an honest and hearty co-operation on the part of the police, in any endeavors to accomplish such a desirable result. During the past year I have not learned that this department has not been as effective as in former years, and much more so than in many other cities. I am not aware that there has been any falling off in the general good order, quiet and peace of the city. On the contrary, I am assured, and verily believe, that the quiet, and tranquillity of our streets by day and by night has been as marked and honorable to the city as in any former year.

Doubtless the force of the Police might be increased with advantage, but it is for you to consider whether the additional expense shall be incurred. An improvement might also be made by uniting the two branches of this department under one head. The day police and night watch are now entirely separate; by uniting them I think their force and efficiency would be greatly increased. As now constituted, there seems to be felt a superiority of the one over the other, and jealousies exist prejudicial to the best interests of the city. Each seems to keep its own secrets, and the want of union divides also its strength.

The Mayor is the chief executive officer of the city, looked to especially by the community as the head of the Police, and constituted its head by the express terms of the charter. He is held accountable, and the power to act should be placed where the responsibility attaches. There is no good reason why the appointment of the whole Police force should not be made by him, subject to the approval of the City Council. There can be no doubt that the controlling motive with any Mayor would be their fitness. I shall not be suspected of making this recommendation by any desire to enlarge my own power or to abridge yours. The energy and completeness of the department is oftentimes dependent upon a single direction. No divided counsels will do. Emergencies may arise in which everything might be lost by any differences or misunderstanding. Promptness, force, instant movement and single purpose are inconsistent with any division of this most important * department. I urge the consideration of this matter upon the City Council, believing that a substantial advantage is to be derived from the change.

One of the distinguishing characteristics of a civilized and cultivated people, is respect for the Memory of the Dead. Throughout our country, and especially in New England, it manifests itself by laying out and adorning suitable grounds for the resting-places of the departed, and in the erection of monuments to their memory. Here, as elsewhere too, in proportion as we beautify our Cemeteries do they become places of resort for the living. Our own grounds, though less favored by nature than those in other parts of our State, are creditable alike to our feelings and our taste.

Frequent complaints have been made by owners of lots in the Rural Cemetery, that the plants and shrubs have been destroyed and stolen, the trees injured, and fences and ornaments disfigured. I much regret the occasion for such complaints. To guard against it in future, it has been thought best to erect a gate lodge upon the grounds, to be occupied by some person competent to have supervision of the premises. It is believed that he will receive sufficient compensation in embellishing and improving the lots from the owners, to enable him to devote his whole time to the care of the grounds. I regret that the year has passed without a report from the committee appointed to select a suitable place for a new Cemetery, the necessity for which has now long been felt. I hope before the close of this year you will be successful in discovering how this want can be supplied.

The system of Sewerage now in successful operation in our city is exceedingly important, as well for the general comfort of our citizens as in a sanitary point of view. It will be well for you to consider how much shall be done in this respect the present year, and the matter should receive such systematic calculation as will insure permanent benefit from whatever expenditures may be made. There have been five sewers constructed the past year, located on Merrimac, Kempton, Bedford, Third and Sycamore streets, at a cost of $12,830, half of which will be met by a permanent loan.

At the commencement of the last year, there was quite a large number of suits pending in the courts, in which the city was interested as a party. Of these, two suits, growing out of the Howland-street riot, have been tried and the verdicts paid. The suits commenced for damages on account of the widening of South Water street, have been discontinued, in accordance with an arrangement made with the claimants. The verdicts awarded by the Sheriff's Jury for land damages, occasioned by the proposed extension of Ray street from William to Union streets, have never been paid, and the question of their legality has been presented to the Supreme Court, and is now awaiting its decision.

With this partial and desultory review, Gentlemen, I leave the further consideration of these subjects to you. We have been called by the suffrages of our fellow-citizens to the unenviable task of governing the city for the ensuing year. It is our duty, by a judicious and energetic exercise of the powers delegated to us, and in the conscientious discharge of the several trusts reposed in us, to endeavor to secure to all classes of our citizens the enjoyment of the rights and privileges contemplated by the city charter. With you, Gentlemen, resides chiefly the power, and upon you principally rests the responsibility. The prerogative and independent powers of the Executive are by the provisions of the charter extremely limited. It is my purpose to exercise them fearlessly, independent of sect or party, regardless alike of flattery or reproaches.

Gentlemen of the Board of Aldermen,—Besides constituting one of the legislative branches of the city government, to a certain extent also you are executive officers. All of you are my superiors in age, and many of you have a large experience in the administration of municipal affairs. Ready always to lend all the aid in my power to your efforts for the good government of the city, I naturally look to you for counsel and sympathy, confident also that the good of the city and our own pleasant and profitable official intercourse is dependent upon the mutual respect we entertain, upon the spirit of conciliation we manifest, and upon the desire we feel to strengthen and support each other.

Gentlemen of the Common Council,—You are the more immediate representatives of those of your fellow-citizens residing in your respective Wards. With their interests and their wants you have a more intimate knowledge. You can have little difficulty therefore in determining upon such measures as the good of our citizens requires, and such as they will be ready to sustain. There is a true dignity in delegated power, when deliberately bestowed and honestly used. I have great confidence that the obligations and responsibilities imposed upon you will be recognized by you, and that you will be able to discharge all your duties satisfactorily to yourselves, and for the good of those whose interests you severally represent.

Fellow-citizens of the City Council,—The character and influence of the City Council will stamp for a time the character of the city, and I would gladly be the medium of deepening the sense of responsibility which rests upon us, in view of the great trusts committed to our care, the full contemplation of which I confess has become burdensome to me. By the diligence with which we engage in the public service, we shall best evince our sense of duty to the people, who for a time have reposed these interests in our hands. May wisdom guide our counsels, may mutual forbearance and mutual regard mark and make pleasant our official intercourse, and may we be able so to administer the government of the city as to secure for it the respect and confidence of our Fellow-Citizens, and promote the welfare and advance the prosperity of the City.

OF THE

BOARD OF ENGINEERS.

---

TO THE HONORABLE MAYOR, ALDERMEN, AND COMMON COUNCIL:

As the term of office for which I was elected has nearly expired, I have thought proper to present to you my report of the number of fires and alarms, loss, &c., on the same, and also the present condition of the fire department.

The department have been called out six times during the past nine months, viz.:

|----------------------------------|----------------|
| At actual fires within the city, | 2 times.       |
| At fires out of the city,        | 2 times.       |
| At false alarms,                 | 2 times.       |
| Total,                           | <hr/> 6 times. |

Loss by fires, $150 ; insurance, none.

During the past term, one first-class reservoir has been built on Chestnut street, capable of holding rising 6000 barrels. It was built during the driest season of the year; and before the first rain there was 7 feet 4 inches water in it, or rising 3300 barrels; and at the present time 11 feet 6 inches, or rising 5000 barrels. The reason for digging as large a reservoir at that place was this: there have been a great many houses built in that section of the city within the last two years, and it had become necessary for their protection from fire that there should be a supply of water found which should be unfailing even in the driest seasons; and on examining the wells in that locality at five different times, it was found that the wells on the top of the hill were affected in dry seasons less by over a foot than those on the west slope, and by digging one large reservoir at that location it might be used as a supply to fill smaller tight reservoirs which may be hereafter built on either slope of the hill. The cost of building the reservoir exceeded my anticipations, owing to its caving in very badly, but the whole cost will not exceed $4500.

The reservoir on Mill street, built by my predecessors, not holding water, and continually filling with sand, thereby undermining the neighboring house and causing much damage to the same, it was thought advisable for the interest of the city, as the previous winter there was only two feet of water at the lower side, that it should be filled, which has been done at an expense, including the damage on the house allowed by referees, of $380.76.

Engine No. Six having been condemned by every Board of Engineers as not being capable of performing the service required as a first-class engine, has been sent to Messrs. Wm. Jeffers & Co., of Pawtucket, R. I., to have new works put into her, which will be warranted equal to his first-class engines. The machine will be returned about the middle of January next.

The old pumps, brakes, &c., of the "Young Mechanic" are now being put into a new box, and when completed will be laid up as a reserve engine.

There has been purchased the engine "Young America," at a cost of $150, and it is now ready for active service.

The pay for the firemen for the previous year amounted to $8399.08.

The apparatus is all in good order, and the houses are all in good repair.

The condition of the department was never better than at the present time. Harmony prevails among all its members. Good order, a prompt response to every call of the bell, and a cheerful compliance with all the rules and regulations, has characterized the whole department.

I cannot close without expressing my obligation to those who are acting with me as Engineers, and am proud to bear testimony to the faithful and efficient manner in which they have performed their duties.

Respectfully submitted.

JOSHUA B. ASHLEY,
Chief Engineer.

OF THE

THE Overseers of the Poor respectfully present the following Report in relation to their Department during the ten months ending on the 4th of January, 1858.

The whole number of families out of the Alms House to whom relief has been granted, recipients of out-door relief so called, is two hundred and seventy-five, of which one hundred and thirty are those of widows, or women deserted by their husbands.

It is in most cases impossible for women who are left alone with many helpless children, to obtain by their own labor the means of defraying all the expenses of living in this city. They must have aid from some source. And it has been furnished them by this Board during the past year, as in former years. The other families relieved, numbering one hundred and forty, had been reduced by various causes, as intemperance, want of employment, sickness, and the infirmities of age.

Most of the families aided have been respectable and worthy. We have endeavored to avoid making such a distribution of out-door relief as would sustain persons in vicious habits. We may have done so in cases of emergency, and where the recipients belonged to other places, and it was preferred by the authorities of those places to support them partially here rather than to remove them.

Necessary as is some system of out-door relief in this community, it is deemed matter of doubt by this Board if it were not better to leave it to private benevolent action rather than to public official management, to persons who might act in concert, and yet as individuals one to each family, so that the bestowment of alms should be made with an intimate personal knowledge of the recipients, of all their necessities and resources; and a better judgment formed of the kind and amount of aid required in each case. Such a system would require a large number of laborers, but the labor to each individual would be small and being done benevolently, without legal restrictions, would effect more towards the prevention of pauperism, and the proper relief of distress, than if done by officers bound by law and general principles.

Still farther objections may be made to out-door relief by public authorities, which indeed applies, though with less force, to all forms of public charity, that the supply serves to increase the demand. Where it is known that extensive provision is made, people are induced to apply for a share by the feeling that it belongs as much to them as to others. The spirit of self-reliance is thus weakened in them, and a habit of dependence upon others substituted in its place, a moral weakness endangering the whole character. Besides, it encourages the influx of strangers who compete with those already settled for the labor of the business season, reducing the emoluments, or dividing them among so many as to add every year to the number of the dependent. There is reason to believe that the provision made here for the poor out of almshouse has attracted some habitual paupers, very little to the benefit of the city or the citizen, except by raising the rent of his half-underground tenements, which should have been closed long since by the operation of some sanitary law, but which are by this system made profitable, as the city indirectly pays the rent in the shape of food and fuel to the occupants.

In view of this tendency of the system of out-door relief, to maintain a superfluous working population here, no class can be considered to have a deeper interest in the proper distribution or limitation of such relief than that to which it is most frequently granted, the common laborers. It is for their interest that their numbers should not by any means be increased beyond what the business of the place will keep steadily employed.

Influenced by these and similar considerations, we have felt constrained to withhold aid from many applicants during the last three months.

For a large portion of the Poor, those who have no settlement in the Commonwealth, and are under twelve years of age, or if over, are not of competent health to labor, the State has provided Almshouses, and has limited its pauper aid to their inmates, extending none to any out of those institutions. The system is based upon the correct theory, that all able bodied persons should provide for themselves, but it adds to the embarrassment of relieving the Poor, by requiring the division of families, admitting the children to State aid, but not the parents, unless they happen to be in poor health. It is impracticable, as very few parents are willing to be relieved of the burthen of their children, and embarrassing to the Overseers of the Poor, as they must have reference to this as well as other legal provisions in their official conduct. Strictly considered, perhaps, we have no right to relieve those children, but we have done so incidentally, by relieving the parents in accordance with our own feelings and as we believe, those of this community.

The supplies out of the Almshouse have consisted almost wholly of fuel and food, the cost of which has been three thousand three hundred and sixty-two dollars.

At the Almshouse one hundred and ninety-three have been admitted, and maintained for a period in the aggregate of two thousand nine hundred and ninety-four weeks, at a total expense thus far of about eight thousand dollars. The Almshouse continues to be the place, though it must be readily perceived not a suitable one, where the Truants from the Public Schools are confined. They are taught while there by a competent teacher, but their associations when out of school are not good, and their supervision is of necessity insufficient.

The building has proved a leaky structure, and it became absolutely necessary that a second attempt should be made to remedy the defect. This has resulted successfully, the walls having been carefully picked and cemented anew with material of best quality.

The institution has been kept with his usual good management by the Superintendent, and affords to all needing it a comfortable shelter.

The Farm has not received as much attention as usual during the past season, the labor having been very much bestowed upon clearing land of rocks, draining and building wall. Its principal productions have been,

For the state of finances of this Department, we must refer to the report of the Finance Committee, which will be made at the close of the financial year. The total amount of expenditure for the nine months, is about thirteen thousand dollars.

---

THE Trustees of the Free Public Library respectfully submit their sixth annual report.

This short Municipal term has closed before we have fairly entered upon active life under the new conditions in which the institution is placed.

The labor of removing the books, putting them in order, their proper arrangement upon the shelves, and the preparation of a Catalogue, has been a work of time, much more indeed than was anticipated; but this could not well have been avoided, as the greatest part of the labor must of necessity be performed by the Librarian alone; but we believe that no pains have been spared to accomplish all these things at the earliest moment consistent with the care and accuracy desirable.

Although the printing of the Catalogue has not been completed, we have thought it best to open the Library for the use of the public, using the Catalogue as far as received, and adding the remaining sheets as they come from the hands of the printer. This course was prompted by a desire to supply as early as possible a great want of the community—a want more deeply felt, after having been so well supplied with books during the preceding years of the existence of this institution.

It has been very gratifying to observe by the eagerness displayed to avail themselves of its privileges, that the desire for books has not subsided among our large reading population, during the time that they have been deprived of its gratification.

During the six years of the existence of this institution, we have lost 214 volumes, very few of which were of much real value, and can be easily replaced if desirable.

These losses have been owing to the want of a Catalogue, and the necessary exposure of the books in the room where the Library was formerly located, and the causes could not have been removed under the disadvantages of that location; but we believe there will be no such occurrence under the present arrangements.

It has been found necessary to provide an Assistant Librarian, under the new regulations and increased demand for books; and we are glad to say that the manner in which the duties of both Librarian and Assistant are performed, is highly satisfactory.

The Library has been enriched by a generous donation from the Hon. George Howland, Jr., the income from which has been placed at our disposal, and is intended for the purchase of valuable works of science of a more expensive character than we should feel authorized to purchase with the money appropriated by the Municipal government for the increase of the Library. We have anticipated the receipts from this source in the purchases of the past season. For this liberal donation the thanks of the community are due, and we hope it will not long stand alone upon our records, but only as the pioneer of a long array of benefactions to the great cause of public instruction; and we earnestly invite all those who are willing to enjoy the satisfaction of aiding a good cause, the fruits of which they may see in their own day, to consider the claims of the Free Public Library.

The expenditures for the support of the institution have been rather larger than usual, as it was thought desirable to include as many new books in the Catalogue now being printed as possible. The items are as follows:

|                              |           |
|------------------------------|-----------|
| For Books,                   | $1084.64 |
| “ Fuel,                      | 90.40     |
| “ Salaries,                  | 675.00    |
| “ Rents,                     | 240.00    |
| “ Printing, Stationery, &c., | 56.45     |
|                              | <hr/>     |
|                              | $2146.49 |

Which leaves a deficit of $92.32.

The number of books added the last year is 798.

The whole number now belonging to the Library is 10,612.

The number of books issued from March 4th to May 9th, at which time the Library was closed preparatory to removal, was 4798.

The number issued from November 9th, at which time the new rooms were opened, to January 1st, 1858, was 4660.

The number of cards issued in the same time was 1490.

Books and other publications have been received from the following persons:

Hon. George H. Dunbar; Hon. George Howland, Jr.; Hon. James Arnold; Wells S. Baker, Esq.; Mrs. Sarah Coffin; Professor Agassiz, of Cambridge; La Roy Sunderland, of Boston; William Logan Fisher, of Philadelphia; Trustees of the Peabody Institute, of Danvers;

Charles L. Flint, Esq., Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture; A. D. Bache, Superintendent of the U. S. Coast Survey; Hon. Robert B. Hall, M. C.; State of Rhode Island; D. T. Valentine.

IN presenting the accustomed annual Report from this department of the public service, it gives us pleasure to be able to state that our public schools continue to be, generally, in good condition. Were we to express ourselves entirely satisfied with what has been accomplished under our administration, it would indicate a more faithful performance of our duties than we can properly claim credit for. For though we have labored with harmonious counsels to promote the best interests of all the schools which have been under our charge, and claim to have devoted a reasonable share of time to the discharge of our obligations in that respect, there are still defects to be remedied and improvements to be made in most if not all of our schools, before they can occupy the highest position that they are susceptible of attaining; and until they shall, as a whole, have reached as near an approximation to that point as circumstances will permit, those who exercise supervision over them ought not to be satisfied with the results of their labors.

Several changes, applying to various particulars, have been made during the year, with the view of further improving the condition of our schools, with what success sufficient time has not yet elapsed since the alterations were introduced to enable us to determine. Some of these changes, however, cannot well fail to prove salutary. A new arrangement of the school terms has been made, from which many good effects are predicted. A regular course of study has been prescribed for all the different grades of schools, from the Primary to the High School. The qualifications required for admission from the lower to the higher grades have been raised and more precisely defined, and the times at which the admissions shall take place have been fixed. The "Rules and Regulations" have been adapted to these alterations, and have undergone a much-needed revision in other respects. These changes result in a general and harmonious system, by which the pupils in one grade of schools, after pursuing a certain course of study and perfecting themselves therein, advance at stated intervals to the next higher grade, and so on till they shall have completed the series. Thus the pupils, knowing the amount of work necessary to be accomplished in a given time in order to promotion, will be enabled to graduate their efforts accordingly; and it is hoped that the teachers will, by the same cause, be stimulated to make such exertions in behalf of their scholars as will enable them to attain the desired object.

The salaries now paid to our teachers are on a liberal scale, and are such as ought to secure for all the positions occupied faithful and competent instructors; and it should be remembered that it was with that object in view that they have been gradually advanced to the present standard. It is important that this fact should be borne in mind, both in the appointment of teachers, and, whenever the question arises, in deciding upon their removal, otherwise the end aimed at will be wholly defeated. Great care should in the first place be taken to select those who afford the best evidences of possessing the requisite qualifications. And if, as will quite frequently happen notwithstanding all our precautions, a teacher should be appointed who on trial proves to have no fitness for his employment, or fails to any considerable extent to meet the requirements which the salary of the position was intended to remunerate, he ought to be removed. Though the circumstances of the incumbent may be such as to excite our sympathies, and other causes conspire to render the performance of the act extremely unpleasant, the welfare of the schools themselves is the first and the highest consideration which should influence our action, and if necessary for that, we should not be deterred from the discharge of our duty by the fear of wounding the feelings or of destroying the hopes of individuals.

We have been pleased to observe the increased efforts made by many of the teachers to give to their pupils clear ideas of the principles of the different studies pursued, or in other words to make their instruction more thorough. The mere familiarity of the scholar with the rules and formulas of his text-books is of but little consequence, unless he has likewise been taught to comprehend the reasons upon which they are based. The memorizing of set forms of words by which principles are supposed to be enunciated and facts declared, does not constitute education. The mind must be enabled to grasp the subject treated in all its bearings,—must perceive its philosophy,—must digest it and make it a part of itself, or the best fruits of the study are lost to the learner. The teacher should never lose sight of the fact that the highest end of all study is the development and quickening of the mental capacities of the scholar. Experience leads us to believe that the drill system of instruction, by which the pupil proceeds from first principles, step by step, thoroughly and fully completing his work as he advances, is the most effectual in making good scholars; and we hope to see this method of teaching more extensively adopted. We are aware of the natural desire of scholars to hurry over as much space as possible in their text-books in a given time, and of the difficulty experienced by some teachers in restraining their pupils within proper limits. But it is believed that this difficulty is mainly confined to those teachers who do not take the necessary pains to convince the scholar of his real ignorance of what he thinks he already understands. If the scholar's deficiencies are pointed out and made apparent to him, it will rarely happen that he will manifest a desire to advance more rapidly than he can master.

The successful operation of the system now in force in relation to our schools, as modified by the new arrangement lately introduced, depends in a great degree upon the regular attendance of the scholars. Now that a given time is assigned for the accomplishment of a given amount of work, on the completion of which within the time specified the scholar's promotion depends, the evil of irregular attendance will, it is believed, be much more serious in its consequences than it has heretofore been; it being usually the case that the more systematic the plan upon which schools are conducted, the greater the mischief arising from this cause. The more rigid enforcement of the rule of the Committee in relation to this matter is suggested as one means of prevention. Much may also be done by the teachers to the same end by invariably sending for the absentees, unless the cause of their absence is already known; by constantly reminding the scholars of the consequences which are sure to ensue from persistence in such a course; and by the use of such other proper means as experience may prove to be effectual. The large percentage of attendance which those of our teachers who have given special attention to this subject have been able to secure, shows how much can be accomplished by well-directed and persevering efforts from this source. We would therefore urge upon the teachers in general the importance of increased exertions on their part in this behalf, in order that the evil in question may be diminished as much as possible. The attention of parents is also solicited to this subject. It too often happens that the scholar is kept from school for slight and wholly insufficient reasons, the parents not realizing that his constant attendance may be absolutely necessary to the maintenance of his standing in his class; and it not unfrequently occurs that if the scholar is from incompetency degraded to a lower class, or fails of being promoted with his associates, the parents are loudest in their complaints, little thinking that their own neglect of duty is the cause of what they attribute to the partiality or favoritism of the teacher or the Committee. The best security against results of this character is, for parents to send their children as regularly as possible to the school to which they may belong.

The suggestion contained in the Report of last year in regard to constituting the Truant Committee, at least in part, of members of the Police department, was acted upon in the appointments which were soon after made, and the change has proved very beneficial; means having thus been afforded not only of bringing delinquents more surely and speedily to justice, but also of reaching cases in their earlier stages, before the offenders have rendered themselves liable to prosecution, and thus frequently avoiding the necessity of resorting to that extremity. The existing arrangement is, however, very far from being as effective as could be desired, the law being still but imperfectly executed under it; yet it is perhaps as good as circumstances will warrant, and its continuance, for the present at least, is recommended.

Following is the usual schedule of all the schools in the city, with the names of the teachers, the average number of scholars belonging to each school, and the average and percentage of attendance in each, for the last three terms:

PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

HILL PRIMARY SCHOOL. — Miss Susan T. Sherman and Miss Eleanor Commerford, the former principal and assistant of this school, were at the commencement of the Summer term transferred to the new school on Merrimac street. Since that time this school has been under the care of Miss Mary E. Tew as principal, and Miss K. Commerford as assistant, under whose joint labors it has rapidly risen, until at the close of the Fall term it may justly be considered as the model primary school of the city. Not only have the teachers been eminently successful in imparting instruction to those under their care, but the whole school appears orderly, and yet cheerful, under the influence of that firm but mild government which is so indispensable to raise schools of this grade to a proper standard and at the same time render them places of pleasant resort for the young children who are taught in them. Arithmetic and geography have been so successfully taught in this school, (while reading and spelling, so far from being neglected, have been pursued with more than ordinary success,) that your committee cannot but recommend that more attention to these studies be required in the primary schools than heretofore.

MERRIMAC STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL. — This school was established at the commencement of the Summer term, under the instruction of Miss Susan T. Sherman and Miss Eleanor Commerford, the late principal and first assistant of the Hill school, and was composed of scholars from the Hill, Parker street and Maxfield street schools.

Miss Sherman resigned her situation at the close of the Summer term; not, however, without having reduced to order the chaotic mass committed to her care. She was succeeded by Miss Isabella G. Staples, under whose instruction the school at the close of the last term appeared to have made reasonable progress, and to give just ground of expectation that it would soon assume an honorable position among the primary schools of the city. The school has been too large for the number of teachers employed in it, and for the best interest of the school the services of another assistant seem indispensable.

PARKER STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL. — The reading of the first class at the close of the last term was excellent, and equal if not superior to that in any primary school in the city. Besides this, the general character and attainments of the school were not above the average. Your Committee, however, have undiminished confidence in the ability of the teachers to raise the school to as high a position as it has at any time heretofore occupied, and recommend that more attention be paid to the lower classes.

CEDAR STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL. — The past year with this school has been one of ordinary success, the classes of the principal having shown a commendable advance from term to term. We regret, however, to be obliged to say that the classes of the assistant were very far from being so forward as desired or as might be reasonably expected. Much effort and labor will be required to bring the classes in this department to that position which they should occupy, and which is held by classes of similar grade in other schools. (See report of Dartmouth street primary school.)

A fine class in arithmetic in the principal's room added much to the interest of the examination.

MAXFIELD STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—The teachers in this school during the past year have been Miss Mary B. White, Principal, Miss Judith S. Macomber first, and Miss M. A. Simmons second Assistant, (except during the Fall term, when, on account of the sickness of Miss Simmons, her place was supplied by Miss Sarah M. Howland.) The school has fully maintained the place assigned it in the last report, and is deservedly numbered among the best in the city. A class in arithmetic in this school exhibited fair proficiency.

The reading of the first assistant's class, at the last examination, was excellent, and indicated a large amount of care and labor on the part of its instructor, as well as commendable diligence on the part of the scholars.

CHARLES STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—Although the largest in the city, and requiring at the hands of its instructors more than an ordinary amount of labor, this is, notwithstanding, an orderly, well-disciplined, and well-instructed school; and the improvement manifest in the scholars at each succeeding examination of the past year has abundantly shown that, while the teachers have not been unemployed, neither have they been unsuccessful in imparting instruction to those under their charge. And its appearance at the last examination, while it was not in all respects equal to that of some other schools of its grade, was very satisfactory, revealing many things worthy of praise, with few, if any, real causes of complaint. The spelling in all the classes was very good, and deserving of special notice.

WILLIAM STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—The teachers in this school have apparently labored zealously to place it in the first rank of primary schools, and there has been a marked improvement in it during the year. It is considered by the Committee a good school, although not displaying to the visitor that animation and lively interest noticed in some of the other schools of its grade.

BUSH STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—We cannot describe the condition of this school better than to repeat the language of the report of last year:

“This is a very pleasant, well-drilled, and excellently managed school, and fully maintains the deservedly good reputation which it has long enjoyed.”

GRIFFIN STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—This still continues to be a good school, and presents many characteristics alike creditable to teachers and scholars. A good degree of progress in learning has been made during the past year, and the last examination, while it did not indicate the school in so high a position as it has at times heretofore occupied, was all that could be expected under the circumstances in which the school has been placed.

Arithmetic and geography have both been studied with success, and the classes in these branches were among the best in the city.

SIXTH STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—Miss Cushman, who was appointed principal of this school at the commencement of the Spring term, was appointed principal of the Dartmouth street school at the commencement of the Summer term, and was succeeded by Miss Ruth H. Brady, the former first assistant of this school; Miss Sarah H. Cranston having been at the same time appointed first, and Miss E. B. Tobey second assistant. Under their instruction the school has greatly improved, and gives every inducement for us to believe that there are now employed in it teachers who are every way qualified to make the school in all respects what it should be. The whole school appears well, and the recitations of the various classes at the last examination, including three in arithmetic and one in geography, were almost uniformly good.

DARTMOUTH STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL. — This school during the last two terms has been under the care of Miss H. P. Cushman, principal, and Miss Mary A. Post, assistant. The classes of the principal have rapidly advanced from among the poorest to a position among the best, and their last examination was in every respect satisfactory. Much attention has been paid to arithmetic and geography, and the proficiency of the geography class is worthy of special praise.

The classes of the assistant, however, failed to give that satisfaction which those of similar grade in other schools have given.

Permit us here to present the inquiry whether the unfavorable condition in which the lower classes in this and the Cedar street school are found, is not, in a great measure, attributable to the arrangement of the school-rooms, the scholars under the charge of the different teachers being taught exclusively in separate rooms, and the classes of the assistant not being in any perceivable degree under the influence of the principal, or having the benefit of listening to the recitations of the older and more advanced classes.

GROVE INTERMEDIAL AND PRIMARY SCHOOL. — The primary department in this school is under the care of Miss Chase, and compares well with the other primary schools. The room at times during the year has been excessively crowded, and the amount of labor required altogether too much for one teacher. Notwithstanding this and other untoward circumstances, the school at the close of the last term passed a very satisfactory examination.

In behalf of the Primary School Committee.

WILLIAM HOWE, Chairman.

INTERMEDIAL SCHOOLS.

The Committee present their report upon these schools with much satisfaction. Among them all, there is not one which does not give evidence of ability and fidelity in the management of it. Most of the teachers, we believe, and we may apply the remark to the principals without exception, have done what they could. This commendation, however, it is thought, needs qualification in respect to several assistants. There is nothing seen which appears like intentional neglect, but there is a want of efficiency. This is attributed, for the most part, to an inadequate view of their share in the responsibility of instructing and governing. The character of a school is by no means dependent upon the principal alone. The worst deficiencies can sometimes be clearly traced to the want of qualification or want of fidelity in an assistant.

The following brief notices of the several schools will indicate something of their character respectively:

HILL SCHOOL.—This school is in a good condition. The discipline is efficient, and the methods of instruction are generally satisfactory. The higher classes in arithmetic and the lower classes in reading deserve a special notice.

PARKER STREET.—In this school the attendance reported has been better in proportion to the number of scholars belonging to it, than in any other of the grade. We commend it highly for the pleasant aspect always exhibited and for the quiet which pervades it. The recitations of the various classes were good, but there is a prevailing want of animation, to which may be attributed many faults, especially in reading.

MAXFIELD STREET. — The higher classes acquitted themselves in arithmetic with high credit to themselves and to their instructor. Besides making satisfactory progress, they evinced an earnestness and enthusiasm in the study, which are more to be valued than any mere attainment without them. The reading was not equal in excellence.

KEMPTON STREET. — At the beginning of the Summer term the former principal of this school was superseded by Miss Emma R. Wentworth, previously an assistant in the Parker street Grammar School. Miss W. is doing well, and although the school has fallen below the average standard, the Committee are encouraged to hope that, with the combined and persevering efforts of the teachers, it will not long remain so. A fact which is apparent in most of the schools has been impressively illustrated here. The greatest difficulties of many of our teachers, have their source outside of the school-room. It is not a small achievement if the evils of a debasing street-culture, and of neglect on the part of natural guardians are here checked. A complete remedy must be sought elsewhere.

CHARLES STREET. — Good order in this school appears to be uniformly well-maintained. In their studies the scholars are well drilled, and in no school has there been better evidence of untiring labor. In spelling, this school at the examination stood first.

WILLIAM STREET. — We have found here good government, and still better instruction. There is no better articulation in a school of this class, and there is a promptness in recitation which shows a rare tact in overcoming the mental inertia so common in the school. The excellence of this school will be recognized by every visitor, and the occasion of it is obvious. The teachers not only labor earnestly, but labor together. There are individual teachers, in other schools, as good as in this, but in no other of the grade is the power of combined effort so apparent and so efficient.

BUSH STREET. — This school deserves the good name which it has long maintained. In the lower classes, while there is much to commend, especially some good reading, the standard of the recitations would be greatly elevated by infusing a larger share of energy.

SIXTH STREET. — This is the largest of the Intermedial Schools. The average attendance reported is twenty greater than at William street, which stands next. In the opinion of the Committee, it is too large for the best interests of the scholars, who are at an age when a large school is obviously less favorable to their progress than when they have better learned how to study. The room which they occupy and its furniture are unsuited to their wants. Notwithstanding all this, this school is surpassed by none in the attractive quiet and the cheerful obedience which we have uniformly found here. In their recitations, the higher classes appeared well.

DARTMOUTH STREET. — This school, being the smallest of the grade, has but one teacher. The order which prevails and the general appearance of the scholars are creditable. In arithmetic, the classes have advanced further than the corresponding classes in any other school, but there were many failures upon examination. In geography, this school ranks among the best.

GROVE, INTERMEDIAL DEPARTMENT.—The poor accommodations provided here would be, we think, a reasonable excuse for a poor school. There is only a thin partition separating this from the primary department in which there are more than sixty scholars. All the noise of the room above, also seems to gravitate downwards unchecked. There are striking excellences to be met here, and some faults which are not small. In reading, the articulation was very good, but the modulation was far from satisfactory. In arithmetic, the higher classes were evidently well drilled where young scholars are most liable to fail; but in some simpler processes, perhaps owing to carelessness, were very deficient.

In behalf of the Committee.

TIMOTHY STOWE, Chairman.

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

At the organization of the Board, the Grammar School Committee was appointed for the whole city, consisting of one Committee, instead of two (North and South) as heretofore. This Committee divided the work of examination of schools, as follows: Rev. Mr. Craig in moral science and physiology, Mr. Stetson in geography, Mr. Rodman in grammar, Mr. Durfee in arithmetic, Mr. Crapo in history, and Mr. Barney in reading and spelling. Each gentleman agreed to keep the standard of the schools, and report in writing at the close of the year the result of his observations. All these gentlemen have from time to time made such examinations as they thought proper, (except Mr. Crapo, who has not been able to attend to the duty assigned to him,) and their reports are herewith submitted. They are very full, and I take pleasure in referring the Board to the many valuable suggestions they contain.

This method is new with the Committee, but, as will be readily seen, has many advantages over the old mode. Now, one gentleman takes one branch of study, and makes that his exclusive duty during the year throughout the city, so that he may be able to report the progress each school has attained, and compare one school with another much better than heretofore. It enables each member to express his own opinion, in his own language, instead of through the chairman. I think it works well, and I earnestly recommend the same course in future.

The undersigned found the schools at the beginning of the year in a very fair condition, and I think I can fully say that the year has been profitably spent by the teachers and scholars, and that there has been a continual advance in all the schools. I think we have a good corps of principals and assistant teachers, who seem to manifest great earnestness and labor for the advancement of the schools. It was my duty to examine the schools in reading and spelling. It is very difficult to give any accurate percentage, or to make any standard by figures that will be just to all of the schools, as this branch depends so much upon such a variety of circumstances, so that I shall not attempt to classify them.

The Bush street girls' and Charles street schools I should judge give more attention to reading than the other schools, and there are some very excellent readers in each. It would be difficult, I think, for any one to decide which school excelled the other; in some styles of reading the one is better than the other, and vice versa. It is sufficient to say that they both have many good readers.

The Parker street, Middle street, and Bush street boys' schools are too nearly equal in standing to enable me to distinguish which is the best. They have some good readers in each, though it is apparent that much improvement could be made in all.

DARTMOUTH STREET, GRAMMAR DEPARTMENT. — This school does well; and when it gets age, I shall expect quite as good readers in it as in any grammar school in the city. Miss Bonney has the capacity and ability to teach reading successfully.

GROVE SCHOOL. — The scholars in this school are of a smaller class than in the other schools. It does not rank as high in reading. There are individual exceptions which indicate that the same proficiency may be attained in this as in the other schools in the city, and I recommend that more attention be paid to this branch in future.

In all the schools (except the girls' schools,) I recommend more attention to reading. There should be regular exercises in reading as often as three times a week in the text-books, in the higher classes; the lower classes, oftener. Good reading commands attention. There is not much danger of teachers spending too much time on this branch.

The government in the schools has been very good during the year. There have been unfavorable circumstances which have had a retarding influence upon the schools. In some instances they may have occurred from the unguarded conduct of some of the parents. These things might be avoided; and that parent who seeks to magnify the supposed errors or short-comings of a teacher can have but a small appreciation of his duty to the public, or any great regard for the general cause of education.

To make good scholars, parents must exert an influence, for without the aid of the parent or guardian the school teacher can do but little. No teacher is perfect, and errors may be seen in every one.

There have been several material changes in the schools, such as the alteration of the terms, and the additional studies, and increased qualification, which the Committee think will be of great advantage to the schools.

The change of text-books will, the Committee hope, add both interest and ease to the duties of the scholar and teacher, and will fully compensate the parent for the increased outlay that the Committee have imposed. It is not well, nor is it advisable, to have too frequent a change in the text-books; and as soon as the contemplated arrangements are fully completed, it will not be necessary for some years, we hope, again to make any changes in the books, as great care has been bestowed by the Committee in the selection of the books now adopted.

I again invite the Board's attention to the reports of my associates, and I solicit the teachers' and the parents' attention to the suggestions contained therein.

E. L. BARNEY, Chairman of Grammar School Committee.

ARITHMETIC.

The Sub-Committee to whom was assigned the examination in arithmetic of the several Grammar Schools, reports—

That in respect to this branch of study, the schools, as a whole, are in but a fair condition.

Of the girls' schools on Charles, and Bush streets, your Committee can speak with hearty commendation.

The Middle street boys' passed the spring examination very satisfactorily, and but for the illness of its principal during the last term would probably have maintained its standing. With this drawback, however, the school appeared creditably.

The other schools have not come up to the position which your Committee thinks it reasonable to expect of them.

Some allowance may be made to the Bush street boys', for the unruly disposition of a number of the scholars, as evinced in the late troubles there; and perhaps an equal consideration attaches in the case of the Parker street school, to the fact of its having a larger number of scholars in proportion to its corps of teachers than the other schools of its grade; but, as above stated, the Board have reason to expect a higher degree of attainment.

Your Committee finds one cause of the present inferior condition of these schools, in the haste with which the scholars are hurried through just those portions of their several studies as form the basis of the examination of candidates for admission into the High School.

The impression seems to have obtained, that the inferior grades of schools are to be considered solely with reference to the superior; and that that school best accomplishes its purpose, which graduates its pupils with the greatest rapidity. The natural consequence of this feeling, which is especially prominent in the grammar schools, is superficial scholarship; and so far is this apparent, that your Committee could cite several instances in which classes in arithmetic, who had completed the subject of "Extraction of square root," could not answer some of the simplest questions on the earlier principles of the science. In fact, the second classes in some schools passed the same general examination better than the first.

For this state of things the teachers are somewhat excusable, in consequence of the pressure in this direction exerted on them by many parents, who judge of the progress of their children by the number of books they have studied, and who seem to believe that getting a seat in the High School is a sure precedent to good scholarship. And before leaving this point, your Committee would suggest, that if those parents who are so solicitous that teachers should hurry their children forward to the High School, and who enforce so strongly on the children the desirableness of their speedy entrance therein, would dwell instead upon the necessity of both teaching and learning thoroughly what is attempted, their wish would be as quickly attained, their children better scholars, and the High School what its name indicates.

Your Committee would also call your attention to another hindrance to the success of our means of education, arising from the scanty time generally allowed for recitations.

In the plan of instruction by tasks and recitations, the latter, though necessarily second in order, are yet hardly so in importance. A recitation properly conducted digests the matter absorbed in learning the task, separates each fact to its appropriate place in memory, gives opportunity for explanation of obscurities, and correction of misapprehension, and by the competition engendered in its performance in classes stimulates the pupils to increased care and effort. Hence the value of a recitation depends on the extent of the immediate participancy therein of each pupil; and when the time given thereto is so short in proportion to the number reciting as not to devolve on each individual a share of the duty, just in the proportion it fails to do this is the recitation a failure. It may not be possible that each scholar should have a prominent part in every exercise, as that would require a corps of teachers several times larger than our present; but when the time devoted to a mathematical recitation scarcely ever exceeds half an hour, and in most cases is less, and when the number reciting is, as in some cases, equal to the number of minutes in the time, it would seem that some change was needed.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ZOHETH S. DURFEE, Committee.

GRAMMAR.

The undersigned, who examined the grammar classes in the grammar schools, reports of their condition as follows:

GROVE GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—There are five classes in this school. The first and second recite to the principal, the third and fourth to the first assistant, and the fifth to the second assistant.

The first and second classes were examined in parsing, in exercises selected from Hillard's Reader, and passed the one a tolerable, the other a fair examination. The three lower classes were examined in Tower's Grammar, and showed a fair knowledge of the study so far as they had progressed.

BUSH STREET BOYS' GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—There are five classes in this school, which recite as follows: the first to the principal, the second and third to the first assistant, and the fourth and fifth to the second assistant.

The first class was examined in parsing, in an exercise selected from Hillard's Reader, and passed a good examination, appearing to have been intelligently instructed in the principles which are the foundation of a correct knowledge of this study. The second and third classes were also examined in selections from Hillard's Reader, and passed fair examinations.

The time given to each recitation of the five lower classes is only fifteen or twenty minutes, and the period thus allotted is, in my opinion, too short to produce the required result, and in this respect this school labors under a disadvantage. I notice, moreover, too great a disparity in the standing of the scholars composing some of the classes, and recommend that in the ensuing year a larger measure of time be given to the recitations, and that more care be exercised to grade the divisions of the school according to the rank of the pupils.

BUSH STREET GIRLS' GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—There are five classes in this school. The first two are instructed by the principal, the third by the first assistant, and the fourth and fifth by the second assistant.

The first and second classes were examined in Greene's First Lessons, by questions, analysis and parsing. They passed a very good examination, giving evidence of very thorough drilling on the part of their teacher. The three lower classes also passed very good examinations in Tower's First Lessons. The instruction in grammar in this school is thorough and excellent, and if progress is not made in this study, the blame can be with the pupils only.

The recitations of the younger classes prove that young children can obtain an intelligent knowledge of the principles on which grammar is founded, if they are rightly taught.

MIDDLE STREET GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—In this school a very hasty examination was made of the three lower classes; other engagements prevented me from completing the examination. Although this is to be regretted, the omission is of less importance from the fact that the principal has been absent, through indisposition, for the greater part of the term, and the assistants in consequence have had the additional duty imposed upon them of hearing the recitations of his classes. Under these circumstances, therefore, the school should not be judged by the same standard which is applied to the other grammar schools in the city. From the examination made, I believe that, all things considered, the school fully sustains its past reputation, and that the teaching is careful and thorough.

CHARLES STREET GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—There are five classes in this school. The first and second are instructed by the principal, the third by the first assistant, the fourth by the second assistant.

The first and second classes passed very good examinations, very thoroughly conducted, in parsing and analysis. The third class passed a very good examination in Greene's First Lessons, and, though a young class, appeared to be very well grounded in the principles as laid down in that treatise. I report these three classes to be in very excellent condition, and the teaching to be most thorough and excellent.

The fourth class was examined in Tower's First Lessons, and passed a poor examination. I attribute much of this deficiency, however, to the timidity of youth, their recitations impressing me as much with their want of confidence as with their want of knowledge.

PARKER STREET GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—In this school there are six classes. The first and second recite to the principal, the third and fourth to the first assistant, the fifth and sixth to the second assistant.

The first and second classes were examined in parsing in exercises selected from Hillard's Readers, and passed the one a fair, the other a tolerable examination. The third class passed a fair examination in Wells's Grammar; and the fourth class passed a poor examination in Tower's First Lessons. The fifth and sixth classes passed fair examinations in Tower's First Lessons.

DARTMOUTH STREET GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—This school was not examined as the others at the close of the last term. On a former occasion, near the beginning of the year, the three classes in grammar were examined.

The first two classes appeared to be well drilled in the rules, but were deficient in parsing; the lowest class, composed of very young children, was so overcome by timidity and bashfulness that it was impossible to obtain any correct result from the examination.

I had intended on submitting this report to have presented the standing of the different classes by a tabular statement showing the percentage of error made by each class in each school. I found that this could not be done while the methods of instruction were so different in each school. The Charles street and Bush street Girls' Grammar Schools use for the more advanced classes "Greene's First Lessons," while the corresponding classes in the other grammar schools employ Wells's Grammar as their text-book. Thus, while in the two above named schools analysis is made a special subject of study, in the other schools less or no attention is paid to it. It is evident, therefore, that the same standard cannot measure the grammar class which can parse only, and the grammar class which can parse and analyze. If our grammar schools are to be grammar schools, grammar should be taught thoroughly and systematically in all its branches. The scholars should learn not merely the construction of words, but the construction of sentences—analysis as well as parsing.

I respectfully suggest, therefore, that this matter receive the attention of the Committee, and that care be taken to give each division of this study its due prominence in the course of instruction pursued in the schools.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOMAS R. RODMAN.

GEOGRAPHY.

I was intrusted with the grammar school examination in geography, and have from time to time throughout the year, heard the various classes in that branch of study. It is an easy study, involving little besides an exercise of memory, and with the various mnemonic aids which our schools afford, the progress throughout has been satisfactory. Some classes have certainly excelled others. In the Parker street school, the lower classes, and the first class, which is under the principal's charge, very much excelled the second class. It is unnecessary to specify the performances of certain classes, as, upon the whole, each of the schools has made good progress. The scholars seem to have a better acquaintance with geography than with other branches, in all schools, perhaps because it is easier.

In the Bush street girls' school, and in the Charles street school, the mode of recitation by the use of the large maps, not as mere extended illustrations of the small ones, but according to the peculiar system of these maps, has been used. The pupils recite in concert, following, naming and explaining all the numbers, territorial divisions, rivers, cities, gulfs, bays, &c., upon the charts. They have carried out the plan with apparent faithfulness, and the results are very satisfactory. In the Charles street school, where this plan has been longest in use, the progress has been the most remarkable. Not only the first class, under Miss Burr's charge, but the junior classes, under Miss Colburn and Miss Cornish, conduct their recitations, lasting for some fifteen or twenty minutes, with hardly a word of direction from the teacher, assuming a certain map, and giving in concert an elaborate and complete explanation of the whole of it; describing all the appearances upon it, and identifying every name by the pointer, which is held in turn. This method, of course, might conceal individual deficiencies, but such did not appear upon individual examination. The first class in this school is the best I have seen.

This method is very well adapted to arouse and interest pupils, and make proficiency general; but it obviously relies upon a close examination on the part of the teachers, and a sense of honor in the scholars, to prevent individual ignorance. It has been used in all the schools, but not to the same extent as those I have named.

THOMAS M. STETSON.

MARKET SQUARE SCHOOL.

The principal and assistants of this school fully sustain their former excellent reputation. Although the school is composed of a class of scholars not the most favorable for the display of the teachers' efforts, yet there is a remarkable degree of sympathy and good feeling existing between the teachers and pupils, a fact which, taken in connection with the good order that prevails and attention to study, affords the best evidence of good management.

The only impediments to the most successful results in this school, seem to be the unfavorable location of the house and its insufficient accommodations.

DANIEL WILDER, Committee.

COUNTRY SCHOOLS.

Several of these schools have been seriously affected during the year by the extremely irregular attendance of the scholars. As the schools of this class, owing to their location, are practically excepted from the operation of the rule by which this difficulty is designed to be remedied in the schools located in the city proper, the attendance of the scholars is entirely voluntary with themselves or their parents, subject only to such influences as the teachers are able to exert to make such attendance regular; and these influences, so far as the schools in question are concerned, seem to be wholly insufficient for the purpose. Unless the evil can in some better way be removed, it is suggested that the rule above alluded to be enforced with reference to these schools, giving perhaps some discretionary power to the teachers in its application, in order to meet exceptional cases. In regard to the condition of these schools during the year, there has been a very marked difference between them, as the following remarks under the head of each school will show:

NORTH SCHOOL.—During the Summer and Fall terms, this school was under the charge of Miss A. J. Borden, and was in a satisfactory condition. Miss Borden resigned at the close of the latter term, and was succeeded by Miss Kate H. Brady, in whose ability successfully to conduct the school, the Committee have the utmost confidence.

ACUSHNET SCHOOL.—The new principal appointed to this school near the close of the last year, fully fills the place of the one who formerly occupied the same position; the order and discipline of the school and all its exercises having proved him to be a very able and efficient manager, and a competent, skilful, and thorough instructor.

BELVILLE SCHOOL.—At the close of the Fall term, Miss Mary A. Sears, under whose charge this school had been during that and the preceding term, resigned her position, and was succeeded by Miss Clara J. Cate. The school is quite difficult to manage, not so much on account of the rebellious character of the scholars, as from the nervous activity and restlessness which many of them manifest. The first teacher of the school had great difficulty in keeping it in a reasonable state of quietness, and Miss Sears was still more unfortunate. In consequence of this state of things, the scholars have not made that advancement which they might under more favorable circumstances. From the reputation which the new principal brings with her, for ability to govern, and for the possession of other qualifications for successful teaching, the Committee have reason to hope for much improvement in the condition of this school.

PERRY'S NECK SCHOOL.—The Committee have not been satisfied with the standing of this school in point of scholarship, during the year. Though the teacher appears to possess the ability to maintain good order, the classes have not displayed that degree of proficiency which is indicative of energetic management and careful instruction; and improvement in these respects is much to be desired.

HASKINS' CORNER SCHOOL.—This school is one of superior excellence in all the qualities which depend upon the character of the teacher. It is the largest of the country schools having but a single instructor, and contains quite a number of large scholars; and the teacher is entitled to additional credit for the success which has attended her efforts under these circumstances. The inhabitants of this section do not however seem fully to appreciate the advantages they possess in having a school of this character, for the teacher has been unable to secure the regular attendance of the scholars, and her task has thus been made much more laborious, and her exertions to elevate the standard of scholarship in the school have been to a considerable extent neutralized.

CANNONVILLE SCHOOL.—This school is now under the charge of Miss Hannah E. Peirce, who was appointed principal at the commencement of the present term. The Committee have been somewhat unfortunate in their selection of teachers for this position for some two or three years past, all having failed in the essential qualification of ability to govern the school. However many other excellencies the teachers may have posessed, the want of this has caused a failure in other respects, and, as a consequence, the school has made but little progress for a considerable period back. The present incumbent was appointed with a reasonable assurance on the part of the Committee that she unites the qualifications necessary for success in this place; but whether their expectations will be realized, time only can determine. The primary department of the school is under the immediate charge of the assistant, Miss Bryant, and is essentially a distinct school; and the above remarks have no application to this department, its condition being satisfactory.

POINT SCHOOL.—This school has for some two years past been under the charge of Miss Elizabeth R. Howland, and from the time of her appointment it has been in a flourishing condition. Good order is maintained, the scholars are well drilled, and the school presents many other indications of faithfulness and good management on the part of the teacher.

ALMS HOUSE SCHOOL.—Considering the character of the material of which this school is composed, it has done as well as could reasonably be expected. The school still continues under the charge of Miss Amanda A. Howland.

A. BORDEN,
for the Committee.

HIGH SCHOOL.

The course of study hitherto pursued in this school has lately been revised, with the view of requiring more attention to be paid hereafter to the higher branches of education usually taught in schools of this character, and thus elevating the standard of scholarship in the school. The studies heretofore pursued during the first year of the course have in the main been stricken out, and added to the list of grammar school studies, and the qualifications necessary for admission to the High School have been proportionately advanced. These changes will necessarily work a complete revolution in the school, and when they shall have gone fully into effect will, it is believed, make it such a High School as a city of the size and population of ours ought to possess and sustain.

The Committee have not intended by their action to reflect upon the character of the teachers, neither is it to be inferred therefrom that the school has degenerated. On the contrary, they believe that the present instructors are generally efficient, and have performed the work assigned them with a reasonable degree of fidelity, and that the school is fully equal to what it has been in former years. They think, however, that more advanced scholarship, and the pursuit of a higher range of study are required, in order to place it upon an equality with the better class of institutions of its kind in other sections of the State, and they have acted accordingly.

A class of forty-two in number was admitted at the Spring examination, and a class numbering seventeen in the Fall, and the school now numbers about one hundred and fifty. As the important branches of arithmetic and grammar are hereafter required to be substantially completed in the grammar schools, and as no sufficient opportunity will be afforded for supplying deficiencies in these studies after entrance into the High School, great care will be requisite on the part of the Committee to prevent the admission of candidates having an insufficient knowledge of these branches; and, for the same reason, additional care will be necessary, on the part of the grammar school teachers, in the preparation of scholars in the same.

Early in the year, the Sub-Committee on this school apportioned among themselves the care of the different studies pursued; and they have, with some exceptions, severally attended to the duties thus assigned them. The reports of those having in charge the more important branches are herewith presented.

ARITHMETIC.

There have been five classes in this study in the High School during the year. At the close of the Spring term, the following examples were given to all the classes except the lowest, and written answers, accompanied by the process in full by which they were obtained, were required from each scholar.

1. A town ten miles square has a road 4 rods wide running around it, the line of the town forming the outer line of the road. Two other roads, each also 4 rods wide, run through the town, intersecting each other at right angles, and dividing the town into equal quarter sections. Required the number of acres in the town, exclusive of the roads.

2. What is the difference between the simple interest of $10, for 2 years, 2 months, and 2 days, and the compound interest of the same sum, for the same time, the rate in each case being six per cent?

3. $500.

NEW BEDFORD, January 1, 1854.

On demand, I promise to pay John Smith, or order, five hundred dollars, with interest.

JOHN SMITH.

Indorsed: March 10, 1854, received on the within $50.

January 5, 1855, " " $10.

May 15, 1856, " " $300.

Required the amount due May 25, 1857.

4. A merchant had a note for $1000 discounted at bank; one half of the note was payable in three months, and the other half in six months, from the time at which it was discounted; how much money should he have received?

5. A hall 80 feet in length, and 30 feet in width, is to be carpeted; how many square yards of carpeting are required, upon the supposition that in laying it down, it can be made to stretch 2 per cent in length and 3 per cent in breadth?

6. A merchant remitted money to his agent in Liverpool, to be expended in the purchase of goods, the agent receiving a commission of  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent on the money laid out. The goods were purchased, and were afterwards sold by the merchant for \$12,000, which was a gain of 10 per cent on the amount laid out by the agent. What was the amount of money remitted, and what was the agent's commission?

7. A merchant sold flour for $1600, on a credit of 8 months, and thereby gained 15 per cent; what would have been his gain per cent if he had sold the flour for $1600 cash?

8. The length of a certain garden which contains 128 rods, is twice as great as its width; and if the garden were 4 rods longer, it would contain an acre. Required its length and width.

These examples were performed, and the average percentage of correct answers in each class was calculated; and the following schedule shows the result. It should be borne in mind that the classes are, with a single exception, designated by the same numbers by which they were known in the general classification of the school, and therefore these numbers do not indicate the number of classes in this particular branch. The exception alluded to, is in regard to the first class, which was composed of the first and second regular school classes.

|------------------------------|---------------|--------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1st class.                   | Mr. Emerson.  | 10           | 88.                               |
| 3d "                         | Miss Babcock. | 6            | 94                                |
| 4th "                        | Miss Babcock. | 19           | 90                                |
| 6th "                        | Miss Bonney.  | 23           | 79                                |

Though an examination conducted wholly by written examples like the above is, to a certain extent, a test rather of the general ability of the scholar than of the carefulness and thoroughness of the teacher's instruction, and, on this account, is not so satisfactory as one orally conducted,—still, those who have been well taught will generally be most successful in solving problems involving the application of the principles in which they have been instructed; and, therefore, with perhaps some allowances for the difference in capacity of the scholars composing the different classes, the quality of the teaching may be considered as being pretty correctly indicated by the above schedule. The seventh class was examined orally, and exhibited a good knowledge of that part of their text-book which they had completed during the term.

At the close of the Fall term, all of the classes were examined orally. It should be observed, that the numbers do not denote the same classes having corresponding numbers at the preceding examination, these being changed on the introduction of every new class into the school. The seventh class was in two divisions, forming two classes. One of these was under the charge of Miss Tobey; the other was taught by Mr. Tucker. The former were prompt in their answers to the questions propounded, and had evidently been well instructed. The latter did not exhibit the same readiness and animation, and are not considered to have passed so good an examination as the other division. The sixth class, under Miss Babcock, displayed a very accurate and thorough knowledge of what they had passed over, and the examination was entirely satisfactory. The fifth class, under Miss Bonney, exhibited a considerable difference in the proficiency of the scholars composing it, the merit of some being balanced by the want of it in others, so that as a whole they passed but fairly. The fourth class, taught by Mr. Emerson, were examined only in that part of their text-books which they had completed under his instruction, and of this they appeared to have a very good understanding.

From the very large share of time which the teachers in this school find it necessary to devote to this branch, as well as from the general results of the examinations made, I am satisfied that the instruction in this study in several of the grammar schools is much wanting in thoroughness, and I fully agree with the examiner in this branch in the above-named schools, in his remarks upon that subject.

A. BORDEN.

READING, GRAMMAR, &C.

The undersigned, to whom was assigned the examination of the classes in the High School in reading, grammar, Cowper, and Milton, makes the following report:

I was not able to make the thorough examination that I wished, and cannot therefore report, so fully as I could desire, the standing of each class.

The third class in the school, reciting to Miss Tobey, read and parsed from "Thanatopsis." They read well, on the whole, though with more mannerism and monotony than I could have wished. They parsed intelligently, showing that they had been carefully taught to apply the rules of grammar.

The second class, reciting to Miss Babcock, read, parsed, and analyzed from a selection from Cowper. They acquitted themselves very well in all these exercises, appearing to be very well acquainted with the manner and the matter of the poet. I was much impressed with the intelligent ideas possessed by the teacher of this class, of the manner in which instruction should be imparted.

The first class, reciting to Mr. Tucker, parsed and analyzed from "Paradise Lost" very intelligently, and showed that they comprehended very thoroughly the intention of the poet. The style of Milton, though stately, is sometimes obscure, and his phraseology, derived in great part from Latin words, is for this reason more difficult to the English student. I ascribe, therefore, a considerable degree of intelligence to those who can read understandingly the works of this great author; and this the class could do. I was much pleased with their performance.

The order in this class-room is not so good as it should be, and improvement in this particular is very desirable.

The defects which are alleged to exist in the management of the High School do not, in my opinion, arise from the want of good material in the teachers, but from its hitherto faulty construction. This will be remedied under the new organization, and I trust the school will then become what its friends wish it to be. Much however has been accomplished in spite of unfavorable circumstances, and I have a very good opinion of the results obtained by the teachers, though hampered by difficulties which were inseparable from the old arrangement.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOMAS R. RODMAN.

LATIN.

There are at present in the High School four Latin classes, containing forty-six pupils. The first class, of eight scholars, is under the charge of Mr. Emerson; the second class, of seven, is under Miss Tobey's charge; and Mr. Tucker teaches the other two, which together contain thirty-one scholars. I have examined the classes from time to time, and can freely say that the mode of instruction is entirely satisfactory, but that the progress made by the classes is not so. In fact, in the High School as now constituted, the classical department is by no means dominant. There have been no Greek scholars in the school for a long time, and there is no prospect of any. The first Latin class, at the beginning of the school year, was in the beginning of Cæsar's Commentaries; and, at the end of the year, is still in one of his earlier books. I think time is not profitably spent in studying Latin, unless it is carried much farther than the present arrangements of the school will permit.

I have stated that the mode of instruction is satisfactory. It is minute and accurate, and I believe that all the ground passed over is thoroughly passed over. Such training obviates substantially the need of studying English grammar farther, and is undoubtedly the best mode of teaching the construction and organization of language. Perhaps an advantage might be gained by an exclusive use of the text-books prescribed by the Committee. So many grammars are made merely for sale, or by incompetent persons, or by those educated in the local peculiarities of particular schools and universities, or by those whose claims exist merely in the novelty of their views,—that a conformity with the prescribed text-books is desirable. The authority of Donatus, Priscian, and other grammarians of the early ages, is supreme. The best text-books now are developments of their rules, and the scholar must look backward for his authorities. The laws of construction of a dead language, like the laws of real estate, are mainly historical, and may not be altered to suit the fancies of new authors desirous of displaying new views.

The reason assigned by the principal for the little advance made is, that so much time is required for the lower but indispensable branches, as to leave insufficient time for the higher ones. I agree with him entirely in this respect. A great number of scholars have undoubtedly been admitted whose attainments were too low. It would be better for the High School, the grammar schools, and for themselves, if such scholars were left longer in the grammar schools. From this cause the High School is not much above the grade of the Boston grammar schools, though its teachers have taken every means in their power to elevate it. While they are compelled to teach scholars English grammar and arithmetic, they cannot teach them the classics and higher mathematics. The study of Latin has therefore been made quite a secondary affair, and is attended to only as the other business of the school will permit.

In the High Schools of other cities of the Commonwealth, the standard of scholarship, so far as I learn, is higher than ours. With regard to the attention paid to classical studies in them, I will mention that in the Salem High School, with an average attendance of 215, there are 190 students of Latin. In that school, the whole junior class is required to study it, and it is recommended to all those in the upper classes. From the Cambridge High School about seven enter college annually. It is desirable that our High School should approximate to these, and that those wishing a collegiate preparation may have it there.

THOMAS M. STETSON.

GEOMETRY AND ALGEBRA.

The Committee to whom was referred the examination of the classes in geometry and algebra in the High School, is obliged to acknowledge a want of proper attention to the duty.

The limited time he has been able to bestow on these classes would, however, lead him to pronounce them in a good condition as to training, though only fair as to progress.

The geometry classes were the most satisfactory, and may perhaps be excepted from the last remark. The progress of the pupil in this science, does not depend to so great an extent as in algebra, on his previous mathematical discipline; and the thoroughness which has always characterized the teaching of both these branches in this school, is here quite evident.

In algebra, the classes did not appear so well as the Board would have a right to expect, if any consideration were attached to the supposed previous drilling of the scholars in mathematical science.

But here your Committee would call attention to the remarks appended to his report of the results of the examination of the classes in arithmetic in the grammar schools. It must be plain, that if the time of the teachers in the High School, is to be taken up as now it is, in fixing in the minds of the pupils the rudimentary principles of mathematics in which they ought to have been firmly established in the grammar schools, there will be a corresponding deficiency in their progress in the higher branches.

It is therefore fair to attribute the present inferior condition of the algebra classes in no small degree to this evil, which, it is to be hoped, the proposed alteration in the arrangements in both Grammar and High Schools, will considerably abate.

As before stated, your Committee has been able to devote but a limited time to his examination here, and would not become him, even were it desirable, to enter upon a detailed criticism of the merits of particular classes, or of the character of their instruction; but he cannot omit the testimony to the earnest zeal and ability of the very worthy principal of this school, which a former personal experience has authorized, and which his later observation has not failed to strengthen.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ZOHETH S. DURFEE, Committee.

MORAL SCIENCE, HISTORY & FRENCH.

A general exercise in moral science occurs weekly at the High School, as also at each of the grammar schools. This is a department of education in which satisfactory results are peculiarly contingent upon the tact and enthusiasm of the instructor. Under judicious and energetic culture it cannot fail to yield very abundant and valuable fruits.

The examination in history suggests the remark that this study, in the use of existing text-books, severely tasks the skill and genius of the teacher. The scholars' impressions are apt to remain vague and indefinite. Little good is effected unless the salient points of each period are carefully distinguished, brought out in bold relief, and then urged with a very forcible pressure upon the memory, so as at once to discipline that faculty, and likewise replenish it with a durable store of important facts and principles.

The class in physiology did not by any means evince commendable proficiency.

The classes in French, during so much of the year as has been devoted to that study, have been under the instruction of Mr. A. C. Maggi. Their recitations indicated assiduous training by an accurate and accomplished teacher. The pronunciation was accurate, the grammatical forms had been faithfully mastered, and the scholars were rapidly acquiring colloquial fluency and elegance. This gentleman is entitled to cordial congratulation for having done so much thorough and skilful work in so short a time.

WHEELOCK CRAIG.

SCHOOL PROPERTY.

No new school-houses have been erected during the year, though the wants of the department in this particular are growing more and more urgent with the lapse of time. An appropriation was made more than a year ago for the erection of a new building for the accommodation of the Market Square school, and it was confidently expected by the Committee that the present season would witness the completion of the work. But, owing partly to the difficulty of obtaining a suitable lot, and partly to the financial embarrassments of the times, nothing has as yet been done towards the accomplishment of the design. The school has largely increased in size, and is but miserably provided for in its present quarters; and immediate action in relation to the erection of a new building for its accommodation is earnestly demanded.

Early in the year the attention of the Committee was called to the crowded state of the Grove Inter-medial and Primary School. The rooms in which the school is held were already filled to their utmost capacity, and there were still other scholars desiring to attend. Under these circumstances, a special committee was appointed by the Board to consider the matter and report what action was necessary in the premises. This committee made a report, setting forth in full the circumstances of the south schools, and concluding with the recommendation that a new building should be immediately erected for the accommodation of the Grove and Dartmouth street Grammar Schools, and that the apartments now occupied by these schools should be appropriated to the lower grades of schools in the same buildings. This report was accepted by the Board, and application was immediately made to the City Council for an appropriation to carry the recommendation of of the committee into effect. An order making an appropriation for the purchase of a lot for the purpose proposed, passed one branch of the City Government, but for the latter of the two reasons already mentioned as having prevented the erection of a building for the Market Square school, the matter was there suffered to rest, no further action having been taken in regard to the same. We cannot too strongly urge early action in relation to the new school-house in question, for without it we have not sufficient room for the scholars desiring school instruction in the southern part of the city.

The apartments occupied by the Parker street Grammar School have during the year been restored to their original form of a main room and class-rooms, the experiment of conducting the school in different departments, as these were arranged, having proved a failure.

Additional accommodations for scholars of the grammar grade in the northwest part of the city, will soon be needed, as the Parker street Grammar School is already crowded; and a new primary school is also required in the vicinity of Arnold street. No plan has, however, been matured in regard to these latter matters, and they are alluded to in this place mainly with the view of showing the necessity of immediate steps to erect the two school-houses which are indispensable, and thus avoiding a very large appropriation for such purposes in any one year.

Gentlemen of the City Council :

We are assembled to-day, in conformity with the requirements of the City Charter, for the purpose of organizing the government for the ensuing Municipal year. The dawn of a new year appears to be a fitting season for the commencement of our labors. To me, it comes laden with duties and responsibilities entirely new. By the suffrages of my fellow-citizens I have been elected to the office of Chief Magistrate of the City. I cannot refrain from tendering to them my grateful acknowledgments for this expression of their confidence. I enter upon the discharge of my official labors untrammelled by pledges, firmly resolved upon administering the government in a manner that shall seem best calculated to promote the welfare of all.

Having taken the oaths of office, thereby ratifying the wishes of our constituents, it should be our aim faithfully to perform the various duties assigned us, guided in our counsels only by motives tending to an honorable advancement of all that is desirable for the honor of our City and the well-being of those we represent.

To some these obligations are familiar, and the long acquaintance which they have had with the affairs of the City will facilitate the business and add to the efficiency of their labors. Others of us are to-day assuming new duties, and must in some measure rely upon the knowledge of our more experienced associates. A united desire to forward the best interests of the City, a conciliatory deference to the opinions of all, and harmonious action, will secure a good government, and are necessary for the proper discharge of our duty.

The first topic naturally calling our attention is the Finances of the City. The report of the Finance Committee which will be rendered to you at the close of the financial year will disclose all the facts and statistics necessary for your action. A few observations are all that is necessary from me at this time.

The subject of expenditures and taxation is one which never fails to interest the people. All have a direct and personal concern in the assessments which are imposed upon them. Every year that rolls by brings with it an outcry for economy and a desire for retrenchment. We all seek an economical government. No man wants an extravagant, foolish, or profligate expenditure of the public funds. Yet while we seek for economy we should guard against parsimony. While wastefulness and extravagance are to be avoided, we should shun a mean, narrow, illiberal policy which will as surely impoverish us. Let all our appropriations be judicious. Let us carefully weigh the necessity of every proposed expenditure, and when we have concluded, in a prudent and impartial exercise of judgment, that the outlay is demanded by a wise regard for the interests of the City, let us see to it that the City has a full value received for every farthing of the expenditure. In my opinion we should not only criticise the appropriations which are made, but scrupulously insist that a full and fair equivalent for the money expended be rendered to the city. We should not forget in making our appropriations the distinction between permanent and temporary improvements. Oftentimes the outlay of a few thousand dollars in addition to the present temporary accommodation which is demanded may prevent large expenditures in the future, and be really a matter of great economy to the city.

There is a matter in this connection which I think deserves your attention. It is the propriety of so changing the fiscal year that it shall conform to the municipal year. The advantages of such a change are apparent. Under the present arrangement the appropriations are made in the month of May. The City Council making them retires with December. As at present arranged the administration in power may so conduct the finances of the City as vastly to exceed during their term of office their own appropriations, and yet excite no attention from the people; they may leave the treasury entirely destitute of means to defray the necessary expenditures of the City occurring before the next annual appropriations are made; and they may compel an incoming government to bear a burden not its own. The City Council, yielding to a momentary pressure, or desirous of appearing economical, may vote the most trifling appropriations, and yet make the most extravagant expenditures. By making the municipal and fiscal years the same, then each administration can be held to a strict accountability for the money expended by it.

Your attention will doubtless be called, during the year, to the subject of our uncollected taxes. The amount now in arrears from this source is very large, being about $55,000. It is not for me to say how or why this arrears has occurred ; yet I deem it my duty to allude to the subject, and to point out the evils which must necessarily result from the continuance and increase of this large deficit in our revenue. No municipal government can be successfully carried on without means. Our streets, our school, our police, our fire and other departments, require the expenditure of money. Taxes are assessed upon the polls and property to meet the requirements of the public service. The appropriations are made first. The taxes are made to cover these appropriations. Now, it is evident if we spend the full amount of our appropriations and fail or neglect to collect the taxes there must be a deficiency, and a debt is created just equal to the amount of taxes uncollected. These uncollected taxes have been counted a part of the assets of the City. Are they merely nominal assets, or are they reliable ? If the latter, then they should be collected, and the City relieved from the payment of interest money. But if these taxes have no money value, but are merely nominal and cannot be collected, then why hand them to our successors with the additions we may make to the already enormous amount ? For one, I am not desirous of receiving such a legacy from former administrations, and have no wish to bequeath it to my successors. It is for you, gentlemen, to consider whether the Ordinance passed in 1854, which relieves the Collector of Taxes of all responsibility and duty when a Collector is elected for a subsequent and distinct year, is a judicious one. It will be for you to consider the proper measures to be adopted to secure the payment of these large arrearsages. You are aware that a recent decision of the Supreme Court has thrown a doubt over the legality of assessments throughout the Commonwealth. The attention of the Legislature will be called to this subject, and some action will doubtless be had in the premises. Whatever that action may be, no good citizen desirous of contributing his share towards the public expenses will seek to escape the payment of his tax, which has been fairly and equally assessed, simply because of some informality or technical omission.

The CITY DEBT during the past year has been changed in its form by calling in the notes against the City and issuing bonds with interest coupons attached. By this very excellent arrangement the entire permanent debt has been so adjusted that it will mature at fixed periods, and at such time of the year as the treasury will be in a condition to meet the demand. The debt can now be more conveniently managed than formerly, and the form of indebtedness is such as will enable the City to negotiate its loans at the lowest rates of interest. The present funded debt is $236,850. The first payment becomes due October 1, 1859, and the last payment October 1, 1876. The average annual expenditure necessary to meet the instalments of this debt, including principal and interest for the next twelve years, will be about $25,000. For the accurate and perfect arrangement of our city debt, we are indebted to our present City Treasurer.

It is hardly necessary for me to remind you of the importance of Public Education. New Bedford compares favorably in this respect with her sister cities of the Commonwealth. Her schools are highly creditable for the excellent manner in which they are conducted, and for the rapid advancement of the pupils. There certainly is no way in which a portion of the public funds can be expended so satisfactorily as by facilitating the intellectual culture of those who, unless aided, would remain in ignorance; as recipients of our bounty they are fitted to become in after life useful and efficient members of society and co-workers for the public good. Liberal expenditures for educational purposes contribute to the elevation of a community, and to strengthen the basis of our free institutions.

Our increasing population has created a want for more extended school accommodations. The western limits of our City have been rapidly extending, and in some portions the distance traveled by the younger children is inconveniently great. Some of the houses in the thickly settled portions of the City are old, ill ventilated, and quite inadequate to seat properly the great number of children necessarily attending them. It is for you to decide whether the proper time has arrived for action in this matter.

I concur in the remarks which my predecessors have frequently made concerning the propriety of a Superintendent for our public schools. This department has grown into one of great magnitude. The expenditures made for it are large, and we should seek to gain the greatest possible return for the money so liberally appropriated. In my opinion the employment of a suitable and competent person, who shall devote his whole time and attention to the oversight of the teachers and scholars, and who shall in a measure be responsible for the progress and prosperity of the schools, would be far preferable to the present system.

The Free Public Library, an important auxiliary to our institutions of learning, continues to hold a high place in the estimation of the citizens. It affords a pleasant and quiet retreat for intellectual culture and instruction, and furnishes the graduates of our public schools and all classes of the people the opportunities for mental improvement and study. The whole number of volumes now belonging to the library is upwards of 12,000. The number of books taken from the shelves during the past year has been 24,200, an excess of 2000 over the preceding year, a fact which speaks loudly of the increasing favor and appreciation in which the library is held. The number of new books added during the year has been about 500, and the average number taken out is 73 volumes per day.

You will be called upon to make provision for the poor. The law has wisely provided that the public bounty shall be extended to the needy and destitute in our midst. This is our duty, and it should be our pleasure. The amounts necessary to meet these claims you will learn from the Report of the Overseers of the Poor. Ample provision should be made for the Alms-House, and for the out-door relief of those whom misfortune has rendered dependent or helpless. We should be mindful that the great cessation of business in our midst, which has been general throughout the land, has weakened the arm of labor and stricken many homes with poverty.

Our Streets and Highways are generally in good condition. Repairs and improvements of a substantial nature have been made upon them during the last two years, and they are now in better order than formerly. Although large sums of money have been expended upon them, still as far as the work has been of a durable nature, the outlay has been judicious. No heavy expenditures are now absolutely necessary. It may be considered economical to continue the paving still further west upon Kempton Street, and it may be necessary to work Parker Street its entire length, in order to save the city from any liability which has been incurred in consequence of its acceptance. It would be well in my opinion to pave gradually our east-and-west streets. In many cases the dirt which is now every year put upon them finds its way upon the premises of the land-owners at the foot of the streets, and proves a private rather than a public advantage.

The Sewerage of the City appears to be sufficient for our present wants. None have been constructed during the past year. We have now a very complete system of sewers, extending from Bedford to Maxfield streets, inclusive, which space includes the most thickly settled portion of our territory.

In this connection let me add that I think it would be advisable that some systematic grade be adopted for the streets in the western part of the City, in order that hereafter, when it may be considered necessary to put sewers into those streets, it may be done with the least possible expense, and with far greater completeness than if an independent grade be established for each street when accepted.

The Clark's Point Road will require a small expense in constructing drains, to put it in perfect order. No definite arrangement has been made between the City and the United States Government in reference to the location of the fort upon the Point. I sincerely hope that no action of the general government will deprive the citizens of a drive so highly valued by them, and to construct which so much has been expended.

Again may we congratulate ourselves that we have escaped in so remarkable a degree severe losses by fire. One important reason for this is doubtless to be found in our efficient and ready Fire Department. The engines and apparatus are in excellent condition, and managed as they are by some of our most energetic and respected citizens, they constitute our strongest reliance from the dangers of conflagration. The lives and property of all are in a measure in the hands of our firemen. In their skill and activity and energy is our safety. We are grateful for their noble and zealous endeavors in our behalf in the protection of our dwellings and property. And while we appreciate their generous rivalry to excel each other, at the same time we ask of them that such useful and wholesome discipline be maintained as will secure at all times the quiet and good order of the City.

The security of the citizens, the preservation of peace and decorum, and the maintenance of law in the community, is eminently dependent upon the character and efficiency of the Police. Their duties in a City like this are arduous and perplexing. Life and property must be made secure. Vice and lawlessness must be restrained. Crime must be punished, and the laws executed. If the Police fail to redress every wrong and repress every crime, they ought not, if they earnestly and conscientiously strive to discharge their duty, to be censured or held accountable. In a community like this every man should consider it his duty to aid in the execution of the laws, not by censuring and finding fault with the omissions of the Police, but by aiding with his testimony and his co-operation in ferreting out and bringing to justice the violators of the laws. That the Police have maintained general good order cannot be doubted. This department requires active, impartial and efficient men, those who have firmness and determination, and who unite with a conscientious regard for duty a capacity and experience equal to its discharge.

I think the Day Police and Night Watch should be united under one head. The propriety of this, as it seems to me, is apparent. The labors of the two are similar. When one retires from duty the other should assume it. They should act in complete harmony with each other. They should be directed by one mind and acknowledge one head. I trust such changes will be made in the present system as will add to the efficiency of this department.

I have spoken of the character of the men needed in our Police. There is equal necessity for the employment of competent and trustworthy men upon the Night Watch. I am in favor of employing the best men that can be procured for this service, and of paying them such wages as will prove a fair compensation for their labor, and which will command all their time. The man who toils during the day is not fit to guard the City by night, and if the amount paid to him by the City is insufficient for his support, let his wages be increased rather than that his time be devoted to other labors during the day.

A part of our Police system, although not generally recognized as such, is our Volunteer Militia Companies in our midst. Deriving their existence and authority from the State Government, and not from any Municipal regulations, still the City has always aided them by furnishing suitable armories for their accommodation, and in return the City authorities have the right to call upon this strong arm to execute the law or to quell disorder or riot. The well-known character of those composing our volunteer companies is a guarantee of their good order and efficient and soldierly discipline.

The attention of the City Council has heretofore been called to the fact that our PUBLIC CEMETERIES are fast filling up. More ground is needed. It is only necessary for me to make the suggestion and to express the hope that at an early day a suitable lot may be selected and purchased for this purpose.

The PUBLIC COMMON continues to increase in attractiveness as each year adds to the growth and perfection of its trees. It is in a neat and cleanly condition. During the past year the west end has been used as a play-ground by the young men, and has furnished them with an admirable place for out-door exercise, where the streets are not encumbered to the annoyance of travelers nor the property of private individuals trespassed upon.

Gentlemen of the Board of Aldermen and of the Common Council:

I have presented to you, somewhat briefly it is true, the topics usually set forth in a Mayor's address, together with such suggestions as have seemed proper for me to make to you. As I become more familiar with the working of our Municipal Government, and better acquainted with the details of its business, I shall, if occasion requires, communicate with you further.

The duties of each department are well defined and I think clearly understood. Your peculiar province is legislative. The members of the Common Council, coming directly from the several Wards, are presumed to know and understand the wants and feelings of their immediate constituents. Intimately connected with the people of their respective localities, they can accurately represent them in the Government of the City. With the Common Council, as being the power nearest to the people, must originate all money bills or appropriations. The Board of Aldermen, although selected one from each Ward, are presumed in theory to represent no particular section, but the City at large, and to exercise a conservative check upon the action of the Council. The Mayor is simply the executive officer of the City, with no power to legislate, with no voice in the appropriations, with no vote even as to the policy of the government. Hence you see that the great responsibility rests with you and not with me. Yet as far as my official station calls for action, in whatever department of the City service, I shall not shrink from it, but aiming for the permanent good and advantage of the City, and not the mere popularity of to-day, I shall strive to discharge every duty.

In conclusion, let us devoutly express an aspiration that as the Ruler and Governor of all has so graciously blessed us in the past, for which we reverently render our homage of grateful thanks, so may He order our counsels and labors during the year now opening before us that they may redound to the honor and prosperity of our City and the happiness of all our people.

IN COMMITTEE,

CITY OF NEW BEDFORD, }
March 31, 1859. }

IN accordance with the 13th and 14th Sections, Chapter XXIV., of the City Ordinances, the Committee on Finance present for the consideration of the City Council the annexed statement of the receipts and expenditures for the financial year ending March 1, 1859.

The whole amount of receipts into the Treasury, including the balance on hand 3d mo. 1st, 1858, is four hundred and ten thousand three hundred and ninety-seven dollars and seventy-three cents, ($410,397.73); the expenditures amount to four hundred and three thousand three hundred and fifty-eight dollars and forty-eight cents, ($403,358.48); leaving a balance with the Treasurer of seven thousand and thirty-nine dollars and twenty-five cents, ($7,039.25).

The permanent City debt at this time is two hundred and thirty-six thousand eight hundred and fifty dollars ($236,850.00), in which amount is included a loan of six thousand five hundred dollars ($6,500.00), made to make up the balance of the expenditure on the Library Building, and the Merrimac School-house.

Under the operation of the Ordinance of June 4, 1858, bonds, with coupons or interest warrants attached, have been issued for the whole amount of the City permanent debt. Annexed will be found a table showing amount of each and the annual payments.

A temporary loan of fifty-eight thousand dollars ($58,000.00) has been made to meet the wants of the Treasury in advance of the payment of taxes.

Annexed will be found the Report of the Sub-Committee appointed to examine the accounts of the Treasurer and Collector and the City Clerk, and also the Report of the Sub-Committee appointed to examine into the condition of the property of the City, which is respectfully submitted.

REPORT
BOARD OF ENGINEERS.

To the Honorable Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council:

GENTLEMEN,—As the present municipal year has nearly expired, the Board of Engineers elected to office for this term, in conformity with Chapter XXI, Section 8, of the Revised Ordinances, present the following report of the state and condition of the Fire Department; also the number of fires and false alarms during the year, the causes of the same, with the losses and insurance as far as could be ascertained, with the names of the owners and occupants of the buildings destroyed or injured, and all other matters pertaining to the Department, supposed to be of interest to our citizens.

It gives us great pleasure to report that the Fire Department is in a good and efficient condition, each company having a full complement of members; and each apparatus in good working order. The various engine-houses are all in good condition, and have been kept neat and cleanly during the past year.

At the time the present Board came into office, the Young Mechanic Engine, No. 6, was at Messrs. Wm. Jeffers & Co.'s Manufactory, Pawtucket, R. I., having new works put into her. The Engine was returned to this city March 4, 1858, and the result on trial proving satisfactory to the Board, she was accepted. The expense for remodelling and the new works was about $1050. The works belonging to Engine No. 6, which were taken out of the box at the time it was remodelled, (by Wm. Jeffers & Co.,) remain at present on hand, most if not all of it in good order.

There has been purchased during the year fifteen hundred feet of new leading hose; one thousand feet of which was large size, for Engines Nos. 5 and 6; the remainder to replace hose which had become poor and unreliable.

The Department has been called out by fires and false alarms during the year seventy-nine times, of which forty-two for fires, thirty-seven for false alarms; out of this number fourteen of them have been out of the city.

The amount of loss by fires in the city, as nearly as can be ascertained, is $7400. Insurance on the same, $5893.

There has been an unusual number of false alarms the present year, which has been very annoying to the Fire Department; and we feel gratified to see that the present City Government has taken such means as will have a tendency to prevent these alarms occurring, and without doubt will be received with pleasure by the members of the Department, as well as a great saving in the wear and tear of the apparatus pertaining to the Department.

The pay for the firemen for the previous year amounted to $8,293.64.

In conclusion, we desire to express our thanks to the entire Department for their gentlemanly deportment, the promptness with which they have attended upon all alarms of fire, and to the faithful and efficient manner in which they have discharged their duties.

Per order of the Board.

R E P O R T.

THE Trustees of the Free Public Library, in accordance with the requirements of the Ordinance for its establishment, respectfully submit to the City Council their Seventh Annual Report.

It does not belong to Institutions like this to experience remarkable changes, and the monotonous routine of its operations does not enable the Trustees to impart to their annual report a variety of interest. The reports of preceding years have so forcibly presented the views of the Board relative to the advantages to be realized from a Free Public Library in our city, and have contained such full and accurate statements of its practical operations, as to render it unnecessary to dwell again upon these aspects of it.

In its ordinary administration and action, very little has occurred to distinguish the current year from the preceding years. From its first establishment it has been advancing with a steady progress, and a sound and healthy growth, and it is a source of great gratification to the Board that they can again most cordially commend it to the fostering care of those to whom are committed its material interests.

Its usefulness has, year by year, been extended, as its advantages have been more generally appreciated, and its present position is such as to attract to it the continued regard and the increased confidence of all our citizens.

Our city has won an honorable reputation by the interest it manifested in at once availing itself of the authority given by the Statute to establish a Free Public Library, and by the liberal provision it has thus far made to place it upon a permanent basis. We may take a reasonable pride in the beautiful building that has been erected for its accommodation, and in the number and value of the books which the yearly appropriation of the City Government has enabled the Trustees to add to the nucleus which the slow accumulations of many years had gathered under private patronage. Since the transfer of the "Social Library" to the city, the number of its volumes has been more than doubled, and its benefits, no longer limited to a few individuals, may now, greatly increased, be enjoyed by every household in our city.

While all reasonable retrenchment should be made, and all extravagances avoided, in everything affecting the financial interests of our city, it cannot be questioned that true economy requires a liberal provision for our Public Library, and we trust it will ever be a point of duty with the City Council to sustain in full vigor the healthy influences of an Institution whose benefits are so manifest and so universally conceded.

The sum appropriated for its "maintenance and support" is perhaps all that a somewhat strict interpretation of the Statute would allow, however inadequate it may seem to some who are so earnestly desirous of extending its benefits by a more liberal expenditure for rendering more complete the various departments of the Library.

Believing, as they do, that the Statute authorizing the establishment of Free Public Libraries in any town or city of our Commonwealth should impose no such restriction, but leave the amount to be expended for their support to the discretion of those most interested, the Trustees would respectfully suggest to the City Council the propriety of requesting the Legislature to remove the restriction from our city, as it has already from the city of Boston, and so place this on the same footing with all other matters requiring an appropriation of money.

It has ever been the earnest desire of the Board that our Library should meet the wants of all classes among us; that it should afford to the inquisitive member of either of the professions, to the curious student, the intelligent merchant, mechanic, or artist,—in short, to all of every age and of either sex, advantages which would otherwise be entirely inaccessible to them, in the investigation of the various subjects which interest them. The limited means placed at their command has enabled them but partially to realize their wish in this respect. A large proportion of the amount yearly appropriated by the City Government for the Library must go to meet the expenses indispensable to its proper maintenance, leaving but a small balance to be expended for its necessary increase. This the Trustees have endeavored to expend as judiciously as possible. With a portion of it they have kept the Reading-Rooms supplied with the more prominent literary, scientific, educational, and theological periodicals, chiefly of our own country. They would gladly have added to their list many other periodicals, in our own and foreign languages, which some of our citizens would doubtless desire to have access to, but to have done so with their limited means would have been giving undue prominence to this department of literature.

In the purchase of books they have had reference chiefly to the wants of the greatest number of readers in a community like our own. Their aim has been to get as many as possible of all the new publications of general interest, and of a suitable character, and so supply the more immediate wants of a Library established for the benefit of the people at large, and in what way they have fulfilled this delicate and difficult part of the duty assigned them, they would respectfully refer those competent to judge to the accessions made to the catalogue of the Library since it came into the possession of the city. They have been compelled, for the most part, to avoid works whose great value in a Library they have fully appreciated, and which, with surplus funds, they would, to a reasonable extent, eagerly have secured. With very few exceptions the books we now have are in our own language. The Lexicons of the ancient and of some modern languages, and a few works of this nature intended for occasional consultation, have been purchased; and the Trustees are only waiting for the means, which they hope some of our wealthy and liberal-minded citizens may be disposed, at no distant time, to place at their disposal, to enrich our Library with very many works in almost every department of knowledge in our own and other languages, which though less demanded are no less valuable, and which an Institution like ours should possess.

The importance of such an Institution in our city does not seem as yet to be practically felt by many, to whom we have looked, though thus far in vain, for some substantial evidence of their interest in it. With the exception of the Hon. George Howland's generous donation of his salary for the two years he held the office of Mayor, the Library has received from none of our citizens anything more than an occasional contribution of a few books or pamphlets, which, however, have been gratefully received, and are acknowledged in the yearly reports. It is hoped that other friends to the Library will thoughtfully consider its interests, and that many who have books in their houses, which have lost their interest to their own families, will cheerfully place them where their usefulness may be renewed, and their value be appreciated. It may be that in some families there are books, — perhaps rare and curious ones, — the mementos of former generations, which to a public Institution would be valuable acquisitions, and yet are lightly esteemed by their present owners. Are there not, too, some in our highly prospered city, who, preferring to be their own executors, and to enjoy the exquisite pleasure of doing good which may be witnessed in their own life-time, will, by an appropriation to the purposes of the Library of a small portion of the abundant means with which a kind Providence has blessed them, identify their names with this Institution, and secure a place in the grateful remembrance of future generations?

The Trustees regret that the standard of the reading community, so far as is indicated by the character of the books taken from the Library, has not become much elevated. A very large proportion of the books in most constant demand belongs to the department of light literature. They have, however, in their additions to this department, aimed to make such a selection as would tend to create a habit of reading where it did not before exist, hoping that such a habit once formed, would lead its possessors to seek works of a higher and more permanent value. They could wish that the young especially, might realize that life is too real, too earnest, too full of interesting and momentous realities, for them to waste the season of youth,—their seed-time of life,—in desultory reading having no definite aim but present amusement, and in looking at objects through the highly-colored and deceptive medium of fiction. They would express the earnest hope that parents and guardians will exercise a watchful supervision in this matter, over those who are allowed, through them, to enjoy the privileges of the Library.

Since the last report, the Catalogue, which had been for some time in preparation, has been completed, and made accessible to all. Few are aware of the great labor of preparing a really serviceable Catalogue, and the fidelity with which the Librarian has executed this part of the duty assigned him furnishes another evidence of his eminent fitness for the position he has so acceptably filled since the establishment of the Library. The Board feel that they have been peculiarly fortunate in securing the services of one whose habits and tastes have fitted him so admirably for the duties devolved upon him. The Catalogue is so arranged that even a child may readily find whether any book belongs to the Library, if he knows either its subject, author, or title. Several copies of this are always to be found upon the tables of the Library and Reading-Rooms, thus affording to every one who visits the Library the means of knowing its contents. It was supposed by the Trustees that almost every family in the city, any of whose members enjoyed the privileges of the Library, would feel a work of this kind to be indispensable to its profitable use; and to meet this want, and the circumstances of all, they caused a large number to be printed, and to be bound in a variety of ways, proportioning the price accordingly. It has now been more than six months since the Catalogues were ready for use, and less than fifty copies have thus far been disposed of by the Librarian.

It is with some degree of satisfaction that the Trustees can speak of the good order, quiet, and propriety, which have, with rare exceptions, been observed by the numerous visitors to the Library. They think, too, that in general the books circulated have been injured no more than should reasonably be expected, considering the frequency with which many of them are exchanged, and that the previous experience of many who use them has not been such as to lead them to attach a proper value to the books so freely placed at their disposal. Some of the books, however, exhibit evidence of careless or wilful mutilation, which in all cases of detection renders the taker accountable for the full value of the book, and liable to be deprived henceforth of the privileges of the Library.

It is to be regretted that the Reading-Room is so situated as not to be more directly under the watchful eye of the Librarian. As it is, any one can pass in and out at all hours when the rooms are accessible to the public, and an unprincipled person can easily mutilate or purloin any of the periodicals, with comparatively little prospect of detection by those connected with the Library. There have been a few cases of this gross and ungenerous abuse of the privileges here so freely afforded. The Board have a right to expect that those who enjoy "without money and without price," advantages hitherto inaccessible to them will comply with the few necessary regulations, for the due observance of which they have with their own signatures pledged their integrity. Should the Trustees be compelled to resort to stringent measures of detection, and to a public exposure of any whose moral sense is so blunted as to allow of their offending thus in the future, they would feel that the offence would be a sufficient justification of their action.

| Leaving a balance of                                                               | $19.50        |

They would also submit the following, as the probable expenses in "maintaining" the Library during the ensuing year, in which is included nothing for its "increase."

CITY MARSHAL'S OFFICE, }
New Bedford, December 20, 1858. }

To His Honor the Mayor, and City Council:

GENTLEMEN,—I have the honor to submit to your honorable body the following report of the labors and doings of the Police Department for the municipal year commencing Jan. 1, 1858, and ending Dec. 20, 1858; and also my financial account with the city, commencing March 12, 1858, and ending Dec. 20, 1858.

The Police Department of the city of New Bedford consists of a Marshal and six Assistant Marshals, which have been divided into three classes, viz.:—

District No. 1. All that portion of the city lying between Middle and Bush streets.

District No. 2. All that portion of the city lying south of Bush street.

District No. 3. All that portion of the city lying north of Middle street.

Districts Nos. 1 and 2 have each two officers for duty, while District No. 3 has only one, it being necessary to have one officer in constant attendance at the Central Station, to answer the numerous calls during the day of those who are in immediate want of an officer.

I have made it a rule to have each and all of my officers report themselves to me at the Central Station, at 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  A. M., 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ , 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ , and 9 $\frac{1}{4}$  o'clock P. M., of each and every day.

I have been in the practice daily of travelling through the different portions of the city, in accordance with the requirements of the City By-Laws and Ordinances, and would here say, that the Police have been on duty Sundays and Sunday evenings the same as other days, which was not formerly the case, making the average time of thirteen hours out of each twenty-four hours of the day in which they have done duty.

I have endeavored to do my duty according to the best instructions and information I could obtain, and have delivered the same to those associated with me. If I have failed in the performance of my duty, it has been an error of the head and not of the heart.

Annexed, I submit to you a list of our doings for the past year.

There have been arrested and committed to the Lock-up the present year, eleven hundred and twenty-seven persons, for various crimes, as shown in the following table:—

In addition to the above there have been during the past year two hundred and sixty-seven applications at the office for lodging. These have been mostly travellers in search of employment; several have been alien paupers, sent by the authorities of other places to relieve themselves of the burden; such persons and all others have been provided with lodgings and food when required.

The arrests for drunkenness have been quite numerous, but not so large as in some previous years; yet very many have been helped to their homes; and my directions to the police have been in all cases where intoxicated persons could get to their homes by their own efforts or the assistance of their friends, and no injury to their families or to the public would be the result of such a course; to let them pass, and I believe no injustice has resulted to the public from such a course. I believe that justice in all cases should be done, yet justice should be tempered with mercy; and that a police officer, while in the discharge of duty, should treat prisoners under his charge with all the kindness the circumstances will admit of, and that such a course would tend much to reform those unfortunate persons who have given way to an appetite for the intoxicating cup.

The city has been very free from infectious diseases during the year. There have been but two cases of varioloid reported, one of which proved fatal.

I herewith present my financial account with the city, from March 12, 1858, to Dec. 20, 1858. Amounts received from officers for cases settled in Police Court, as follows:—

Leaving a balance in my hands of ninety-four dollars three cents ($94.03).

It has been necessary in a number of cases to employ a Special Police. The expense attendant on these occasions for the year has not been as large as supposed by many who were not conversant with the matter. On examination I find the whole cost to the city for the present year to be but three hundred sixty-five dollars fifty-six cents.

The important duties which the Police are called upon to perform,—the great interests confided to their care,—their varied and difficult labors,—the influence which their example and conduct exert in the community,—all render it most manifest to every reflecting mind, that no man should be appointed to the discharge of those duties and labors whose moral character is not above reproach, and whose integrity is not beyond suspicion.

The condition of the department has at no time since its organization been more prosperous, nor its system of operations better calculated to accomplish the purpose for which it was established. The character of the men,—the present system of discipline,—the union of feeling and harmony of action, which is so essential to its interests,—the general confidence reposed by the community,—the respect generally entertained by the Police for their superior officers of various ranks,—fully justify this remark. Improvements may undoubtedly be made. To secure the public confidence in the Police should be one great object, and to that end an ever-watchful care of its condition and of the conduct of its members is necessary; and every member should feel that upon himself depends his permanency in the department, more than upon any change in the administration or the domination of political parties.

The needy condition of the applicant for office is often urged as a substitute for qualifications. It should be remembered that no man is qualified for the discharge of the duties of the office because he is not absolutely destitute and poor; and no man is disqualified because he is poor and needy.

Since it is an admitted fact that intemperance is the direct origin of more poverty, more crime, and consequent suffering, than all other causes combined, it is the dictate of humanity for the philanthropist and statesman to seek out and apply, as far as possible, the most effectual practicable remedies for the suppression and control of so great an evil.

After years of experience in unsuccessful attempts to enforce the present prohibitory liquor law, commonly called the Maine law, in this community, which, like all other laws not sanctioned by public opinion, has failed to meet the objects of its enactment, it would seem that wisdom and foresight might invent such legislative acts as would regulate and control more effectually the traffic in intoxicating drinks, and diminish the number of dram-shops, and check the tide of intemperance, which is gaining ground with slow but fearful progress.

It has recently been publicly stated, that in regard to intemperance, "the evils of the city are completely in the hands of the Police." But it should not be forgotten that the duties of the Police are purely ministerial and executive. It is not for them to say that parties engaged in the traffic in intoxicating drinks are guilty of violating the law, and to inflict punishment. The fact of guilt must be established by the verdict of the jury, and on the Court devolves the duty of saying what punishment must be inflicted.

Could the eloquence of the pulpit or the forum mould and form public opinion in this community in favor of the present prohibitory law, the jury-box might be the medium through which the law might be enforced by the officers of the law.

There must be a change in the law, or a change in public opinion respecting it. Clergymen and others, in all sincerity, viewing the subject from their "stand-point," believe the law may be easily enforced; while jurors, who have a nearer view, see obstacles which neither their reason or their oaths enable them to overcome; nor has the influence of the pulpit or the press, or both combined, been sufficiently powerful to remove these obstacles. Any law which is permitted to remain on the statute-book not sanctioned by public opinion, works an injury to the State, and begets a disregard for the most salutary enactments.

Among the most important objects of government is a wise and judicious execution of the laws. The duty of executing them under a municipal government falls mainly on the Police, and hence the importance of selecting those who are the best qualified for a proper, discreet and judicious discharge of those duties.

I would not close my report without tendering to His Honor the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen my sincere thanks for the respect and kind feelings that have always been manifested towards me during the present municipal year; and I would also say, that my Assistant Marshals have co-operated with me as a general thing during the year, and in particular my First Assistant by his constant and ever ready desire to assist me in the discharge of my various duties.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

REPORT.

Our Public Schools have not experienced any marked change in their condition, since the presentation of the last Annual School Report. A fair degree of advancement it is believed has been made, but from the standing which our schools have now generally attained, improvement must necessarily be gradual, and it is not to be expected that they will ordinarily exhibit within the period of a single year, any very striking indications of progress. With but few exceptions, the same teachers who were connected with the schools last year are still retained in the service, and for the most part in the same positions which they then occupied; and if we cannot congratulate ourselves upon any great improvement, we have at least the assurance that our schools have not suffered the loss which usually results from frequently changing their instructors. These changes have been gradually diminishing in number for some time past, owing in part to the fact that comparatively few of the teachers have resigned their positions, but more especially to the new arrangement of teachers' salaries, which was introduced some two or three years ago, and which is still existing. Under this arrangement, there is now so little difference in the compensation of the assistants in the various grades of schools, that a change on that account is scarcely desirable; and thus the principal motive which influenced the teachers in the lower grades to seek to be transferred to the higher, has been removed. A teacher of real excellence, who has long been connected with the same school, has a very great advantage over one, who though equally well qualified in others respects, has just entered upon the discharge of the duties of a new position. For in order to the best success in the management and instruction of scholars, the character and disposition of each individual should be understood. The former possesses this knowledge, and can therefore so direct his efforts as to render them most effective for the accomplishment of the end desired. The latter has the same knowledge to acquire, and until he has obtained it, his labors as a teacher will be more or less misdirected and consequently lost. A wise regard for the continued prosperity of each school, would therefore seem to require that all changes of teachers that are not really called for, should be avoided.

It has been suggested as a means of still further improving the condition of our schools, that either under the management and direction of the Committee, or otherwise, all the teachers in the service should at regular intervals be required to come together, for the purpose of discussing with one another the various topics connected with the duties of their profession, and for such other appropriate exercises similar to those practiced in Teachers' Institutes and in Normal Schools, as might be found serviceable. It is believed that such meetings might, if properly conducted, be instrumental in awakening among the teachers generally a more lively interest in their occupation, and that the stimulus thus received might in various ways be advantageous both to themselves and their scholars. These meetings might from time to time be made occasions for examinations by the Committee, and thus might furnish additional, and, in some instances, quite needful motives for the formation of studious habits on the part of the teachers, to the end not only that they might preserve fresh in mind the principles of the various branches of which they are required to possess a satisfactory knowledge, but that they might thereby be induced to go on to higher attainments. We fear that it not unfrequently happens that teachers after having passed an examination, and received an appointment, cease to make any further efforts for additional knowledge and culture. It is perhaps needless to add, that such is not the true road to eminence either in this or in any other profession. It will be for the incoming Board to determine whether the benefits likely to result, may not render it expedient to institute teachers' meetings, somewhat upon the plan above proposed.

As the agitation of the question of the appointment of a General Superintendent of our schools has of late to some extent been renewed, outside of the School Board, it may not be inappropriate to introduce a few remarks upon the subject in this place, for the purpose of again calling general attention to the matter. The question was quite fully discussed some three or four years since both in the School Board and in the community at large; the result of which was that though two successive School Boards concurred in recommending the creation of such an office, the City Council did not deem it advisable to carry the recommendation into effect. The principal argument then advanced against the appointment of such an officer was that the provisions of the statute in relation to the subject, considered with reference to the peculiar character of our population, were such, there was just reason for apprehending, that under ordinary circumstances almost the sole care and management of all departments of the school service would devolve upon the proposed Superintendent; that on this account good business capacity is a qualification almost as indispensable in the incumbent, as good scholarship; and that in order to secure the services of an individual possessing the requisite qualifications, a larger compensation would be necessary than the City would be disposed to allow. This argument has all the force at the present time, that it had when it was urged on the former occasion. The statute authorizing the appointment of a Superintendent provides, that on the creation of that office, the School Committee shall receive no compensation for their services, unless the City Council shall otherwise order; and it is not to be supposed that under such circumstances, salaries would be paid both to the Committee and the Superintendent. The consequence most probably would be, that the School Committee would become an advisory, rather than an active working body. For our City contains comparatively few literary men of leisure. Members of the School Board are therefore necessarily chosen from the ranks of those whose ordinary avocations require the greater portion of their time, and whose circumstances are such that during the business hours of the day they cannot afford to render a great amount of gratuitous service even for the promotion of so good a cause as that of common school education. Notwithstanding these objections, however, it is unquestionably true, that the services of such an officer as the one in question are very much needed. Our schools are increasing in number, and the labor required for their proper care and supervision is yearly becoming more arduous and burdensome. It is useless to deny the fact, that some plan by which greater efficiency can be introduced into the management of this department, ought to be adopted. The schools are not visited so frequently, nor examined so often and so thoroughly as would be for their advantage. Neither are the examinations so complete and systematic as would be the case if they were conducted by a competent person whose time was wholly given to this and kindred duties. Nor is there, under the present system, that intimate acquaintance readily made with the teachers, which is a prerequisite to the formation of correct opinions respecting their ability as managers and instructors. Other particulars might be mentioned, if necessary, wherein the employment of a Superintendent would probably produce a desirable change. From the foregoing remarks it may be inferred that, in our view, success or failure would be likely to result from the appointment of a Superintendent, according as the person selected should happen to be well or ill adapted to the situation, the peculiar qualifications required in consequence of the circumstances before mentioned, being considered. If the office could be filled by a man of ability, tact and sound judgment, one equal to every probable emergency of the position, the benefits would doubtless far exceed the disadvantages which might result. But if, on the contrary, the individual chosen should be deficient in any essential qualification, evil rather than good may reasonably be expected to follow. If therefore the City Government should be disposed to establish the office, we would respectfully urge that it be done upon a liberal basis, so that the Committee may have it in their power to fill it with a person capable of meeting all the requirements of the situation.

The crowded state of several of the school-houses, during the early part of the year, seeming imperatively to call for further school accommodations, the Committee soon after their organization, made two successive applications to the City Government for appropriations for that purpose. These requests not having been granted, in consequence in part of the great difference in opinion prevailing as to what was best to be done, a Sub-Committee was appointed by the Board for the purpose of considering the whole subject, and reporting some general plan for the erection of new buildings for the future, designed when perfected to furnish the best possible facilities, which circumstances would admit, for the accommodation and instruction of the scholars, at the least expense to the City. This Committee, after due inquiry, recommended the gradual union of the Grammar and Intermedial grades in the City Proper, and the erection of three or more school houses of suitable capacity to meet the wants of the united grades, of which the first, to be located in the southerly part of the City, where the need was most urgent, should be at once constructed, to be followed in succeeding years by others in the central and northerly sections, till the plan should be fully carried into effect. The report of this committee was adopted by the Board, and the City Government again applied to, for the necessary means for putting the plan into practical operation. But neither the scheme proposed, nor a modification of the same, making it apply to the Grammar Schools alone, was favorably received, and the result is that no school house of any description has been built during the year. It is to be regretted that nothing has been done to meet the wants of the department in this regard, for the consequence is that the larger part of the school-houses are at the present time filled to repletion, to the great discomfort and serious injury, in point of health, of all who are compelled to be their inmates. The evil is a great one, and demands a remedy, and on sanatory if on no other grounds, we are under obligations to provide for its removal. The subject deserves, and we trust that it will receive, the early attention of the incoming municipal administration.

The various grades of schools have, as last year, been under the immediate supervision of Sub-Committees, who have, in the higher grades, apportioned the different studies pursued, among the several members, each having the care of one or more branches, to which his attention has been particularly devoted during the year. This arrangement accounts for the form in which this report appears, each member reporting with reference to the special subject or subjects which he has had in charge.

Immediately succeeding is the usual schedule of the schools and their teachers, with the average and percentage of attendance in each school, for the year ending with the Fall term.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

There are twelve Primary Schools in the City, which receive children from four to nine years of age. In the studies in these schools, there is little to tax or strain the minds of the children. Great progress in knowledge, is not to be expected or desired. The teacher succeeds best, who makes her school attractive. The discipline should be of the mildest character consistent with a reasonable degree of order.

The Committee are satisfied with results, so long as a sufficient number are found qualified at stated periods for promotion to the Intermedial Schools.

HILL PRIMARY SCHOOL.—This school is under the charge of the same teachers as last year. Everything about the school-room, continues to impress the visitor with the truth that the discipline of the school is of the most mild and cheerful character. The result of the several examinations the past year, have been satisfactory.

MERRIMAC STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—The resignation of Miss Staples at the close of the Summer term, was accepted, and Miss Caroline A. Hurd appointed in her place. The new Principal has hardly had time enough to overcome the disadvantage a school labors under by a change of teachers; much has yet to be accomplished to place this school among the best of its grade.

PARKER STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—In regard to the reading, the remarks in the last Report still hold good. The other exercises of the school were equally good. Some exercises in arithmetic were of a superior quality.

CEDAR STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—There has been considerable improvement in this school the past year. The Committee are satisfied that much, and perhaps all that was practicable has been done by its teachers to place this school among the first of its class. The Committee recommend the continuance of the same efforts.

MAXFIELD STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—From the several examinations and the quarterly report, the Committee are of opinion that this school fully sustains its previous good character. If the school is not superior to any other of its grade, it is not for want of exertion and fidelity in its teachers. At the death of Miss Mary P. Simmons, Second Assistant, Miss Mira C. Hatch was appointed to that office; but the Committee would feel that they had not discharged their duty, had they omitted their testimony to the loss the school sustained in being deprived of the gentle and pious teachings of this excellent young lady. Her associates and scholars will long remember her ministrations among them.

CHARLES STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—This school is nearly the largest in the city; and the percentage of attendance, which for some reason is at the lowest figure may degree, account for the school not being all it could be wished by the Committee. The illness of the First Assistant accounts in part for the want of progress of the school.

WILLIAM STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—The several teachers in this school have large classes in the First-Class Reading Book; and the several examinations bear testimony to the thorough manner of the teaching. The Committee consider this an excellent school.

BUSH STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—This school, formerly an Infant School, still partakes of that character, nearly one-third of the scholars being under five years of age. Notwithstanding the crowded state of the school, having the largest attendance of any Primary School in the City, it still sustains its former good standing.

GRIFFIN STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—This still continues to be a good and pleasant school. Some parts of the year the school has numbered one hundred and fourteen scholars,—altogether too many for such accommodations.

SIXTH STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—This school still sustains the good character awarded to it in last year's Annual Report.

GROVE PRIMARY SCHOOL.—This school has recently been organized as a Primary School, Miss Mary J. Chase being appointed Principal, and Miss Lydia A. Post, Assistant. The Committee are satisfied that it is doing well under the present arrangement.

DARTMOUTH STREET PRIMARY SCHOOL.—The last Annual Report represented this school as having risen from one of the poorest to one of the best in the City. From the last quarterly report and the result of the late examination, the Committee are prepared to say that the Principal has more scholars who are good readers in the First Class Reading Book than there are in any other school of its size, and that the Assistant has been equally diligent and successful in her part of the duties assigned her.

In behalf of the Primary Committee.

INTERMEDIAL SCHOOLS.

These schools have been examined by the members of the Committee to whom this duty was assigned, and the following brief notices are a summary of their several reports:—

HILL SCHOOL.—The general appearance of this school is highly to be commended. Good order is maintained. Arithmetic, both written and mental, is taught with skill and success. In Reading the classes are inferior; in Spelling, very poor. In Geography the examination gave much satisfaction.

PARKER STREET.—The discipline of this school is mild, yet efficient. The reading of the first class was wanting in vivacity and force, that of the others was better. The Spelling in the lower classes was good. In Geography there was generally a want of promptness. In Arithmetic, especially in written, there has been a good degree of proficiency. It is but simple justice to the teachers to state that on account of the crowded state of one of the Primary Schools, a large number were received during the year who were far from being duly qualified.

MAXFIELD STREET.—This is one of the best schools of the grade. A favorable mention is deserved by the classes in Geography. Their Reading is excellent; and their examination in Arithmetic was specially worthy of commendation.

KEMPTON STREET.—This school, though it still falls below many of the grade, exhibits marked improvement. The Examining Committee are unanimous and unhesitating in expressing their confidence in the management of it. Some of the pupils show as good training and as encouraging progress, as any in other schools. But there is an unusually large number who manifest a disheartening indifference in their studies, with little susceptibility to influences designed to arouse and encourage them. The evils of irregular attendance on the part of a portion of the pupils, are specially apparent here, and a few are doing much to hinder the progress of others, as well as their own.

CHARLES STREET.—The good reputation of former years is well maintained and fairly earned. The reports of examinations speak with particular commendation of the promptness of the pupils in Geography, the excellence of the Reading, in two classes, and the clearness evinced—with two or three exceptions—by the first class in Arithmetic.

WILLIAM STREET.—This school, in most respects, is unsurpassed by any of the grade. The instruction is most thorough and successful. The Reading, for distinct articulation and correct emphasis, is worthy of special praise. The drill in Arithmetic cannot fail to excite the admiration of every visitor.

BUSH STREET.—The crowded state of this school has greatly burdened the teachers, and hindered their success. In a room designed for seventy scholars, there have been crowded nearly ninety, and a part of the time, nearly one hundred. The Committee believe that the Instructors have labored earnestly to comply with the demands thus unreasonably made upon them, but the discipline of the school has suffered, and the classes, though passing a fair examination, have not reached the standard of the previous year.

SIXTH STREET.—The attendance here has been greatly diminished and also irregular during a part of the year on account of prevailing illness. Making allowance for this, the school maintains its rank as one of the best. For order, it is a model. The classes in Reading, Arithmetic, and Geography appeared well. The Spelling was not so good.

DARTMOUTH STREET.—This, which still remains the smallest school, is unanimously reported as excellent. In Arithmetic the examination would probably have been more satisfactory if the classes had not advanced so far. In Reading and Geography, they appeared well. The general good management which is ordinarily apparent here, is entitled to particular attention.

GROVE.—In the spring term the Principal was absent for several weeks on account of illness, and at the close of it, resigned. Mrs. Jane C. Thompson, previously an Assistant in the Parker Street Grammar School, was appointed her successor. For a time the school unavoidably suffered. It has since, however, been subjected to an energetic and efficient discipline, and, although at the examination it fell behind the others, it may be reasonably hoped that it will soon attain a better relative position. For the Committee,

AND TRUSTEES OF THE BOARD OF COMMONS, T. STOWE.

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

At the beginning of the municipal year, the examination in the various studies of these schools was assigned as follows: Geography and Algebra to Mr. Gleason; History and Physiology to Dr. Swasey; Reading and Spelling to Mr. Stetson; Grammar to Mr. Rodman; Moral Science to Mr. Craig; and Arithmetic to Mr. Barney: and each gentleman was to be responsible for the examination of classes in the study allotted to him during the year. All of these gentlemen have made such examinations as they deemed proper, and their reports are herewith submitted.

The schools have been under good discipline and order for the past year; the teachers have manifested much interest in the welfare of the scholars, and have labored with great success, which is very gratifying. We have a fine corps of teachers, and they are much interested in their profession; and I believe the Board has a strong desire to maintain them in the faithful and impartial discharge of the responsible duties of that calling.

ARITHMETIC.

Near the end of the Spring term I made a thorough examination in all the Grammar Schools in Arithmetic, and was much pleased with their condition. Other examinations were made from time to time, sufficiently to enable me to judge of the progress made in each school.

Towards the close of the Fall term, another full and thorough examination was made in these schools; and I have great pleasure in saying that there has been a continued improvement throughout the year in this study in all the schools.

From the annual examination, I classify and arrange the schools in this branch, as follows:—

|                        |        |                          |        |
|------------------------|--------|--------------------------|--------|
| Bush Street Girls',    | No. 1. | Dartmouth Street Girls', | No. 5. |
| Charles Street Girls', | No. 2. | Middle Street,           | No. 6. |
| Parker Street,         | No. 3. | Bush Street Boys',       | No. 7. |
| Grove,                 | No. 4. |                          |        |

From the minutes I made at this examination, I submit the percentage of correct answers made by the classes in these schools under the Principal and First Assistant:—

|                        |                               |     |
|------------------------|-------------------------------|-----|
| Bush Street Girls',    | Miss Robinson's first class,  | 87  |
| " " "                  | Miss Cushman's first class,   | 90  |
| Charles Street Girls', | Miss Burr's first class,      | 85½ |
| " " "                  | Miss Cornish's first class,   | 83  |
| Parker Street,         | Mr. Hervey's first class,     | 84  |
| " " "                  | Miss Gardner's first class,   | 80  |
| Grove School,          | Mr. Cornish's first class,    | 84  |
| " " "                  | Miss Tobey's first class,     | 79  |
| Dartmouth Street,      | Miss Bonney's first class,    | 83  |
| " " "                  | Miss Bonney's second class,   | 77  |
| Middle Street,         | Mr. Barrell's first class,    | 82  |
| " " "                  | Miss Howard's first class,    | 75  |
| " " "                  | Miss Burdon's first class,    | 74  |
| Bush Street Boys's,    | Mr. Hutchinson's first class, | 74½ |
| " " "                  | Miss Morton's first class,    | 71  |
| " " "                  | Miss Sanford's first class,   | 78  |

The Bush Street Girls' School, as will be seen by this schedule, bears the best examination of any of the schools. I cannot let the opportunity pass without speaking in high terms of the efficiency of Miss Robinson and Miss Cushman.

The Charles Street School has made excellent progress under the instruction of Miss Burr, and the scholars of the school and the Board of the School Committee may well be pleased if the present teacher shall prove as efficient as Miss Burr, who resigned the Principalship of the school at the end of the Fall term.

The several Boys' Schools maintain nearly the same rank, the difference not exceeding ten per cent. All the schools have done well.

I ask the attention of the Board to the reports of my associates, herewith submitted, and I recommend their many valuable suggestions to the attention of the teachers and the new Board of the School Committee.

ED. L. BARNEY,

Chairman of the Grammar Committee.

GEOGRAPHY AND ALGEBRA.

The Sub-Committee to whom was referred the examination of the Grammar Schools in Geography and Algebra respectfully submits the following Report:

In Geography there have been three examinations during the year, viz.: at the close of the Spring, Summer, and Fall terms.

At the close of the Spring term the examination was of a varied character, the object being to obtain an impression of the general rather than the real or relative condition of classes of the same grade in the different schools. The Principal's classes had completed their text-book,—Cornell's Intermediate Geography,—and their examination, substantially the same, was extended through a range of topics designed to call out what information they possessed of the different quarters of the globe. A noticeable difference exists in the attainments of classes of the same grade in different schools, owing in part, we believe, to two causes, classification and the method of teaching Geography. Most of the Grammar Schools are so classified that the pupils in the first class in one study are in the first class in all of their studies. The same is true of all of the other classes. This plan is more or less carried out in all except the Bush Street Girls' School, where more reference is had, in arranging classes, to the capacity and taste of each pupil for the different studies. Although the former may be more convenient, yet the latter must be regarded as the true method of classification. Much diversity exists in the methods of teaching this subject in the different schools, particularly among the lower classes. Some are confined almost exclusively to map questions and the drawing of outline maps; while others learn the entire text, with but little exercise upon "map drawing." In the Charles Street, the exercise consists in repeating in concert the names of all objects to be learned upon the Maps, together with the entire descriptive matter. This method, unless combined with careful study, minute examination of all objects, and much individual teaching, results in the memorizing of names, with but an imperfect idea of the true position and relative situation of the objects themselves. Occasional concert recitations in this and other departments of study afford a pleasing variety, and when skilfully combined with thorough individual drilling, form the best possible system of instruction.

No detailed account of this or the succeeding examination was thought necessary, as the result of the Fall examination is presented in tabular view, which not only gives the condition of the classes at the last examination, but is a fair representation for the year. At the close of the Fall term a thorough examination of the first class in each room was made in reference to a tabular statement of the condition of each class of the same grade in the different schools. Four was adopted as the standard of a perfect recitation, and the credits given to each pupil's replies are in conformity to this standard. The following table shows the number present examined, and the percentage of merit, of each class, arranged in the order of merit of the Principal's classes:—

| Names of Schools.                       |                   | No. present. | Per ct. of merit. |
|-----------------------------------------|-------------------|--------------|-------------------|
| Bush Street Girls',                     | Principal,        | 28           | 83.4              |
|                                         | First Assistant,  | 22           | 61.8              |
|                                         | Second Assistant, | 21           | 50                |
| Dartmouth Street,Bush Street Boys', | Principal,        | 13           | 68.7              |
|                                         | Principal,        | 20           | 65.7              |
|                                         | First Assistant,  | 12           | 57                |
| Grove,                                  | Second Assistant, | 12           | 56                |
|                                         | Principal,        | 14           | 64.7              |
|                                         | First Assistant,  | 10           | 45.8              |
| Parker Street,                          | Second Assistant, | 13           | 47.7              |
|                                         | Principal,        | 14           | 62.9              |
|                                         | First Assistant,  | 22           | 52.6              |
| Charles Street,                         | Second Assistant, | 15           | 51.2              |
|                                         | Third Assistant,  | 10           | 33.2              |
|                                         | Principal,        | 32           | 57                |
| Middle Street,                          | First Assistant,  | 28           | 47                |
|                                         | Second Assistant, | 21           | 50                |
|                                         | Principal,        | 19           | 52.6              |
|                                         | First Assistant,  | 11           | 41.2              |
|                                         | Second Assistant, | 19           | 43.5              |
|                                         | Third Assistant,  | 21           | 34.6              |

It will be seen that the schools composed of girls lead in this study, with the exception of Charles Street, which ranks fifth, owing, we believe, to the method of teaching. The low percentage of merit obtained by many of the classes was occasioned by the imperfect exercise of a few in each, which reduced materially the aggregate merit of the whole. Instances of excellence in the attainments of the pupils, and seeming defects in teaching, might be pointed out, did we not deem it better to correct imperfections in friendly conversation with the deficient, rather than through the medium of a public report. As a whole, we regard the schools in good condition. Geography is an attractive study to children; and in some instances so great was the interest in this study, that the exercise was extended beyond the ordinary limits at the urgent request of the pupils. More might be accomplished in this study with a different text book, the one now in use being a meagre outline, and not at all suitable for the higher classes. We urgently recommend for them one containing more descriptive matter,—treating more of the physical features of the surface of the earth.

ALGEBRA.

This department of study was introduced into all of the Grammar Schools, except the Middle Street School, at the beginning of the Spring term, and was confined to the Principal's classes in each, with the exception of the Bush Street Girls', where the exercise was extended to the highest class of the First Assistant. The text book used is Tower's Intellectual Algebra. The first examination, at the end of the Spring term, was an oral exercise upon such parts of their book as each class respectively had been over, each pupil being required to solve the problems in accordance with the principles developed in the successive sections. In the various schools the classes had made different degrees of progress, none having advanced beyond the one hundredth page. Although but one term had been devoted to this study, still the power of analytic reason exhibited by many of the pupils gave evidence of careful study and faithful teaching. It is not our purpose to notice the attainment of each class in detail, but in this connection it is proper to speak of the Assistant's class in Bush Street Girls', as no reference hereafter will be made to it. It had advanced to the sixty-fifth page, and although third in rank of classification, their exercise would have been creditable to older scholars.

At the close of the Fall term the examination was conducted with printed questions, and was confined to the Principal's first. This method, although it has objections, affords the means of an accurate comparison of the different classes, and measures with tolerable certainty the attainment of each. Six problems, selected from their text book, were arranged upon sheets, with appropriate spaces for the work of each solution; and by means of Algebraic symbols, each pupil was required to express in written form, similar reasoning required in an oral analysis of each example. The result of this examination is shown in the following table, which gives the number of pupils in each class and the percentage of correct work:—

| School.             | No. present. | Per cent of correct work. |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------|
| Bush Street Girls', | 13           | 85.6                      |
| Dartmouth Street,   | 10           | 61.2                      |
| Charles Street,     | 18           | 57.8                      |
| Parker Street,      | 14           | 54.7                      |
| Grove,              | 10           | 48.1                      |
| Bush Street Boys',  | 18           | 44.2                      |
| Middle Street,      | 13           | 39.7                      |

The schools composed wholly of girls lead in this; and we deem it not inappropriate that reference should be made to the excellence of uniformity in the exercise of the girls in the Bush and in Dartmouth Street Schools. Six pupils in the Bush Street class presented perfect work, and none obtained less than fifty per cent. The uniformity in the Dartmouth Street class is even greater, eighty-three being the highest and fifty per cent the lowest merit respectively, although the aggregate of this class is much less, as already shown. The members of the classes in the other schools show greater inequality in their work, ranging from one hundred per cent to zero. This we regard in part owing to causes to which reference has already been made. We ought to remark that the examination of the Grove and Dartmouth Street schools was made on Saturday, and it is more than probable, particularly with the Grove class, that they did not work with that hearty good-will which might have characterized their efforts on their regular session days. The Middle Street class in rank is low. It did not commence so soon as the others, and, with the school, it has suffered in consequence of the absence of the Principal.

In reviewing the labor of the past year, we feel well satisfied with the attainment of the Grammar Schools in this department. Algebra is a new study in these schools, and by some is deemed of no practical utility, used simply as a discipline for the mind. Viewed in this light only, its importance can hardly be over-estimated, when we consider that whatever study induces close thought and correct reasoning results in good to every individual. The subject is so discussed in this work, that while the pupils are taught to reason by Algebraic processes, they have a good exercise in Mental Arithmetic. It gives more variety to their exercises,—what the young so much desire and need; and we believe the beneficial effects of this study will become more perceptible, and will show the wisdom of its introduction.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. L. GLEASON. -

HISTORY.

For the purpose of examining the classes in History and making a correct estimate of their comparative standing, I wrote out a series of questions, adapted to classes of the same grade in the different schools; and examined them as nearly as possible from these questions. I gave to each class, one to each scholar, the same proportionate number of questions. Minutes were taken of every answer as it was given, whether correct in whole or in part.

Below is a table showing the actual percentage of correct work of the several classes in this study in the Grammar Schools:—

|---------------------------------------|---------------------------------|-------|
| Parker Street Grammar School,         | First class, Mr. Hervey's,      | 62.50 |
|                                       | Second class, Mr. Hervey's,     | 54.19 |
| Middle Street Grammar School,         | First class, Mr. Barrell's,     | 85.93 |
|                                       | Second class, Mr. Barrell's,    | 53    |
|                                       | Third class, Miss Howard's,     | 61.36 |
| Bush Street Boys' Grammar School,     | First class, Mr. Hutchinson's,  | 70    |
|                                       | Second class, Mr. Hutchinson's, | 60.71 |
| Grove School (South Water Street),    | First class, Mr. Cornish's,     | 83.33 |
|                                       | Second class, Miss Tobey's,     | 65    |
|                                       | Third class, Miss Tobey's,      | 70.16 |
| Charles Street Girls' Grammar School, | First class, Miss Burr's,       | 76.25 |
|                                       | Second class, Miss Cornish's,   | 60    |
|                                       | Third class, Miss Randall's,    | 61.25 |
| Bush Street Girls' Grammar School,    | First class, Miss Robinson's,   | 76.56 |
|                                       | Second class, Miss Cushman's,   | 63.50 |
|                                       | Third class, Miss Cushman's,    | 67.19 |
| Dartmouth Street School,              | Miss Bonney's class,            | 65.84 |
| General average in all the schools,   |                                 | 67    |

As a whole, I think we may be pleased with the result. It is true some of the classes show a low standing, when compared with the best. Then it should be remembered that these lower classes have made comparatively little progress in the study, while the first classes, with a single exception, have completed it. But the best can do better, and the poorest ought to much better.

Compared with the result of my examinations in this study two years ago, I can speak confidently of a decided improvement in the appearance of the scholars. Generally, they have answered more promptly; have shown a more intimate and perfect knowledge of the leading and important events and facts, as well as a fuller comprehension of the philosophy of our history.

I think there is no city in the State in which so large a proportion of the scholars in the Grammar Schools pursue this study as in our own. And it is to be hoped that teachers and scholars will not longer complain of it as a "hard study," when they remember its importance. While it may be asserted by some that it is a study not absolutely necessary in fitting a child for the ordinary duties of life, yet it is presumed that no one will deny its usefulness and beauty, even in an ordinary education.

CHARLES L. SWASEY.

PHYSIOLOGY.

Two classes in Physiology were examined at the close of the year, one in Miss Burr's and the other in Miss Robinson's school. There are no classes in any others of the Grammar Schools. The recitations were fair. I presume the teachers have discharged their duty as faithfully in this study as in any other committed to their charge.

I am still of opinion that it is an unprofitable study in our Grammar Schools. My reasons are these: In the first place, there are other studies, of much more importance, in these schools, quite sufficient to occupy all the time of teacher and scholar. In the next place, as taught at present, it is more the study of Anatomy than Physiology. Now what possible utility can there be in the child's learning the number and names of the bones in the head or hand? Better by far learn what the head is made for, and what the hands can do. And finally, over and above all other reasons, I do not believe it is a study fit for, or adapted to early years, but adult life. You may as well expect the child to show the muscular strength in carrying the load of the full-grown man, as to comprehend the important principles of this great science. 'Tis simply asking a class of children with jack-straws to set about and accomplish one of the labors of Hercules.

An occasional lecture from the teacher to his scholars on Hygiene will do them more real good than a series of recitations from books called "Physiology for Schools." Every term affords him many fit occasions to say a few simple practical words about eating and drinking, exercise and sleep, pure air, cleanliness of clothes and of person. He may do much good in this way, with but very little labor either to himself or his pupils. All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES L. SWASEY.

READING AND SPELLING.

The closing examinations in the above department were assigned to me, and I have examined nearly all the classes, giving a half-day to each school, beginning with the upper classes, and continuing while the time lasted.

With but two or three exceptions, the reading of the classes was satisfactory. The teachers have evidently required accuracy in enunciation, and a careful attention to the meaning of the passages read. I think, however, there is rather a deficiency in vigor and animation in all the schools. The first class in the Charles Street School, under Miss Burr's charge; the sixth in the Grove School, under Miss Connor; and the first in the Middle Street School, under Mr. Barrell,—are exceptions to this remark. Miss Connor's class is one of quite young pupils, but they are earnest and wide-awake. Two little boys,—the smallest in this class,—Horace Chase and Willie Post, deserve especial mention for their quickness and zeal in reading and spelling, and also in defining. The defining terms of little fellows of nine or ten are of course limited, but they expressed themselves in a very descriptive manner. The first class in the Middle Street School is, in my department, the best I have seen. Miss Burr's class is thoroughly attentive and earnest. It is much to be regretted that this excellent teacher has decided to leave the school which she has brought to such a degree of scholarship and discipline. I am aware that some have objected to her system for requiring so much of the scholar; but there is a popular tendency now to cry out for the health of the pupils, and to forget that for every one injured in health by over-study, there are a thousand permanently injured in mental vigor and stamina, and power of application, by passing years of listlessness in schools of a "slack" tendency, where their faculties are not exercised, and where their spring-time for culture passes in vain.

I attribute the general want of spirit in reading mainly to the text-books used. Mr. Hillard's series contains extracts from numberless authors, uniformly elegant and interesting; but oratory and the drama have been left out. A sequence of pleasant stories and sedate poetry fills the books; but there is almost nothing to rouse the sacred fire in the reader. Among the English living plays, the French comedies, and even in some of American origin, there are numerous extracts which would be of immense use to a teacher trying to impart some vitality to her scholars. But not these only: a reading book must contain pieces to draw out rhetorical power and the energy of the passions. It is also, for another reason, desirable that some of the master-pieces of eloquence, ancient and modern,—some of the inspired passages of tragedy which are familiar among us, should be before a pupil in his whole educational period, to take a place in his memory, as well as in his training. In the first book of this series, an attempt has been made to supply the apparent deficiency, but not to a sufficient extent. With the selections in the series no fault can be found; but it is to be regretted that others are omitted.

Several of the teachers have complained to me about the punctuation of these books, especially of the lower ones in the series. I have myself noticed that the method of punctuation used is not uniform.

The spelling and defining in the various schools were, as a whole, quite correct. Among the best classes were the first in the Grove and Middle Street Schools, the second and fifth in the Charles Street, the third in the Parker Street, and the sixth in the Middle Street Schools. I think there should be regular spelling lessons from a spelling-book; and have, in certain instances, recommended to teachers to have a head to their classes, and let the scholarship of the pupil fix his position in his class. I have been frequently answered that emulation is a bad motive, and that a scholar should be guided by a better one.

This is perfectly satisfactory; but in passing through the schools I find two or three teachers who have, by a misapplication of benevolence, dropped the old-fashioned and effective method of making good spellers, without adopting any better one. This is not satisfactory.

THOMAS M. STETSON.

GRAMMAR.

The subscriber, to whom was assigned, in the distribution of the work of the Grammar School Sub-Committees, the duty of examining the classes in English Grammar, reports as follows:

All the Grammar Schools in the city have been visited and examined at various times throughout the year, and in nearly all a marked improvement is visible.

At the close of the last term all the schools, except the Dartmouth Street School, were examined with a greater or less degree of thoroughness. In the Grove and Parker Street Schools, the classes examined passed fair examinations. In the rooms of the First and Second Assistants of the Parker Street School, there is a decided improvement in the standing of the classes. The first and second classes in the Bush Street Boys' School passed good examinations. In the Bush Street Girls' School, the first, third, and fourth classes were examined thoroughly, and all appeared very well. All the classes in the Charles Street and Middle Street Schools were examined. In the former, all the classes but the lowest passed very good examinations. In the latter, all the classes, without exception, passed very good examinations; and the instruction so well begun in the lowest class is regularly carried forward without interruption to the highest, whose recitations would sustain a comparison with those of any class in the City.

It is impossible to indicate the comparative standing of each school while the same text-books are not used throughout. In two of the schools, "Greene's First Lessons in Analysis" is the text-book, while the other five schools use Wells's Grammar. Thus, while in one school the scholars are taught to parse only, in another they learn both to parse and analyze; and it is impossible therefore to judge them by the same standard. Steps should be taken to establish a uniform system of instruction in Grammar throughout the City, and to this subject the subscriber recommends strongly the attention of the School Committee.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOMAS R. RODMAN.

MIXED SCHOOL, MARKET SQUARE.

I am pleased to report favorably of this school for the past year. On the part of the teacher, Mr. Lincoln, there has been the same amount of patience, perseverance, and faithfulness, that we have always found him exercising in this school. The boys, too, have done well. They have made fair progress in their studies. There has been less truancy, a better general average attendance, and a decided improvement in their deportment in the school-room. Although but little is to be expected in this school, there are some scholars who have not been either absent or tardy during the last term.

So much of good for teacher and scholar. I wish there was one good word that could be said about the house or its location. If any one in the City did not know how miserable both are, it would be worth the while to visit them, to see a striking illustration of the "pursuit of knowledge under very serious difficulties." When it is remembered that, by our present school arrangement, the children who are sent here find no place in any other school, being too old to remain longer in the Intermedial, and not far advanced enough in their studies to enter the Grammar Schools, and must be educated here or nowhere,—it is hoped the City will not longer delay in providing a suitable building in a good locality for so important an object. Further, the house, bad as it is, is not half large enough to accommodate the class of scholars who ought to attend here. At present, this City, with all its wealth, does not provide from the public treasury accommodations for the education of all its children. It would seem determined to prove by actual experience the unfortunate paradoxical fact, that leaving a portion of its children uneducated in the public schools, it educates them for future poverty and crime.

CHARLES L. SWASEY, Chairman of Committee.

COUNTRY SCHOOLS.

NORTH SCHOOL.—This school deserves the commendation of the Committee. The teacher possesses in a marked degree, tact, skill, energy, and decision of character, and the fruits of the faithful exercise of these qualities are apparent in the earnestness, good scholarship, good order, and other elements of excellence which the school exhibits. Such of the scholars as have been regular in their attendance have made rapid progress, and the Committee can but regret that the advantages which so good a school affords are not more fully appreciated, and more generally embraced by the inhabitants of the district. In this, as well as in most of the other schools of this class, irregularity of attendance is the most serious difficulty with which the teacher has to contend, marring, as it does, the effect of her efforts, and causing a large share of her labor to yield comparatively insignificant results.

ACUSHNET SCHOOL.—This school continues in good condition. The proper degree of earnestness and activity necessary to keep up the interest of the scholars in their studies appears to be manifested by the Principal. The order is good, and, what is equally important, seems to be maintained by the use of proper means; and the exercises of the classes have generally shown the instruction to be thorough. The Assistant in this school, who has charge of the smaller scholars, is also discharging her duties in a satisfactory manner.

BELVILLE SCHOOL.—This school is one of the most pleasant and agreeable to visit among those of its class. There is in its aspect that which at once gives assurance to the observer that the school is under effective management, and which gives promise of other qualities, which an examination is sure to verify. It is sufficient to remark further, that the school is conducted in every respect in a manner highly acceptable to the Committee, and that the teacher has, as she deserves to have, both the love of her scholars and the respect and hearty co-operation of their parents.

PERRY'S NECK SCHOOL.—The language of the report of last year upon this school might, with but little modification, be suitably applied to it at the present time. Though the school has for the greater part of the current year been under the charge of a different Principal, the change of teachers has produced no perceptible improvement. It follows that there is either some defect in the composition of the school or otherwise, which renders all ordinary efforts to elevate it to a proper standard unavailing; or else the Committee have not been fortunate in their selection of teachers for the place. Though a partial apology may be found for the existing state of things in the first view of the matter, we are inclined to believe that the present condition of the school is not to be attributed wholly to this cause.

HASKINS' CORNER SCHOOL.—The former Principal of this school, who so ably discharged her duties as to give entire satisfaction to all parties interested in its prosperity, resigned her position at the close of the Winter term. Her successor, who still occupies the place, has filled it acceptably, though it is no great disparagement to her to say that she does not in all respects fully equal her predecessor. The school continues quite large, but the government is well maintained, and the classes at each examination have been found to be in fair condition.

CANNONVILLE SCHOOL.—The reports upon this school for several years past abundantly prove that its reputation has not been of an enviable description. The present Principal has, however, done much towards redeeming its character since the school was placed under her charge. Its disorderly elements have been subdued,—the scholars have to some extent been trained to habits of industry,—and the exercises are beginning to be marked with a degree of spirit and vitality. In short, both the appearance and conditon of the school have been changed for the better. The Committee are satisfied, that in both departments of the school the teachers are doing all that the nature of the material which is the subject of their labors renders possible.

POINT SCHOOL.—The results of the last examination have somewhat detracted from the good reputation which this school sustained during the two preceding years. That the teacher possesses all the qualifications necessary for the keeping of a good school, her previous success in the same position fully demonstrates. The Committee therefore confidently trust, that by renewed exertions on her part the former condition of things will speedily be restored.

ALMS HOUSE SCHOOL.—No school in the City has undergone so complete and thorough a change as the one under consideration. In pursuance of the recommendation of the City Council, made with the design of diminishing as far as possible the evils arising from constituting the Alms House the place of confinement for those sentenced under the truant law, the Committee, at the commencement of the term, appointed a male teacher to this position, to the end that the class of persons above alluded to, might have, not only during the regular school hours, but during all the other hours of the day, the constant care and training of one interested in their reformation, as well as in their mental improvement. The individual selected has met the highest expectations entertained of him, and is admirably adapted to the place. Under his supervision the scholars have made rapid progress in their studies,—the school has become really, as it should be, disciplinary and reformatory in its character,—and the Alms House has been made a much more suitable “institution of instruction” for the offenders in question than it has heretofore been. It is not, however, to be inferred from the above remarks, that the appointment of a male teacher to the school has had the effect to remove all the evils inseparable from the use of the same building in common by two such dissimilar classes of persons as paupers and truants. We hold the same opinion with reference to this point which has been expressed in previous reports,—that a separate building should be provided for the latter.

A. BORDEN, for the Committee.

HIGH SCHOOL.

There have been two vacancies in the corps of teachers in this school during the year, Miss Elizabeth C. Babcock having resigned, for the purpose of taking a more lucrative situation in a school in Roxbury, and Miss Caroline E. Bonney having been obliged to dissolve her connection with the school in consequence of ill health. These teachers had served for several years in their respective positions, and it is sufficient to remark that they had uniformly discharged their duties to the satisfaction of the Committee. These vacancies have both been acceptably filled by the appointment of Misses Sallie W. Fox and Mary J.

Hawes, who commenced their services in the school at the beginning of the Fall term.

At the June examination of candidates, twenty-six scholars presented themselves, all of whom were admitted. At the December examination, there were fifty-five applicants, of whom thirty-six were successful. The school now numbers one hundred and fifty-seven scholars, seventy of whom are boys, and eighty-seven are girls. The general condition of the school will appear from the subjoined reports of the several examiners.

GEOMETRY.

At the first semi-annual examination, there were two classes in this branch, both of which were under the instruction of the Principal. At the second examination, there were four classes, of which the Principal and the second female Assistant had the charge of two each. At both examinations, the classes of the Principal gave proof of careful and thorough training. His long experience as a teacher has made him familiar with the subject, and he is consequently able to make numerous suggestions in regard to different modes of proving the several propositions, and the application of the various principles demonstrated, which are well calculated to give the learner clear and intelligent ideas both of the science itself and the uses to which it may be applied. The excellence of his method of teaching this branch is fully evinced by his success. The classes under the Assistant exhibited a good knowledge of the subject as far as they had advanced, but they had not yet made sufficient progress in their text-book to enable the examiner confidently to judge of her ability as an instructor in this particular branch. No indications of failure were, however, observed.

A. BORDEN, Examiner.

ALGEBRA.

There were three classes in this study at each of the semi-annual examinations, each of the female Assistants having a class. There were good scholars in each of these classes, no class having failed to pass either a good or a fair examination as a whole. But the evident lack of a complete and thorough knowledge of the principles of Arithmetic on the part of some of the scholars in most if not all of the classes, though more particularly in the lower ones, is a serious impediment to their progress. The higher standard of qualification now required for admission to the school will, it is hoped, go far towards removing this evil. The teachers appear to have made the best use of the material which they have had; and the fact that some of the scholars have come to them imperfectly prepared, ought not to detract from the measure of credit to which they are justly entitled.

A. BORDEN, Examiner.

READING, GRAMMAR, AND SPELLING.

The Sub-Committee to whom was referred the examination of the High School in Reading, Spelling and Grammar, respectfully submit the following report:—

Each of these departments of study required the examination of every pupil in the school; and in consequence of the failure of one of the members of this Committee to participate in the labor of these examinations, they were not as prolonged and minute as they otherwise would have been, still we believe they were sufficiently extended to show the condition of each class in these studies.

The first examination was made at the close of the Spring term, and consisted in reading, analysis and parsing, spelling, and questions upon the use of the marks and signs in reading. The first and second classes are united in reading, under the instruction of the Principal. The text-book used is Milton's "Paradise Lost," which they had not completed. Promiscuous selections were read with good intonation and appropriate expression. The reading of a few, above the average merit of this class, was rendered with fine effect. The analysis was well made, and the parsing was correct, and notwithstanding the difficulties of this author, their exercise showed a thorough understanding of such parts as were examined. With the uses commonly made of the signs and characters in reading, this class showed a familiar acquaintance, as also did the class in Milton. The remaining classes were not thoroughly examined upon the stops and marks, but such questions as were asked received generally correct replies from some one of the class.

The third and fourth classes were united under the teaching of Miss Tobey. They use Cowper's "Task," and had completed the book. We attempt no comparison of the reading of this class with the last, as the appropriate reading of each must vary, in accordance with the subjects of these authors. The reading was of a pleasant, conversational character, somewhat deficient in force and variety of intonation, yet in a style quite appropriate to the "Task," which, for elocutionary practice, does not furnish so wide and varied a field as Milton's Paradise Lost. The exercise in Grammar consisted in parsing and a review of the principles of their Grammar text-books. In construing and parsing they showed an intelligent understanding of Cowper, but upon some difficult points and exceptional rules of Grammar, their replies indicated the propriety of frequent reviews.

The fifth class was under the instruction of Miss Bonney. They use Cowper's "Task," and had advanced about half through the book. They read with distinct enunciation; and their exercise in Grammar was creditable.

The seventh and eighth classes read to Miss Babcock. They use the National Reader, and were examined, as they recite, separately. The seventh class had completed the book, which, being compiled of selections from various authors, affords a variety of topics for extensive drill. Selections of prose, poetry, and extracts from speeches, were read with spirit and good modulation. Their examination in Grammar was confined to their Grammar text-book, and was only fair in its character.

The reading of the eighth class was not of that uniform character which marked this exercise in the higher classes. From their recent entrance into the High School, sufficient time has not elapsed to change or materially modify the style of reading which the pupils had acquired in the different Grammar Schools from whence they came. There were some good readers in this class. For want of time they were not examined in Grammar.

The exercise in Spelling consisted in writing upon slips of paper twenty words dictated by the Committee, all of the pupils writing them at the same time. The work of each pupil was subsequently examined, and the errors and credits upon each sheet, noted and summed to form the aggregate merit of the class, expressed in percentage, which is subjoined in a tabular view, showing the number of pupils in each class and the correct work of each:—

|                |                 |                       |
|----------------|-----------------|-----------------------|
| First class,   | No. present, 11 | Per cent of merit, 86 |
| Second class,  | “ 4             | “ “ 85                |
| Third class,   | “ 11            | “ “ 81.8              |
| Fourth class,  | “ 25            | “ “ 79.2              |
| Fifth class,   | “ 14            | “ “ 78.3              |
| Sixth class,   | “ 11            | “ “ 73.2              |
| Seventh class, | “ 32            | “ “ 66.6              |
| Eighth class,  | “ 14            | “ “ 61.1              |

The above table shows a gradual and appropriate descent of scholarship from the first or graduating class to the lowest. Below is a specimen of the words, which are not of infrequent occurrence, used at this examination:—

|             |           |           |            |
|-------------|-----------|-----------|------------|
| Exhilarate. | Colloquy. | Separate. | Symmetry.  |
| Supersede.  | Salable.  | Osseous.  | Mussulman. |
| Neutral.    |           |           |            |

The last examination was made at the close of the Fall term; and, owing to other engagements, I was obliged to confine the exercise to Reading and Spelling. The same course was pursued as at the former examination, with so slightly varying results as to render a description of the performance of each class unnecessary. The classes were united in nearly the same order as at the first examination, although not composed entirely of the same material, in consequence of the promotion or advance of each class once in six months. With two exceptions, they were under the charge of the same teachers. The third class during the past term read in Milton, under the charge of the male Assistant. Judging from an analysis and conversation upon some passages contained in the second Book, it appeared that they comprehended the ideas of Milton in what was read. Their exercise was very creditable. The reading of the seventh and eighth classes fell below the standard of those classes at the first examination. Their Spelling ranks a little higher. They are under the instruction of a new teacher, Miss Hawes. When proper allowance is made for the effect consequent upon the change of teachers, the result of this examination is favorable, giving assurance of future success to this teacher.

|----------------|----------------|------------------------------|
| First class,   | No. present, 4 | Per cent of correct work, 90 |
| Second class,  | “ 15           | “ “ 92                       |
| Third class,   | “ 15           | “ “ 85.4                     |
| Fourth class,  | “ 12           | “ “ 78                       |
| Fifth class,   | “ 6            | “ “ 78.4                     |
| Sixth class,   | “ 22           | “ “ 74.1                     |
| Seventh class, | “ 16           | “ “ 67.2                     |
| Eighth class,  | “ 24           | “ “ 66.3                     |

The following list comprises half of the words used at this examination:—

|           |           |           |                |
|-----------|-----------|-----------|----------------|
| Imagery.  | Plagiar.  | Mattress. | Ephemeral.     |
| Pleiades. | Biennial. | Gossamer. | Hieroglyphics. |
| Siege.    | Inveigle. |           |                |

By comparing tables, it will be seen that the last exercise ranks a little above the first in some classes of the same grade, although there is not that uniform descent of merit in the last exercise which characterized the first spelling, — the second class ranking above the first, and the sixth above the fifth class.

The examinations, in the departments already described, have shown steady progress and a good degree of attainment in the classes in these studies. But, in awarding merited praise for the exertions of the past year, we would encourage the pupils to greater efforts in the attainment of higher excellence in these branches, especially in reading.

Perfection lies in the distance, and can be reached only by well-directed efforts in the study and patient practice of the elements and principles that help make up a faultless elocution.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. L. GLEASON.

PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY.

Two classes, under Miss Fox, in Physical Geography, were examined. The first class appeared quite well, while the recitation of the second class was not as good as could reasonably be expected. Neither of the classes has completed the study.

PHYSIOLOGY.

A class, under Mr. Tucker, in this study was examined. The recitation was very creditable. The remarks in relation to this study in the Grammar Schools do not apply here. The age and appearance of the scholars examined warrant a very strong opinion that this study can be pursued by them with great practical good. Respectfully submitted.

LATIN.

The Committee to whom was assigned the examination of the classes in Latin in the High School, submits the following report:—

During the first term, four classes only pursued the study of Latin: of these, the first was under the charge of Mr. Emerson; the second was taught by Miss Tobey; while the third and fourth classes received the instruction of Mr. Tucker. At the commencement of the Spring term another class was formed, of which Mr. Tucker also took charge. At the beginning of the Summer term, the new system, in which Latin is made one of the required studies, went into effect, since which time all the classes in the school have pursued this branch.

At present there are eight classes in Latin. The first class, of eight scholars, is under the charge of Mr. Emerson,—also the seventh class; the second class, of ten, is under Mr. Tucker's charge,—also the third class, of twelve, and the fourth and fifth classes, reciting in one division and numbering in all seventeen; Miss Tobey teaches the sixth class, of thirty, who recite in two divisions, and the eighth class, of twenty-three scholars.

I have examined all the classes at various times during the year, and have been pleased at observing both the excellent mode of instruction and the progress made by the respective classes. The rudiments of the language have been especially well taught in the classes under the charge of Miss Tobey. This is an excellent feature in the mode of instruction, since a thorough knowledge of the grammar is the key which unlocks the hidden treasures of the language.

The classes under the charge of Mr. Tucker have exhibited commendable progress, and I remarked with pleasure the readiness of the scholars in tracing the derivations of words of our own language from their Latin origin. I regard this exercise as highly important, proving, as it does, that a knowledge of Latin is of the greatest advantage in enabling the student the better to understand the meaning and structure of his own language.

The first class, in Virgil, under the charge of Mr. Emerson, show that they have not failed to profit well by his excellent instruction.

It is especially gratifying to notice that the Classical Department in the High School has been placed upon an enlarged and improved basis during the past year, and that it is now receiving under the new system a fair degree of that attention which it merits. In this connection, I take pleasure in stating that a class in Greek, consisting of seven scholars, under the instruction of Mr. Tucker, was formed in June last, the pupils in which have already made considerable progress in mastering this difficult language. Several in this class are preparing for college.

I think it highly desirable that an arrangement should be made whereby every class before graduating shall have the benefit of Mr. Emerson's instruction in the Classical Department; but as the classes are at present arranged, some will graduate without enjoying this privilege, to which they are fairly entitled.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES T. BONNEY.

INTELLECTUAL PHILOSOPHY.

There has been one class engaged in this study, under the immediate care of the Principal. The examination afforded evidence of careful instruction and a good degree of success in awakening interest on the part of the scholars. Their answers to the questions proposed showed a familiar acquaintance with the text-book, and habits of inquiry not limited by it.

This study is often regarded as adapted only to maturer minds and later stages of progress. This I believe is an error, and it is to be regretted that the study is almost excluded from our public schools. While it leads to investigations of truth which illustrate the limitations of man's highest capacities, there are facts and principles easily comprehended and at the same time attractive. The knowledge of these, and the discipline of the learner, are invaluable. Perhaps no study is more fitted to give even young scholars the power and habit of thinking well. I hope that no class will be permitted to pass through our High School without receiving sufficient instruction in this department to give direction to their subsequent reading and study.
